PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

BEFORE The Number of Rasa-s was published in book-form by the Adyar Library, in 1940, it had appeared serially in the pages of the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras, in the years 1936-37. It was then the first detailed study of the subject and of the Śānta Rasa in particular.

In this, as in my other studies, as Prof. M. Hiriyanna mentioned in the Foreword which he kindly wrote to the first edition, I had drawn my data from unpublished manuscripts as much as from published works, bringing to light and also bringing together all the crucial textual material bearing on the subject and required for its exposition. In the years that had passed, during which the book has been in wide use, not only have some texts been newly published, but I myself have been continuously noting additional data and portions of the book where the treatment could be elaborated.

The present second edition of the book is thus a revised and enlarged one. Besides effecting some improvements in the presentation, I have dealt with some additional ideas like the identity of Ālambana and Sthāyin in the Śānta, have devoted greater attention to some topics like the treatment of Bhakti by Bopadeva and Hemādri, the Māyā and Citra Rasa-s, the varieties of Vipralambha, particularly Śāpa and Karuṇa Vipralambha-s, the Dayā Vīra and the additional Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s, and have also taken into consideration certain additional texts not available formerly.

I am thankful to the Adyar Library and Research Centre and its authorities for bringing out this second edition, and to its staff and to Dr. K. Kunjunni Raja, for assistance in the course of the printing of this work. Dr. S. S. Janaki has also helped in the reading of the proofs.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

RASA, Aucitya and Dhvani form the three great contributions of Sanskrit Alamkāra Śāstra to the subject of literary criticism. Rasa is the very 'soul' (ātman) of poetry and drama. Of this concept of Rasa, one aspect, namely the number of the Rasa-s—whether they are only the eight mentioned by Bharata or are more—is studied in the following pages. The study now and then does necessarily touch more fundamental aspects of the concept of Rasa also.

This study was originally published in the form of articles in the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras. It was suggested to me that I might bring them out in book-form. That they have appeared now in book-form is due to the kindness of Dr. Srinivasa Murti, Director, Adyar Library, to whom my thanks are due for the inclusion of this publication in the Adyar Library Series. I must thank also Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, D. Phil., Reader in Sanskrit, University of Madras, and Curator, Adyar Library.

Thanks are also due to the authorities of the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras, and to the authorities of the University of Madras for permitting this publication.

FOREWORD

I GLADLY respond to the desire of Dr. Raghavan that I should contribute a Foreword to this book. He has been carrying on researches in the field of Sanskrit literary criticism for several years past, and the material which he has brought together here shows how extensive is his acquaintance with the literature on the subject. He draws his data, it will be seen, from unpublished manuscripts as readily as he does from published works. The opinion formed on any aspect of the subject by one who has devoted so much time to its study and whose knowledge of it is so wide is of special value and deserves the careful attention of all scholars.

The particular problem considered here is that of the number of Rasa-s, and its consideration necessarily involves the discussion of many important points relating to their nature and scope. As in the case of other problems investigated by the ancient Indians, we find here also an astounding variety of solutions. While some thinkers have held that there is but one Rasa, others have maintained that the Rasa-s are many, there being a wide divergence of opinion respecting their exact number. The usual view, however, is that there are eight Rasa-s or nine, with the addition of what is termed Śānta:

शृङ्गारहास्यकरुणा रौद्रवीरभयानकाः ।
वीभत्साद्भुतशान्ताश्च रसाः पूर्वैरुदाहृताः ॥

Although Dr. Raghavan considers all these views more or less in detail, the main part of his discussion is concerned with the admissibility of Śānta as the ninth Rasa. His treatment of the question is quite comprehensive, and he examines it both from the historical and the aesthetic sides. A brief reference to each of them may not be out of place.

Owing to the uncertainty of our knowledge of the early phases of Indian classical literature, it is not possible to say when poets began to portray this Rasa. The ascetic and mystic elements, however, which form its distinctive basis, are very old features of Indian life; and they were highly valued by those who followed the teaching of the Veda as well as by those who did not. So we may assume that the Śānta attitude found expression in literature quite early; and this is corroborated by the works of Aśvaghoṣa even if, on account of its chronological indefiniteness, we leave out of consideration the Mahābhārata, the usual example given of the Śānta Rasa. As regards writers on Poetics, the earliest to recognize it definitely, so far as our knowledge at present goes, was Udbhaṭa. Possibly its recognition by them was even earlier. Bharata's view in the matter is somewhat doubtful, by reason of the unsatisfactory character of the text of the Nāṭyaśāstra as it has come down to us. Some manuscripts of it mention only eight Rasa-s, but others nine. The weight of evidence bearing on the point seems, on the whole, to be on the former side; and Dr. Raghavan adduces several convincing arguments to show that the references to this Rasa in Bharata are all spurious. But it should be added that the Nāṭyaśāstra contains nearly all the essential points necessary for a theoretical formulation of it.

Before we pass on to the aesthetic aspect of the question, it is desirable to distinguish the emotive content or theme of a literary work from the aesthetic sentiment which, according to the prevalent Indian view, its idealized representation evokes in the reader or the spectator. Thus in the case of the Śākuntalam, Duṣyanta's love for Śākuntalā forms the chief theme while the emotion which it awakens in us as we witness the drama enacted is Śṛṅgāra. When we ask whether Śānta can be a Rasa, we mean whether situations in life involving the quietistic sentiment lend themselves to be similarly dealt with in literature. If they do, then Śānta is a Rasa: otherwise, it is not. The practice of great poets like Kālidāsa, which is after all the true touchstone in such matters, shows that Śānta situations can certainly be thus delineated in literary works. In the last act of his play, just alluded to, Kālidāsa describes the tranquillity and holiness of Mārīca's hermitage in a manner which affects us most profoundly. But, however splendidly depicted, the Śānta Rasa occupies only a subordinate place there; and a doubt may therefore arise whether it can be the leading sentiment in a work, i.e. whether it can be portrayed in such a manner that it will impress us at the end as the predominant element in the unity of Rasa-s which, according to the Indian view, every work of art is expected to achieve. Some of the works of Aśvaghoṣa, to whom I have already referred, show that it can be so represented. The Mahābhārata also, at any rate in its present form, illustrates the same truth, as set forth by Ānandavardhana in his masterly way in the last section of his Dhvanyāloka.

Yet there were theorists who denied that the Śānta could be an art emotion. It is hardly necessary to examine their arguments when we have the practice of great poets and the opinion of great art critics to the contrary. But a reference should be made to one of them which appears, at first sight, to possess some force. This argument is that the attitude of mind for which Śānta stands is altogether a rare one, and that its representation in art cannot therefore appeal to more than a very few. The objection, it is obvious, is based on the supposition that the test of true art is in the wideness of its appeal. The advocates of Śānta brush this argument aside usually by saying that such questions are not to be decided by a plebiscite; but, by thus admitting the narrowness of its appeal, they seem to give up their position. Their conclusion that Śānta is a Rasa is irresistible. Indeed, it would have been a strange irony of circumstance if Indians, of all, had excluded it from the sphere of art. The way in which this particular objection is met, however, is not satisfactory. May it be that the contention that the appeal of Śānta is only to a very few is wrong? No unwonted occasion in life—whether it be one of joy or one of sorrow—passes without bringing home to man the supreme desirability of spiritual peace. It means that the need for such peace is fundamental to the human heart; and this conclusion is confirmed by the pure satisfaction which the contemplation, for example, of the images of Buddha in meditative repose brings to so many. If so, the Śānta mood is by no means uncommon; and the Śānta Rasa need not be an exception to the rule that the appeal of art is general. What is uncommon is the capacity in man to capture that mood and cultivate it, so that it may come to prevail over all other moods; but this deficiency does not matter so far as art is concerned for it has the power, of itself, to enable him to attain, albeit only for a while, the peace of spirit which, as an old Indian critic has observed, even a Yogin has to strain himself long to win.

Dr. Raghavan makes a valuable contribution to the study not merely of Sanskrit literary criticism but of Indian Aesthetics as a whole, for the conception of Rasa, though it is here dealt with chiefly in its relation to poetry, is general and furnishes the criterion by which the worth of all forms of fine art may be judged. I have no doubt that the book will be read and appreciated very widely.

SYNOPSIS

I

THE ADVENT OF ŚĀNTA

BHARATA mentions only eight Rasa-s and Kālidāsa knows only eight Rasa-s. Daṇḍin describes and illustrates only eight Rasa-s (p. 1). Bharata says that Śṛṅgāra, etc. are the eight Rasa-s mentioned by Brahman; the significance of the mention of Brahman here (p. 2). The names Brahmā, Sadāśiva, Bharata and Taṇḍu in the history of Nāṭya literature (pp. 2-5). The question whether Taṇḍu and Nandikeśvara are identical (pp. 5-8). Rājaśekhara's reference to Nandikeśvara as the first exponent of Rasa-s and its explanation (pp. 8-9). Vāsuki, the first to speak of the Śānta Rasa according to Śāradātanaya (pp. 11-12). Kohala and Śānta (p. 12). The questions which arise regarding the Śānta Rasa (pp. 13-14).

II

THE CONTROVERSY OVER ŚĀNTA

Bharata does not mention the Śānta Rasa; textual evidences of this; the Śānta texts in Bharata are interpolations (pp. 15-16). But ideas related to Śānta are present in Bharata's accepted text; passages in Bharata recognizing the quietistic element (pp. 16-20). The real nature of drama according to Bharata is secular as Abhinavagupta also explains in his commentary (p. 21). The advent of Śānta stage by stage; the view of the Gandrikā on the Dhvanyāloka that Śānta can only be a subsidiary motif (pp. 21-2).

Probably the Buddhists and the Jains were responsible for making Śānta the ninth Rasa. The Saundara-nanda-kāvya, the Śāriputraprakaraṇa and the fragment of an allegorical drama of Aśvaghōṣa. The Jain Anuyoga-dvāra-sūtra of the fifth cent. A.D. mentions the Śānta Rasa. The probable theorist who may have introduced the Śānta Rasa: Rāhula? Śrīharṣa, the Vārttikakāra? It is likely that it was the play Nāgānanda which was responsible for starting the discussion on Śānta (pp. 23-5).

The objections to Śānta becoming a Rasa and the replies to those objections (pp. 25-32). Literature depicting Śānta, Kāvya-s and Nāṭaka-s (pp. 32-46).

The writers who accept Śānta and those who reject it (pp. 47-54). The view that it is admissible in Kāvya but not in drama (p. 54). The view that Śānta is a Rasa but can be included in one of the eight old Rasa-s—the Antarbhāva-vāda (pp. 54-6).

The Ālambana-vibhāva, the Uddīpana-vibhāva, Daivata, Varṇa, Vṛtti and Guṇa of Śānta. Haripāla's Brāhmī-vṛtti for his Brāhma Rasa, the counterpart of the Śānta Rasa (pp. 56-60).

III

SOME PECULIAR AND ORIGINAL VIEWS ON ŚĀNTA

The peculiar and original view on Śānta in the (1) Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa, (2) Samgītasudhākara of Haripāladeva, (3) Prapañcahṛdaya and (4) Anuyogadvāra-sūtra (Jain) (pp. 61-7).

IV

THE STHĀYIN OF ŚĀNTA

Discussion of the several Sthāyi-bhāva-s proposed for the Śānta Rasa: Śama, Samyagjñāna, Tṛṣṇākṣaya-sukha, Sarva-cittavṛtti-prasāma, Nirviśeṣa-cittavṛtti, Dhṛti, Nirveda, Utsāha, Jugupsā, Rati; any one of the remaining Sthāyin-s; all the eight Sthāyin-s together; and Ātman or Ātmajñāna or Tattvajñāna.

The question of Ālambana and Sthāyin being the same in Śānta.

Śānta, the basis of all Rasa-s (pp. 68-102).

V

The text of the Abhinavabhāratī on the Śānta Rasa (corrected) (pp. 103-17).

VI

OTHER RASA-S

Preyas and Vātsalya; their Sthāyin-s; controversy over these Rasa-s (pp. 118-22).

Sneha, Śraddhā, Lauhya, Mṛgayā, Akṣa and other Rasa-s (pp. 122-5). Lollaṭa's view as cited in the Abhinavabhāratī that Rasa-s are innumerable, Rasatva for all Vyabhicārin-s and even Sāttvika-s—the view of Rudraṭa and Nāmīśādhu. Pratīhārendurāja's acceptance of this view. The restriction of Rasatva to eight or nine is almost 'conventional'. The mention of the possibility of additional Rasa-s—Lauhya, Sneha, Vyāsana, Duḥkha and Sukha, in the Nāṭyadarpaṇa. Vyabhicāritva and Sthāyitva are names of stages, rather than of a fixed set of Bhāva-s (pp. 125-31).

Bhoja's view of Rasa in the Sarasvatikanṭhābharana and the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa. His Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s; his acceptance of Śānta and Preyas. These four Rasa-s are accepted for the four types of hero: Udātta, Uddhata, Lalita and Śānta. His acceptance of Rudraṭa's position; not only Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s, but many other states like Svātantrya and Pāravaśya are considered as Rasa-s by Bhoja. The largest number of Rasa-s to be seen in Bhoja. The accommodation of this view in his main theory of one Ahaṃkāra Rasa. Bhoja's critique of the old view that only a few, Rati, etc. are Sthāyin-s (pp. 131-7).

A state of chaos in the world of Rasa, recorded by Abhinavagupta in his Locana (pp. 137-8).

Criticism of the above view; clear statement of the theory of Sthāyibhāva and Rasa, according to Bharata and Abhinavagupta (pp. 138-40). Jagannātha Paṇḍita proposing to adhere to Bharata to avoid a complete overhauling of the system (pp. 140-1).

Bhakti and Madhura Rasa-s; Bopadeva and Hemādri on Bhakti; the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal (pp. 141-6); Madhusūdana Sarasvatī on Bhakti Rasa (pp. 146-53).

The Māyā Rasa—Bhānudatta and his commentator Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi; the Rasadīrghikā, the Mandāramaranda-campū, Hamsamitṭhu, Viśveśvara, and Cirañjīvibhaṭṭācārya (pp. 153-7); the Kārpaṇya Rasa (p. 157).

The Vṛiḍanaka Rasa in the Anuyogadvārasūtra and its commentary by Maladhāri Hemacandra (pp. 157-60).

The Citra Rasa (pp. 160-1).

VII

THE VARIETIES OF THE SAME RASA

King Haripāla's three different Rasa-s, Śṛṅgāra, Saṃbhoga and Vipralambha. The question of Rasābhāsa; the question whether all Rasa-s are pleasurable; Vidyādhara versus Śiṅgabhūpāla on Rasābhāsa; the Rasakalikā holding some Rasa-s to be painful (pp. 162-8).

The varieties of Vipralambha; discussion on Śāpa and Karuṇa-vipralambha; views of different writers on these two (pp. 168-77).

The varieties of Hāsyā, Karuṇa, Bhayānaka, Bībhatsa, and Adbhuta (pp. 177-9).

The varieties of Vīra: Dāna-, Dharma-, and Yudha-Vīra-s; Dayā Vīra; history of Dayā Vīra; Jaganātha on the possibility of numerous other Vīra-s. The Anuyogadvāra-sūtra and Citradhara's Vīrataraṅgiṇī on Vīra and its varieties (pp. 179-81).

Māṭṛgupta on the three forms of all Rasa-s, Vācika, Nepathyaja and Svābhāvika (pp. 181-2).

Dharma Śṛṅgāra, Artha Śṛṅgāra and Kāma Śṛṅgāra in Bharata; Mokṣa Śṛṅgāra also in Bhoja (p. 182).

VIII

ARE ALL RASA-S PLEASURABLE?

The question whether all Rasa-s are pleasurable or are there some which are painful, and its relation to the Number of Rasa-s. The Nāṭyadarpaṇa and the Rasakalikā hold that some are painful (pp. 183-4). Madhusūdana Sarasvatī's consideration of the question of bliss in Rasa from the viewpoints of the Sāṃkhya and the Vedānta. All Rasa-s are pleasurable (pp. 184-6).

IX

NEW VYABHICĀRIN-S AND SĀTTVIKA-S

Examination of the three categories of Bhāva-s distinguished as Sthāyin, Vyabhicārin and Sāttvika. Reduction of the Vyabhicārin-s and additions to the same (pp. 187-8). The distinction into Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s. The addition to the set 'Bhāva, Hāva, etc.' by Rāhula, Padmaśrī, Bhoja and Viśvanātha. Bhānudatta's inclusion of the ten Madana-avasthā-s in Vyabhicārin-s (pp. 188-9). Additional Vyabhicārin-s discussed by Hemacandra, Śiṅgabhūpāla, Bhānudatta, Jagannātha and Viśveśvara (pp. 189-91).

The meaning of the name Sāttvika. Bhānudatta's additional Sāttvika, Jṛmbhā; Viśveśvara's Kaṭākṣa; the 'Udbhāsvara' class in Rūpa Gosvāmin; Bhānudatta's distinction between Bhāva and Ceṣṭā (pp. 191-3).

X

RASA-SYNTHESIS

Attempts at postulating one Rasa as the prakṛti and the rest as vikṛti-s (p. 194). The Karuṇa-synthesis and Bhavabhūti (pp. 194-6). The Śānta-synthesis of Abhinavagupta (pp. 196-8). The Ahaṃkāra-Śṛṅgāra-synthesis of Bhoja (pp. 198-200). The Preman-synthesis of Bhoja (pp. 200-1). The Rati-Śṛṅgāra-synthesis in the Agni-purāṇa (pp. 201-2). The Adbhuta-synthesis of Nārāyaṇa (pp. 202-5); followers and critics of this criticism of attempts at such synthesis (pp. 205-7).

Rasa as such is only one (pp. 208-11).

THE NUMBER OF RASA-S

I

For long, the Rasa-s were only eight in number. The text of the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata originally spoke only of eight Rasa-s. For a long time, the poets also were speaking only of eight Rasa-s. Kālidāsa says in his Vikramorvaśīya:

मुनिना भरतेन यः प्रयोगो भवतीष्टष्टरसाश्रयो नियुक्तः ।

ललिताभिनयं तमद्य भर्ता मरुतां द्रष्टुमनाः सलोकपालः ॥ II. 18.

Vararuci's Ubhayābhisārikā has occasion to mention Rasa-s and their number. The context is a dramatic contest. The Viṭa praises one of the courtesans who is going to enact 'Purandaravijaya' in the temple of Indra at Kusumapura. The Rasa-s are here mentioned as eight in number:

यस्यास्तावत् प्रथमं रूपश्रीनवयौवनद्युतिकान्त्यादीनां गुणानां संपत्,
चतुर्विधाभिनयसिद्धिः, द्वात्रिंशद्विधो हस्तप्रचारः, अष्टादशविधं निरीक्षणम्,
षट् स्थानानि, गतिद्वयम् (-त्रयम्), अष्टौ रसाः, त्रयो गीतवादित्रादिलयाः,
इत्येवमादीनि नृत्ताङ्गानि त्वदाश्रयेणालङ्कृतानि ।

Caturbhānī, Madras, 1922, p. 13.

On the side of the theorists, the writers on Poetics, the Rasa-s were only eight up to the time of Daṇḍin who briefly describes and illustrates only the eight Rasa-s. Naturally, we suppose that Bhāmaha also knew only eight Rasa-s. These eight Rasa-s are thus given by Bharata:

शृङ्गार-हास्य-करुण-रौद्र-वीर-भयानकाः ।
 वीभत्साद्भुतसंज्ञौ चेत्यष्टौ नाट्ये रसाः स्मृताः ।
 एते ह्यष्टौ रसाः प्रोक्ता द्रुहिणेन महात्मना ॥

NS., KM ed., VI. 15-16.

And their Sthāyin-s are thus given:

रतिर्हासश्च शोकश्च क्रोधोत्साहौ भयं तथा ।

जुगुप्सा विस्मयश्चेति स्थायिभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ ibid., VI. 17.

We are unable to fix the exact significance of the record here made by Bharata that these are the eight Rasa-s expounded by the great Brahman. The mention of Brahman may after all refer only to the legendary background of the Nāṭya-śāstra. The very first verse says that almost the first exponent of the Nāṭya-śāstra is Brahman:

नाट्यशास्त्रं प्रवक्ष्यामि ब्रह्मणा यदुदाहृतम् । I. 1.

And this, Brahman himself learnt from Śiva. This legend is settled in later times and is mentioned by all writers. How far is this based on evidences within the Nāṭya-śāstra itself?

To begin with, sage Bharata says that Brahman himself contemplated and created out of the four Veda-s, the fifth Veda called the Nāṭya-veda (I. 16-19). Śiva is mentioned in the first chapter, for the first time, with reference to the Kaiśiki Vṛtti. Brahman says that the beautiful, graceful and delicate Kaiśiki cannot be properly presented by male actors, that it can be properly interpreted only by actresses and that he has seen it depicted by only one of the male sex, namely God Śiva (I. 45). We hear of Śiva again only in chapter 4. The first drama 'Asuravijaya' or 'Amṛtamathana' ¹ was enacted before an audience of Deva-s and Asura-s in Deva-loka during the Indradhvaja festival (I. 54-7).

तदन्तेऽनुकृतिर्वद्धा यथा दैत्याः सुरैर्जिताः ।

After this 'Samavakāra', the first drama to be staged, was finished, Brahman one day took Bharata and his troupe to Kailāsa to give a performance before God Śiva. This 'Samavakāra', and a Dima called 'Tripuradāha', one of Śiva's own exploits, were staged there (IV. 5-10). At the conclusion of the staging of the plays, Śiva praised Brahman and the actors and told them that the beautiful and varied Karāṇa-s and Aṅgahāra-s of the Tāṇḍava dance which He himself did every evening might be introduced into the Pūrvaraṅga of their drama, so that their plain (Śuddha) Pūrvaraṅga might become a Citra-pūrvaraṅga (IV. 11-15). He called upon one of his Gaṇa-s, Taṇḍu, to teach Bharata the Aṅgahāra-s and Karāṇa-s of Tāṇḍava (IV. 17-18). Thus Śiva is seen as the God of dance proper, while Brahman himself created drama and won Śiva's appreciation for his creation of this art. Bharata is the first artist whom Brahman chose for the exposition of the art that he created. Brahman's creation of the art of drama referred to all parts of it—the text of the drama, the acting of it, the music that supported the performance and finally the Rasa which the above three evoked in the hearts of the audience. This is the meaning of the verse:

जग्राह पाठ्यमृगवेदात् सामभ्यो गीतमेव च ।

यजुर्वेदादभिनयान् रसानाथर्वणादपि ॥

The story given above points to the historical fact that dance existed first and that drama was then created. Taṇḍu signifies the link between the two. The gods of the two, dance and drama, are Śiva and Brahman. So it is that Bharata, who represents the composite art of dance-drama, says at the beginning:

प्रणम्य शिरसा देवौ पितामहमहेश्वरौ ।

and Abhinavagupta adds here, in his commentary:

एको (ब्रह्मा) विजिगीषुर्नाट्यप्रवर्तयितेति देवः । भगवांस्तु
आनन्दनिर्भरतया क्रीडाशीलः संध्यादौ नृत्यतीति नाट्ये तदुपस्कारिणि
च नृत्ते तदुपज्ञं प्रवृत्तिरिति तावेवात्र अधिदैवतं गुरु चेति नमस्कार्यौ ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, 1st ed., vol. I, p. 2.

Thus Śiva's contribution is dance which served to beautify drama—tadupaskāriṇi ca nṛtte. Brahman's contribution itself was self-sufficient for drama. He spoke of Text, Action, Music and Rasa. It is to this part of the drama of Brahman that Bharata refers in chapter 6, when he says that these are the eight Rasa-s spoken of by Brahman.

एते ह्यष्टौ रसाः प्रोक्ता द्रुहिणेन महात्मना ।

It is on this text that Śāradātanaya bases himself when he says that, according to Brahman, the Rasa-s are only eight, and the ninth, the Śānta, is impossible.

..... तस्माच्छान्तस्य नोद्भवः ।

तस्मान्नाट्यरसा अष्टाविति पञ्चभुवो मतम् ॥

Bhā. Pra., GOS, ch. II, pp. 46-7.

These bits of legend have to be connected with some facts available to us, namely that there were really large texts on Nāṭya known as works of Śiva or Sadāśiva and Brahman. Abhinavagupta himself refers to the three authorities, Sadāśiva, Brahman and Bharata.

एतेन सदाशिव-ब्रह्म-भरतमतत्रयविवेचनेन ब्रह्ममतसारताप्रतिपाद-नाय etc.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, vol. I, p. 8.

The upshot of the discussion here gives the noteworthy fact that, of the three works the Sadāśiva-bharata, the Brahma-bharata and Bharata's Nāṭya-śāstra, the Brahma-bharata is the best and most important, according to some. The Daśarūpakā-kārikā-s, IV. 38 and 39, proving Rasa to be Sāmājikāśraya, i.e. as something existing in the hearts of the spectators, are quoted and attributed to Sadāśiva by Śāradātanaya (Bhā. Pra., VI, p. 152). This ascription does not seem to be reliable. The argumentative style of the Kārikā-s points to a later author. Whether this particular ascription be true or not, it can be accepted that old works in the name of Sadāśiva and Brahman existed. Though from the internal evidence of the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata we know of Śiva as having contributed dance only, there may be a Sadāśiva-bharata dealing with all departments of Nāṭya. It is also likely that this Sadāśiva-bharata is of special importance for its chapters on dance, on Tāṇḍava, its Karaṇa-s and Aṅgaḥāra-s.

Similarly Tāṇḍu, who, in the Nāṭya-śāstra, simply passes the Tāṇḍava from Śiva to Bharata, may have some old Nāṭya work to his credit. There is some difficulty in understanding the name Tāṇḍu. In chapter 1 of the Nāṭya-śāstra, we hear of a Tāṇḍu who is one of the hundred sons of Bharata (I. 26). From chapter 6, we know him as belonging to Śiva's retinue. In chapter I. 26, the text has a variant (GOS, I, p. 18, fn.) Tāṇḍya, and in chapter IV. 17 and 18, we have the variant Tāṇḍin (GOS, I, p. 19, fn.). Abhinavagupta says that the reading tāṇḍu is appropriate, in view of that word's suitability to the derivation of the word tāṇḍava.

सर्वत्र पाठे तण्डुशब्द एव युक्तः, ताण्डवशब्दव्युत्पत्तिवशात् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, vol. I, p. 90.

It looks as if 'Taṇḍu' was created out of the word tāṇḍava. Surely, this Tāṇḍava was performed by Śiva before Taṇḍu who, on Śiva's bidding, taught it to Bharata. Therefore, the name Tāṇḍava could not have been the name given to the dance subsequent to Taṇḍu imparting it to Bharata.¹ In this connection, the text of Abhinavagupta's commentary seems to say that this Taṇḍu is none else than Nandin, the chief attendant of Śiva. We find in M. R. Kavi's ed., vol. I, p. 90:

तण्डुमुनिशब्दौ (नन्दिभर)तयोरपरनामनी ।

But in the MS. of the Abhinavabhārati in the Madras Government Oriental MSS. Library, we find the passage running thus:

तण्डुमुनिशब्दौ तस्योरेव (?) नामनि (नी) । Vol. I, p. 68.

and it is rather difficult to reconstruct or understand this text. There does not seem to be unanimity among writers regarding the identity of Taṇḍu and Nandin. The Śabdakalpadruma says that, according to Halāyudha, Taṇḍu is a door-keeper of Śiva, śivadvārāpālaviśeṣa. The Vācaspatya says the same thing and adds that it is a name of Nandikeśvara:

शिवद्वारपालविशेषे नन्दिकेश्वरे । नन्दी मृङ्गिरिदिस्तण्डुः ।

¹ The explanation of Tāṇḍava by Taṇḍu is not the only explanation. Bhānujī and Kṣīrasvāmin, in their commentaries on the Amarakośa (Nāṭyavarga, v. 10) give Tāṇḍava as being so called after its exponent, Taṇḍu. Bharatamallika (comm. on Amara) says that the sage Tāṇḍa (not Nandikeśvara, a Śivagaṇa) promulgated the Śāstra which came to be called after him 'Tāṇḍi' (neuter); and

In the Śabdakalpadruma, we find that according to the Trikāṇḍaśeṣa, the other names of Nandikeśvara are Nandin, Śālaṅkāyana and Tāṇḍavatālīka, and that according to Hemacandra, the other names are Nandin and Taṇḍu. Keśava's Kalpadrukośa (GOS ed., p. 392, vv. 117-18) gives Nandin, Śālaṅkāyana, Tāṇḍavatālīka, Taṇḍu, Kelīkila and Kūṣmāṇḍaka as the other names of Nandikeśvara. If Taṇḍu is a name of Nandikeśvara, he would be both the time-keeper for Śiva's Tāṇḍava (tāṇḍava-tālīka) and the promulgator of the Tāṇḍava (taṇḍunā proktaṃ tāṇḍavam). But, according to Sarvānanda and Bharatamallīka, the person who is responsible for the Śāstra through which Tāṇḍava got its name, is a sage (muni) named Tāṇḍa or Tāṇḍya. And Taṇḍu whom Śiva asked to teach the Tāṇḍava to Bharata may not be Nandikeśvara but may be some other Gaṇa of Śiva. Ratnākara's Haraviṣṭaya, which is a storehouse of information for the Nāṭya-researcher, mentions Nandiśa and Taṇḍu as two different persons and the commentator, Rājānaka Alaka, adds that Taṇḍu is one of the Pramatha-gaṇa-s of Śiva.

नन्दीशनिर्दयकराहतपुष्करेषु मन्द्रं ध्वनत्सु मुरजेषु विभज्य तण्डुः ।

आसारितेषु परिकल्पितसप्तभेदपर्याप्तशोभमथ तण्डवमभ्यगायत् ॥

NSP ed., II. 20.

from this Tāṇḍi is Tāṇḍava derived. 'ताण्डेन कृतं ताण्डि, नृत्यशास्त्रम्, तदस्यास्तीति भरतः (अमरटीकायाम्) ।' See the Śabdakalpadruma and the Vācaspathya on Tāṇḍava. Sarvānanda's Tikāsarvasva, TSS ed., pt. 1, p. 41. ताण्डयेन मुनिना प्रोक्तं . . . ताण्डि नृत्यशास्त्रम् । तदस्यास्तीति ताण्डवम् । To these derivations, Subhūticandra adds 'तण्डते (तण्ड्यते) भूरनेनेति ताण्डवम् ।' Tāṇḍava is so called because, being a forceful dance (Uddhata), the ground is heavily stamped upon (from the root taḍ). Vidyāvinoda Nārāyaṇa gives all these explanations. Rāyamukuṭa gives Sarvānanda's and Svāmin's explanation and adds: तडिधातोः ताण्डवमिति तु कौमुदी ।

Comm.: तण्डुनामा प्रमथः । ताण्डवं नाम गीतकम् आत्मप्रोक्तम्

From this it would appear that Nandin is the drummer and Taṇḍu the singer of the libretto for Śiva's dance. Abhinavagupta gives an extract from Kohala also on p. 182 (GOS, vol. I) having some bearing on Taṇḍu and Tāṇḍava.

The name Nandin is found twice in the Nāṭya-śāstra (IV. 260 and 261) in connection with the Piṇḍi-bandha-s. More than one work on Nāṭya has come down to us as the work of Nandikeśvara. Rājaśekhara ascribes the first treatment of Rasa to Nandikeśvara and the first treatment of drama to Bharata.

रूपकनिरूपणीयं भरतः, रसाधिकारिकं नन्दिकेश्वरः ।

The chief ground on which Rājaśekhara ascribes the first treatment of Rasa to Nandikeśvara is the record made by Vātsyāyana in his Kāma-sūtra-s, I. 1-8, that Nandikeśvara is the first author on Kāma. Love may be taken to be indicative of the other Rasa-s and further, it is the most important of the emotions which form the material for literature. Śārādātanaya relates a Rasa-legend in chapter 3 of his Bhāvaprakāśa, in which Nandin figures, and which legend he ascribes to Vyāsa—vyāsaproktena mārgena kathayāmi yathārthataḥ. We do not yet know of a work of Vyāsa on Nāṭya. The legend given in the Bhāvaprakāśa is this: Brahman created the worlds at Śiva's bidding and then contemplated upon the past and saw with his mind's eye the doings of Śiva. Nandikeśvara appeared before Brahman at that time and taught him Nāṭya and asked him to teach the art to the Bharata-s, i.e. actors. Brahman created the art of representation, drama, with a past story of Śiva called Tripuradāha, a Dima. The Bharata-s staged this Tripuradāha and while Brahman was witnessing it, there came forth from his four faces four Vṛtti-s with the four Rasa-s : Śṛṅgāra, Vīra, Raudra and Bibhatsa. Concluding this story of the origin of Rasa, Śāradātanaya says:

व्यक्ता मुखेभ्यश्चोत्पन्ना इत्युचुः शंकरादयः ।

The Śaṅkara mentioned here is another puzzle.¹ Śāradātanaya brings Nārada also into the story and says that Nārada expounded this account of the origin of Rasa to Bharata, the sage (ch. 3, p. 58). The two Guru-paramparā-s found here are 'Śiva—Nandin—Brahman—the Bharata-s' and 'Nārada—Bharata, the sage'. In chapter 10, Śāradātanaya relates another story of how Nāṭya came to earth from heaven, in which also the former Guru-paramparā is given. The actors, the Bharata-s, are sent to this world and they write treatises on the art.

सकलं निष्कलं चेति वाद्यमेतत् द्विधा भवेत् ।

कथितं शंकरेणैव एकतन्त्रीसमाश्रयम् ॥

नाट्यवेदाच्च भरताः सारमुद्धृत्य सर्वतः ।
 संग्रहं सुप्रयोगार्हं मनुना प्रार्थिता व्यधुः ॥
 एकं द्वादशसाहस्रैः श्लोकैरेकं तदर्धतः ।
 षड्भिः श्लोकसहस्रैर्यो नाट्यवेदस्य संग्रहः ॥

Bhā. Pra., GOS, p. 287.

The Bharata-s wrote two works, one in 12,000 verses and another in 6,000 verses. The basis of these two is the Nāṭya-veda which is perhaps double the extent of the first of these two. The second work in 6,000 verses is the present Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata and the Daśarūpakāvaloka quotes it by the name Ṣaṭsahasrī:

षट्सहस्रीकृताप्युक्तम् — 'एभ्यश्च सामान्यगुणयोगेन रसा निष्पद्यन्ते'
 इति ।¹

Bahurūpamiśra has quoted the former work in 12,000 verses, the Dvādaśasāhasrī, in his gloss on the Daśarūpaka.² M. R. Kavi quotes the Yāmalāṣṭakatantra in the preface to his edition of the Nāṭya-śāstra (vol. I, p. 6, fn. 1), according to which the Nāṭya-veda, which Śāradātanaya mentions as the basis of the two abridgements, is a work in 36,000 verses. Which of these two, the Nāṭya-veda and the Dvādaśasāhasrī, is the work of Śiva and which of Brahman, cannot be said easily. The latter may be the Brahma-bharata referred to by Abhinavagupta. What these works say on Rasa, we are not in a position to know.

The only work we have is the Ṣaṭsahasrī of Bharata, the Nāṭya-śāstra which says that, according to Brahman, the Rasa-s are eight. Śāradātanaya recasts the passage in this text into the form of a later controversial text, and makes Padmabhū. (Brahman) refute the Śānta and accept only eight Rasa-s. We can conjecture safely that both the Sadāśiva-bharata and the Brahma-bharata knew only eight Rasa-s.

Was there any old work which expounded nine Rasa-s? When did the Śānta first make its appearance? Just after giving the above-noticed view of Padmabhū (Brahman) that the Rasa-s are only eight, Śāradātanaya gives another account which he attributes to Vāsuki. There seems to be, from the following verse, an old work in which Vāsuki imparts the Nāṭya-śāstra to Nārada.

उत्पत्तिस्तु रसानां या पुरा वासुकिनोदिता ।

नारदस्योच्च्यते सैषा प्रकारान्तरकल्पिता ॥ Bhā. Pra., II, p. 47.

The Śānta Rasa is accepted in this account.

रजस्तमोविहीनात् सत्त्वावस्थात् सचित्ततः ।

मनागस्पृष्टबाह्यार्थात् शान्तो रस इतीरितः ॥ ibid., II, p. 48.

Who is this Vāsuki? We already know of two serpents among the teachers of music (Samgītācārya-s), Kambala and Aśvatara, and we must add to them this teacher of dance (Nāṭyācārya), Vāsuki. Śāradātanaya quotes Vāsuki earlier also (pp. 36-7) regarding the rise of Rasa from Bhāva-s.

नानाद्रव्यौषधैः पाकैः व्यञ्जनं भाव्यते यथा ।

एवं भावा भावयन्ति रसानमिनयैः सह ।

इति वासुकिनाप्युक्तो भावेभ्यो रससंभवः ॥

This verse is, as pointed out by the editor of the Bhāvaprakāśa, found in the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata, quoted along with four other verses, with the words: bhavanti cātra ślokāḥ.¹ If we are to rely on Śāradātanaya, we have to suppose that the Rasa chapters in Bharata are based on the texts of Vāsuki and others and that this Vāsuki accepted a ninth Rasa, namely the Śānta. Why then does Bharata's text not mention the Śānta? If Bharata did not approve of Śānta being a Rasa, he should have refuted it, citing Vāsuki's position. When no such discussion is seen in Bharata's Nāṭya-śāstra, we have to conclude that Śāradātanaya has only increased the confusion here, as on other topics also.

If we are to attach any weight to the statement of another late writer Dharmasūri, author of the Sāhityaratnākara, we have to suppose that Kohala is, like Vāsuki, another old writer who accepted the Śānta Rasa. He says regarding the Sthāyin of Śānta:

कोहलस्तु उत्साहो वा निर्वेदो वा शमो वा अस्य स्थायीत्युवाच ।²

If Kohala had accepted Śānta, Abhinavagupta and other champions of Śānta would have quoted him. But it is also likely that a late work falsely ascribed to Kohala speaks of the Śānta, and Dharmasūri bases his statement on such a pseudo-Kohala work.

The Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata itself recognized only eight Rasa-s. Subsequently, when the Śānta was accepted by

¹ Thus, there are Anuṣṭubh and Āryā verses quoted by Bharata. These are called Ānuvaṃśya verses, handed down as basic and authoritative texts on Nāṭya written by other writers. The definite authorship of these Anuṣṭubh-s and Āryā-s is not known. Abhinavagupta says while commenting on one set of such Ānuvaṃśya Āryā-s, on p. 328: ता एता ह्यार्याः एकप्रवृत्ततया पूर्वाचार्यैः लक्षणत्वेन पठिताः । मुनिना तु सुखसंग्रहाय यथास्थानं निवेशिताः ।

writers, the text of the NS underwent some change and was read thus as indicated by Abhinavagupta:

शृङ्गारहास्यकरुणाः रौद्रवीरभयानकाः ।

बीभत्साद्भुतशान्ताश्च नव नाट्ये रसाः स्मृताः ॥ VI. 16.

रतिर्हासश्च शोकश्च क्रोधोत्साहौ भयं तथा ।

जुगुप्साविस्मयशमाः स्थायिभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ IV. 18.

शान्तापलापिनस्त्वत्र अष्टाविति पठन्ति । ibid.

Udbhaṭa recognizes the Śānta as can be seen from his Kāvyā-lamkārasārasaṃgraha. He is thus the first commentator on the NS and the first Ālamkārika now known to have definitely begun to speak of Rasa-s as nine in number. He may therefore have made the necessary alteration in the text of the Nāṭya-śāstra as shown above and as pointed out by Abhinavagupta.

Regarding this subject of Śānta Rasa then, the following questions arise:

(i) Did Bharata recognize it? What are the arguments of those who hold that Bharata recognized it? What is the real position of Bharata in respect of Śānta?

(ii) Who is the first writer to introduce the Śānta Rasa? What was that condition in the world of letters that led to the postulation of Śānta?

(iii) Independent of Bharata accepting it or not, what is Śānta? Can it be a Rasa? What are the arguments of the opponents of Śānta?

(iv) What is the argument of those who not only accept but praise the Śānta as the greatest Rasa? Who are these writers? What are the literary compositions that have proved the possibility of the Śānta Rasa?

(v) Who are those that unable to find fault with Śānta, make a compromise, deny it in Nāṭya and accept it in Kāvya only? What are their arguments and how are they met?

(vi) Who are the writers that do not accept the Śānta anywhere?

(vii) What is the Sthāyin of Śānta?

These questions will be dealt with now.

BHARATA certainly mentions only eight Rasa-s.¹ He does not give Śānta as the ninth Rasa. The texts on Śānta in certain recensions of Bharata's Nāṭya-śāstra must have been interpolated by advocates of Śānta. Abhinavagupta once argues the cause of Śānta on the basis of these Śānta texts available in certain recensions but he advocates its cause more vigorously earlier, quite independent of these Śānta texts in Bharata. Abhinavagupta even gives various arguments to show why Bharata did not speak of it at all. Further, the advocates of Śānta who point out Nirveda or Dhṛti or one of the other Vyabhicārin-s already mentioned by Bharata as the Sthāyin of Śānta do so only because they feel that Śānta, its Sthāyin, etc. are not given in Bharata; hence they resort to the Dehalīdīpa-nyāya, Māṅgalya-amāṅgalya, etc. to read the Śānta Rasa into the text of Bharata. How they do this is discussed in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta below. Again, if Ānandavardhana who speaks of Śānta had known the Śānta texts of Bharata and had believed in them as genuine parts of Bharata, he would have quoted them in his advocacy of Śānta in the third chapter of his Dhvanyāloka. Ānandavardhana advocates Śānta on his own grounds and holds as its Sthāyin neither Nirveda with all its trifling supports, nor Śama which is given as its Sthāyin in the interpolated Śānta text in Bharata; Ānandavardhana holds as its Sthāyin 'that happiness which is the annihilation of all desires', tr̥ṣṇāḥṣayasukha.

तृष्णानां विषयाणां यः क्षयः सर्वतोनिवृत्तिरूपो निरोधः, तदेव सुखम् ।
Abhinavagupta's Locana, KM ed., 1928, pp. 176-7.

All the writers who refute Śānta are of the opinion that Bharata's text does not know the Śānta Rasa. Further, Bharata gives Laya, Svara, Guṇa, Alamkāra, Vṛtti, Vṛtta, etc. for the eight Rasa-s only in the several sections of his work; Śānta is not mentioned here anywhere. This is part of the objection raised against Śānta by its critics. They say, Bharata has related music and Rasa-s and has mentioned the Jātyamśa-s suggestive of the several Rasa-s but does not mention the Śānta here (See NS, XXIX. 1-4.). We find in the Abhinavabhāratī:

Later in NS, XVIII. 83-5 (GOS. ed., II, 1934, p. 443) in the description of the type of drama called Ḍima, Bharata's text says that with the exception of Śṛṅgāra and Hāsyā, a Ḍima shall have six Rasa-s: śaḍ-rasalakṣaṇayuktah . . . śṛṅgārahāsyavarjam.. Taking the obvious meaning of this, the critics of Śānta say that this is another express evidence of Bharata having in mind only eight Rasa-s. Abhinavagupta first argues for Śānta not on the basis of Bharata's mention of it, but on the basis of his silence on the subject which Abhinavagupta makes out as more eloquent. This will be explained later. Suffice to point out here that express mention of Śānta is not found in Bharata.

If this is accepted, we can trace the way by which Śānta slowly came to be accepted as a Rasa. We can even explore the possibilities of finding some aspects of Śānta in Bharata's accepted text. Bharata, it must be borne in mind, handles the whole world and analyses human psychology to a great extent and it will be strange if he is to be entirely innocent of that part of human activity which is the sphere of the Śānta Rasa. The absence of Śānta in theory does not, however, mean the absence of poetry or drama with the quietistic motif. To suppose so would be as foolish as to think that before Rasa-dhvani was formulated as the soul of poetry, no great poetry existed. As Ānandavardhana points out, the Rasa of the great epic, the Mahābhārata, is Śānta. The Ṛṣi, the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa, the third and the fourth Āśrama-s of Vānaprastha and the Saṁnyāsa—these were already parts and sublime parts of Kāvya-s such as the Raghuvaṁśa and Nāṭaka-s such as the Śākuntala. In the more ancient scheme, Dharma itself, classified as Pravṛtti and Nivṛtti, comprehended all spiritual and religious activity. Bharata, himself a sage, gave the Nāṭya-śāstra to an assemblage of sages. Bharata, therefore, could hardly have lost sight of the Ṛṣi-s, the forests, tapas, etc. As a matter of fact, as will be shown below, Bharata does mention aspects of this Śānta Rasa and its attendant conditions.

An emotion is recognized as Rasa if it is a sufficiently permanent major instinct of man, if it is capable of being delineated and developed to its climax with its attendant and accessory feelings and if there are men of that temperament to feel imaginative emotional sympathy at the presentation of that Rasa. Thus are Śṛṅgāra and the other seven Rasa-s. So, if Bharata says that drama is of varied nature in accordance with the varied nature of the world on the one hand and of the spectators on the other, if he says that one drama predominantly develops one Rasa whose appeal is only to those whose hearts are attuned to it and if he says that a certain drama may have its theme or purpose in Śānta, it certainly means that Bharata has landed, though unconsciously, on the Śānta Rasa. Bharata says—and these are surely genuine parts of the text:

कचिद्धर्मः कचित् क्रीडा कचिदर्थः कचिच्छमः । I. 106.

दुःखार्तानां श्रमार्तानां शोकार्तानां तपस्विनाम् ।

विश्रान्तिजननं काले नाट्यमेतद्विष्यति ॥ I. 115.

ब्रह्मर्षीणां च विज्ञेयं नाट्यं वृत्तान्तदर्शनम् । I. 121.

The first given passage is referred to by Abhinavagupta also in connection with the discussion on the admissibility of Śānta as a Rasa and by drawing attention to this bit, kvacic chamah, Abhinavagupta asks whether Bharata did not recognize the quietistic element also as part of dramatic presentation:

प्रतीयत एवेति मुनिनाप्यङ्गीक्रियत एव 'कचिच्छमः' इत्यादि

वदता ।

Abhinavagupta, Locana, p. 177.

Another instance of Bharata's awareness of the element of Śānta is pointed out by Abhinavagupta. It is similar to the second passage extracted above. It refers to such spectators as are bereft of life's passions—Vītarāga-s—to whom only dramas of a nature in harmony with theirs and dramas depicting the Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa can have any appeal. While pointing out in chapter 27 that the very life of drama is its fusion with the audience and that certain hearts can respond only to certain themes, Bharata says:

तुष्यन्ति तरुणाः कामे विदग्धाः समयाश्रिते ।

अर्थेष्वर्थपराश्चैव मोक्षेष्वथ विरागिणः ॥

XXVII. 59, Kasi ed.

Says Abhinavagupta in regard to this passage:

हृदयसंवादोऽपि तथाविधतत्त्वज्ञानबीजसंस्कारभावितानां भवत्येव,
यद्वक्ष्यति 'मोक्षे चापि विरागिणः' इति । GOS, I, p. 340.

Further, Bharata speaks of a kāma or desire for each Puru-ṣārtha in chapter 24 and mentions here the variety called Mokṣa-kāma. What does this mean?

धर्मकामोऽर्थकामश्च मोक्षकामस्तथैव च ।

स्त्रीपुंसयोस्तु संयोगो यः, कामः स तु संस्मृतः ॥ XXIV. 91.

The Śānta only is the Rasa of Mokṣa-kāma. Compare the Mahābhārata, Āśvamedhikaparvan, chapter XIII. 16, where
Kāma says of himself:

यो मां प्रयतते हन्तुं मोक्षमास्थाय पण्डितः ।

तस्य मोक्षरतिस्थस्य नृत्यामि च हसामि च ॥

Again, what does Bharata mean by giving great scope for Dharma as an important theme handled in drama, by saying that drama is dharmya, by mentioning Dharma as the purpose of some dramas, kvacid dharmah, by speaking of Dharma-Śṛṅgāra and by pointing out that the old, the learned and the experienced respond to such dramas as are based on the Dharmākhyānapurāṇa which comes under the vibhāvānubhāva,
the causal and ensuant conditions, of the Śānta?

धर्माख्यानपुराणेषु वृद्धास्तुप्यन्ति नित्यशः । XXVII. 61.

While describing Nirveda¹ or despondency, Bharata speaks of one kind of it which is born of Tattvajñāna, awareness of truth; giving the causes of Glāni or languor, he speaks of Tapo-niyama, penance and austerity; defining Dhṛti² or fortitude, Bharata gives Vijñāna, Śruti, Śaucācāra and Guru-bhakti—wisdom, learning, purity and clean conduct, and devotion to the teacher—as some of its Vibhāva-s and these pertain to Śānta; Mati, clarity of mind, is given as born of nānāśāstra-vicintana, reflection on diverse branches of learning and philosophy. If the quietistic element is not recognized in some aspect, at least, by him, Bharata cannot say of Nāṭya that it is trailokyānukaraṇa, a representation of all the three worlds, that there is no jñāna or knowledge which is not part of drama and no vidyā or branch of learning which does not come within it: na tat jñānam, etc. NS, I. 117.

The instances shown above point however only to the recognition of Śama as an element and they do not mean Bharata's acceptance of the Śānta as a Rasa. To be precise, Śama is not mentioned as one of the forty-nine Bhāva-s. Bharata did not have before him any specimen of drama written only for Mokṣa or salvation and the Virāgin-s, the dispassionate souls. It may be that there cannot also be dramas depicting only Bhayānaka, Adbhuta, etc. as their Rasa. They too can appear only as Aṅga or Saṃcāri Rasa-s. But the reason for the acceptance of Bhayānaka, Adbhuta, Bibhatsa, etc. as Rasa-s is that humanity is more prone and responsive to these than to Śama, the hearts attuned to which must necessarily be very small in number. Śama is almost impossible. For, the opponents of Śānta say, Ignorance, avidyā, producing attachment and aversion, rāga and dveṣa, which result in a network of psychology covered by the eight Sthāyin-s, is inborn in man ever since he began his migration in saṃsāra and practically speaking, this avidyā cannot be rooted out. That is, Śānta which is their absence cannot be obtained. The Avaloka on the Daśarūpaka says:

अन्ये तु वस्तुतस्तस्याभावं वर्णयन्ति । अनादिकालप्रवाहायात-
रागद्वेषयोरुच्छेत्तुमशक्यत्वात् । NSP ed., 1897, p. 117.

This, however, is not wholly true for there is not any lack of persons who take to Śānta and strive to root out rāga and dveṣa. But this criticism of Śānta is pertinent to some extent in regard to drama generally which is for pleasure and which deals with worldly things. Drama arose as an entertainment: kṛīḍanīyakam icchāma dṛśyaṃ śṛavyaṃ ca yad bhavet. Bharata often says that Nāṭya is for diversion, vinoda-janana. Bhāmaha also says that though the Mahākāvya depicts all the four Puruṣārtha-s, it shall predominantly inculcate Artha.

चतुर्वर्गभिधानेऽपि भूयसार्थोपदेशकृत् ॥ Kāvyālaṃkāra, I. 20-1.

Abhinavagupta draws our attention in this connection to Bharata's definition of Nāṭaka which emphasizes the fact that it shall depict chiefly worldly prosperity, gaiety, etc. From this point of view, Abhinavagupta even says that Śānta is after all only apradhāna, not the leading motif.

Therefore it is that the Candrikākāra, the earlier commentator on the Dhva. Ā., says that the Śānta spoken of by Ānanda-var dhana is certainly admissible as a Rasa, but that it can appear only as an Aṅga Rasa in the Prāsaṅgika Itivṛtta, the subsidiary episodes, and never as the chief Rasa figuring in the Ādhikārika Itivṛtta, the main theme. Evidently, the Candrikākāra also held the view that Vīra and Śṛṅgāra are the Rasa-s in the Nāgānanda in accordance with the ending in the attainment of vidyādhara-cakravartitva, the overlordship of the kingdom of Vidyādhara-s, and the sustained love-theme, and that the Śānta came in there as a subsidiary idea to give a new variety of Vīra called Dayā-vīra. Abhinavagupta, however, rejects this view of the Candrikā in his Locana.

आधिकारिकत्वेन तु शान्तो रसो (रसो न) निबद्धव्य इति चन्द्रिका-
 कारः । तच्चेहास्माभिर्न पर्यालोचितम् । Locana, p. 178.

But the above-given extract from the Abhi. Bhā. seems to grant what Abhinavagupta has criticized in his own Locana. He seems to grant that it is literature of Trivarga interest, that is of wide appeal in the world. Early dramas likewise dealt with Trivarga and the eight Rasa-s only.

But soon drama was to be made the noble vehicle of spiritual and religious instruction to the masses. Leaving the Brāhmanic Mahābhārata, we find, in the Buddhistic field, Aśvaghoṣa's Buddhacarita and Saundarananda starting the religious Kāvya, and his Śāriputraprakaraṇa and the allegorical dramatic fragment discovered by Dr. Lüders, the religious drama. The Buddhist and Jain poets and dramatists might have been responsible for the introduction of religious and philosophical poems¹ and plays, for making ¹ (a) The Saundarananda has two verses in the end in which Aśvaghoṣa says that he wrote a Mahākāvya for Upaśānti and Mokṣa, mixing a bitter-medicine with honey.

(b) The Jain work, the Vastuvijñānaratnakośa, is a handbook of knowledge of miscellaneous things enumerated in sets of one, two, etc. (Peterson, III, p. 267; Oxford, 352a; IO, 7583-4; Asiatic Soc., Beng., 4703 A.) Of uncertain date, this work mentions Turuṣka-s in the 36 Rājavarṇā-s given by it. Albeit its Jain authorship, it gives only eight Rasa-s, aṣṭau rasāḥ (Peterson, III, p. 268a).

(c) The Jain work named Adhyātmakalpadruma by Muni-sundarasūri (end of the 14th and early part of the 15th cent. A.D.), is otherwise called Śāntarasabhāvanā. (NSP ed., 1906, with extracts from Dharmavijayagaṇi's gloss.) The work says in the Pratijñāsloka that Śānta is proposed to be treated in the work and in the next verse which is entitled, 'Śāntarasamāhātmya', the author describes the Śānta as rasendra. The commentary describes the Śānta as śrīmān śāntanāmā rasādhirājaḥ and sarva-rasa-sāra. Compare also the names of some other Jain works, the Śāntasudhārāsa-

Śānta the Aṅgin or leading Rasa of the Ādhikārika-itivṛtta or main theme. We know that there were Buddhist writers on Nāṭya like Rāhula, who, as citations of his views in the Abhi. Bhā. show, had his own differences from Bharata. Further, the Jain Anuyogadvāra-sūtra, placed in the fifth century, mentions nine Rasa-s, adding the Praśānta Rasa to the eight old Rasa-s (see below). Dr. S. K. De says in his Studies in the History of Sanskrit Poetics (vol. I, p. 36 fn.): 'The Jaina Anuyogadvārasutta (ed. NSP, 1915, fol. 134-145, also quoted in Weber II. 2, pp. 701-2) which, Winternitz thinks, was probably put together by the middle of the fifth century, mentions nine rasas, which, however, have hardly any reference to poetic or dramatic rasas; but the enumeration is interesting from the inclusion of praśānta [not mentioned by Bharata] apparently from religious motives.' It is not known why Dr. De considers these nine Rasa-s mentioned in the Anuyogadvāra-sūtra as having hardly any reference to poetic or dramatic Rasa-s. They are definitely mentioned in the work as ṇava-kāvya-rasā, the nine Rasa-s of Kāvya. This is further dealt with below.

The Nāgānanda, the first and only specimen to which the early advocates of Śānta cling, is a Buddhist story. Śrīharṣa had leanings towards Buddhism and if this king Śrīharṣa is the same as the Vārttikakāra of the Nāṭya-śāstra quoted in the Abhi. Bhā. (which, however, is yet quite unproven), it is likely that his Nāṭya-vārttika, which must have made, according to the avowed objective of a vārttika, additions and alterations, ukta-anukta-durukta-cintana, introduced the Śānta as a Rasa. It seems very likely that it is the appearance of the kāvya of Vinayavijayaṇi and the Praśamarati of Umāsvāti (see esp. v. 106 in the latter).

Nāgānanda in the world of drama that created a stir and set the discussion on Śānta on its feet in works on Nāṭya and Alamkāra.¹

What are the objections raised by the critics of Śānta to recognizing it as a Rasa? The first objection is that Bharata did not speak of it. This is really no serious objection. The greater objection is that pertaining to the real nature of Śama itself. Śama, its critics say, is the cessation or total absence of all feelings and activities. Such a state of non-action cannot be presented on the stage.

कामाद्यभावोऽपि नानुभावः . . . प्रयोगासमवायित्वाच्च ।
न हि चेष्टाव्युपरमः प्रयोगयोग्यः । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 334.

This argument proceeds on a wrong assumption. The state of absolute cessation of action is only the climax, the pariyanta-bhūmi, and this certainly cannot be shown. But the pariyanta-bhūmi-s of all other Rasa-s also sail in the same boat. Śṛṅgāra is not denied as a Rasa because saṃprayoga or actual sexual union is unfit to be shown on the stage. So also murder and Raudra. So, the acceptance of Śānta does not mean the attempt to present the impossible cessation of action but means only the portrayal of an ardent spirit in search of Truth and tranquillity. The manifold efforts of the yata māna, the aspirant, his trials, his victories over passions—all these can be portrayed with great interest. Even one who has attained Truth can be shown and there will be no lack of action in him. A Siddha like Janaka will be doing loka-samgraha, humanitarian work and helping others on the spiritual path. The Bhagavad-gītā says:

कुर्याद्विद्वांस्तथासक्तः चिकीर्षुर्लोकसंग्रहम् । III. 25.

The Bhagavad-gītā speaks of many a thing which a sthitaprajña, one who is stable-minded, does.

Cf. The Locana (p. 177): चित्राकारा यमनियमादिचेष्टा वा राज्य-
धुरोद्ध्वनादिलक्षणा वा शान्तस्यापि जनकादेः इष्टैवेति अनुभावसद्भावाद्
यमनियमादिमध्यसंभाव्यमानभूयोऽयमिचारिसद्भावाच्च प्रतीयत एव ।

Similar to the above-noticed objection is the explanation which another writer offers for the omission of the Śānta. The Saundaryalaharī, ascribed to Śaṅkara, has three occasions to speak of the Rasa-s. In two verses, 41 and 50, the hymn expressly mentions 'the nine Rasa-s', 'nava-rasa'; in verse 41 with reference to Nāṭya and in verse 50 with reference to Kāvya. But in verse 51, the hymn refers only to eight Rasa-s which are described there as being expressed by the look of the Goddess. In the commentary on this verse, the 51st, Lolla Lakṣmīdhara offers an explanation for the omission of the Śānta here. He says that according to Bharata's school, the Rasa-s are only eight, for Rasa means a certain modification or state of the citta, mind, and Śānta being really the absence of any state or modification, some do not consider it a Rasa.

विक्रियाजनका एव रसा इति अष्टौ रसा भरतमते । 'शान्तस्य
निर्विकारत्वात् न शान्तं मेनिरे रसम्' इति शान्तस्य रसत्वाभावात् अष्टावेव
रसाः संगृहीताः ।

Mysore ed., pp. 154-5.

It is clear from Lakṣmīdhara's remarks here and on the two verses mentioning the nine Rasa-s that personally he would accept the Śānta. But any definite and detailed idea of Lakṣmīdhara's views on the Śānta could be had only when we recover his Sāhitya-work, the Lakṣmīdhara, mentioned by him among his works in the colophon at the end of his commentary on the Saundaryalaharī.

That Bharata has not given the Vibhāva-s, Anubhāva-s and Vyabhicārin-s of Śānta, nor its appropriate Vṛtti, musical Jāti, etc. is another trifling objection. These can be easily made out. Abhinavagupta gives them. The interpolated Śānta text in Bharata gives the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Śānta. The Sthāyin of Śānta is elaborately discussed in a special section below. Its Vibhāva-s are given in the text as tattvajñāna, vairāgya, āśayaśuddhi, etc. Its Anubhāva-s are yama, niyama, the practice of virtues, penance, etc. Almost all Bhāva-s can be its Vyabhicārin-s. Abhinavagupta adds the Vibhāva-s, meeting pious souls (sādhūsamāgama), contact with good men (satsaṃparka), the good done in the past births, God's grace, study of philosophy, etc. Abhinavagupta further remarks that in Śānta one can see and enjoy the Anubhāva-s, namely the slow disappearance of Kāma, Krodha and other evils and that though the whole world of Bhāva-s becomes Vyabhicārin for the Śānta, such Bhāva-s like Nirveda and Jugupsā for worldly objects, Dhṛti, Mati, Utsāha of the type in Dayāvīra, Rati for God in the form of Bhakti and Śraddhā will stand out prominently as more intimate accessories, Ābhyañtara Aṅga-s¹. The text of the Abhinavabhārati bearing on these is edited in a further section of this book.

¹ In chapter 6 (pp. 135-6) Śāradātanaya again treats of Śānta in a clumsy manner. First he praises it as the Rasa which

The next objection to Śānta is the impossibility of Śānta becoming a general feature of humanity in the same measure and to the same extent as Rati, etc. for, the whole world is wrapped in avidyā and is eternally slave to rāga and dveṣa. We know of the eight Sthāyin-s only, as instinctive in man. Dhṛti, Mati, etc. are given as Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta but we do not know of Dhṛti or Mati helping Śāma. All the Dhṛti and Mati known to us is mingled with rāga and dveṣa and other mundane associations:

धृतिप्रभृतिरपि प्राप्तविषयोपरागः कथं शान्ते स्यात् ।

Abhi. Bhā., p. 334.

Nor is the portrayal of non-action any good for vyutpatti, the education of man. The mere presentation of non-action does not educate anybody in the means to attain knowledge of Truth.

न च अकिञ्चित्करस्त्वमात्रेण तत्त्वज्ञानोपाये व्युत्पाद्यन्ते विनेयाः ।

ibid., p. 334.

The quietistic element is not a dominant factor in man's life. If a poet develops it, it would seem strange and unbelievable that there should be such impossible men who have spurned the pleasures of the world, women, position, wealth, etc. The general mass of the audience consists mostly of ordinary men who hardly respond to such a drama or have any cittasamvāda or rapport with it. The Avaloka on the Daśarūpaka says:

gives Mokṣa and sets forth its Vibhāva-s, etc. Then he says that it does not have Vibhāva-s, etc. to a full extent, is vikalāṅga; but concludes that despite its imperfections, it is prakṛṣṭa because of its relation with the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa.

अन्ये तु वस्तुतस्तस्य अभावं वर्णयन्ति । अनादिकालप्रवाहायात-

DR. A., p. 117.

न च तथाभूतस्य शान्तरसस्य सहृदयाः स्वादयितारः सन्ति ।

ibid., p. 124.

All these objections are raised and answered by Ānandāvardhana:

यदि नाम सर्वजनानुभवगोचरता तस्य नास्ति, नैतावतासौ अलोक-
सामान्यमहानुभावचित्तवृत्तिवत् प्रतिक्षेप्तुं शक्यः ।

Dhva. Ā., p. 177.

That the major part of humanity is wallowing in mundane pleasures does not disprove the existence of saints and sages.. There are persons of spiritualistic bent and to them the Śānta play is bound to appeal. To them, the Śṛṅgāra and Vīra plays will have little appeal. Surely, on that ground, Śṛṅgāra and Vīra are not dismissed from the fold of Rāsa-s.

ननु तत्र हृदयसंवादाभावाद्रस्यमानतैव नोपपन्ना । क एवमाह
नास्तीति? यतः प्रतीयत एवेत्युक्तम् । ननु प्रतीयते, सर्वस्य श्लाघास्पदं
न भवति । तर्हि वीतरागाणां शृङ्गारो न श्लाघ्य इति सोऽपि रसाच्चयव-
तामिति तदाह—यदि नामेति ।

Locana, p. 177.

The argument of the impossibility of non-action being shown has already been refuted.

An extension of the argument that Śānta is not relishable is the argument that drama which is essentially for entertainment and trivarga-vyutpatti, inculcation of the three positive aspirations of man, must depict ṛddhi, prosperity, vilāsa, enjoyment, etc. So have all dramas done. There are no plays which have developed Śānta. The Nāgānanda, which some hold as a Śānta play, is plainly not so. For the end here is not Mokṣa, but the attaining of lordship over the Vidyādhara-s; and all through, the love-theme exists and this is the first thing antagonistic to Śānta. Therefore Vīra and Śṛṅgāra, the former as Dayā-vīra, stand out prominently in the Nāgānanda.

यत्तु कैश्चिन्नागानन्दादौ शमस्य स्थायित्वमुपवर्णितम्, तत्तु मलयवत्यनुरागेण आप्रबन्धप्रवृत्तेन विद्याधरचक्रवर्तित्वप्राप्त्या विरुद्धम् । न ह्येकानुकार्यविभावालम्बनौ विषयानुरागापरागावुपलब्धौ । अतो दया-वीरोत्साहस्यात्र स्थायित्वम् । तत्रैव शृङ्गारस्य अङ्गत्वेन चक्रवर्तित्वादेश्च फलत्वेन अविरोधात् ईप्सितमेव च सर्वत्र कर्तव्यमिति परोपकारप्रवृत्तस्य विजिगीषोः नान्तरीयकत्वेन फलं संपद्यत इति आवेदितमेव प्राक् ।

DR. A., p. 117.

All the arguments given above cannot disprove the possibility of Śānta as a Rasa capable of being relished by spectators. It is bound to be uncommon; all the same, it is as true as the inner experience and the higher life of the mystic which has nothing in common with the life of ordinary worldly men. If Śama is not only a part of the world but a glorious part of it also, it should be so of the drama also. Abhinavagupta says that literature, poetry and drama, cannot restrict themselves to the trivarga only, but must become ennobled by embracing the fourth and the greatest Puruṣārtha also, Mokṣa. The attitude to Mokṣa is Śama and Śānta is the Rasa of the drama which depicts the endeavour to attain that.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 344.

To say that it is impossible to exterminate rāga and dveṣa is to insult humanity, its heritage of philosophy and the long succession of its spiritual leaders. Surely there are men of such bent of mind as can respond to a Śānta drama. That hedonists are not able to sit through it cannot disprove Śānta. It would be a pity if literature, and drama in particular, cannot rise beyond the level of mere entertainment and gaiety. It has been accepted that all cannot respond to all Rasa-s.¹ Surely Bhayānaka will not raise sympathy in a heroic spirit. Bharata himself gives the respective characters—prakṛti-s—who respond to the different Rasa-s. Bhaya and Jugupsā are emotions appropriate to nīca-prakṛti-s or less evolved minds; the highly evolved ones, uttama-sāmājika-s, do not feel a rapport on seeing them. If Viṭa-s, sensualists, delight in Śṛṅgāra, Vītarāga-s, those who are free of attachments, delight in Śānta.

MS, XXVII. 56-62.

There is a continuous chain of literature that depicts the supreme Rasa of Śānta. In Kāvya, Ānandavardhana argues in Dhva. Ā., Uddyota IV, that the Mahābhārata leads as the great epic of Śānta. All the vicissitudes of the Kaurava-s and the Pāṇḍava-s are only the vācya-vācaka, the pūrvapakṣa, prima facie meaning, of which the purpose is the suggestion of the fact that Śānta is the greatest objective for which man should strive.¹ The utter uselessness of even the great victory at Kurukṣetra, not to mention other worldly victories, is very well brought out by the epic. By the annihilation of even the race of Kṛṣṇa and by postulating Kṛṣṇa as the central personality, as the pivot of the plot, by calling the epic 'Nārāyaṇa-kathā', sage Vyāsa has made his message plain. The genius of Vyāsa would not have attempted anything lower than this.² If one finds relish and importance in the subsidiary themes of marriage,

² The following ideas and passages in the epic may be considered in this connection:

(a) In the first Adhyāya of the Anukramaṇikāparvan, the epic salutes Dharma and Kṛṣṇa, its promulgator and sustainer, and says that it shall speak of the eternal Dharma-s. If a work is a Dharma-śāstra in vācya-vācaka, it is a Mokṣa-śāstra in dhvani.

नमो धर्माय महते नमः कृष्णाय वेधसे ।

ब्राह्मणेभ्यो नमस्कृत्य धर्मान् वक्ष्यामि शाश्वतान् ॥ v. 3.

(b) In v. 32 of the same chapter Sauti says that the Bhārata is the story of the Lord Himself: यस्य प्रसादाद्वक्ष्यामि नारायणकथामिमाम् ।

(c) While giving the essential ideas of the great epic, it is said that the epic depicts the greatness of the Lord: वासुदेवस्य माहात्म्यम् . . . उक्तवान् भगवानृषिः ।

(d) युधिष्ठिरो धर्ममयो महाद्रुमः मूलं कृष्णो ब्रह्म च ब्राह्मणाश्च ॥

(e) In vv. 104-8 the epic is described as a tree and it is said in v. 106 that the great fruit of this tree is the Śāntiparvan, शान्तिपर्वमहाफलः ।

(f) At the end of the Anukramaṇikāparvan, Dhṛtarāṣṭra who is grieved at the loss of his sons is consoled by Saṃjaya who recited a hymn on Kāla, the all-devouring Time, on hearing which the old king obtained Dhṛti:

dice, suffering, fight, etc. it does not prevent another reader of nobler instincts and mystic disposition seeing through these, and deducing the greatness of the Lord, of Dharma, Śama and Mokṣa. To write in such a perfect manner as to

धृतराष्ट्रोऽपि तच्छ्रुत्वा धृतिमेव समाश्रयत् ।

दिष्टयेदमागतमिति मत्वा स प्राज्ञसत्तमः ॥ 278.

Immediately after this, the Mahābhārata is described as an Upaniṣad:

अत्रोपनिषदं पुण्यां कृष्णद्वैपायनोऽब्रवीत् ॥ 279.

(g) In v. 291, the Mahābhārata is likened to the Āraṇyaka-s among the Veda-s.

(h) In vv. 35-6, in the Parvasaṃgrahaparvan it is said that the wise seek the Mahābhārata, even as Vairāgya is sought by those who desire liberation; and that it is like Ātman among things one must realize:

विचित्रार्थपदाख्यानमनेकसमयान्वितम् ।

प्रतिपन्नं नरैः प्राज्ञैर्वैराग्यमिव मोक्षिभिः ॥

आत्मेव वेदितव्येषु . . . श्रेष्ठः सर्वागमेष्वयम् ॥ 35-6.

(i) At the end of the Parvasaṃgrahaparvan and at the end of the Mahāprasthānikaparvan, Dharma is sung of as the supreme good, not either Artha or Kāma. (I. 2. 392 and XVIII. 5. 76-7.)

(j) Chapter 62, Ādiparvan: It inculcates supreme wisdom and is a Mokṣa-śāstra:

अस्मिन्नर्थश्च कामश्च निखिलेनोपदेक्ष्यते ।

इतिहासे महापुण्ये बुद्धिश्च परिनैष्ठिकी ॥ 19.

धर्मशास्त्रमिदं पुण्यमर्थशास्त्रमिदं परम् ।

मोक्षशास्त्रमिदं प्रोक्तं व्यासेनामितबुद्धिना ॥ 25.

धर्मे चार्थे च कामे च मोक्षे च भरतर्षभ ।

यदिहास्ति तदन्यत्र यन्नेहास्ति न कुत्रचित् ॥ 26.

(k) Both in the beginning and end, all-devouring Kāla is sung of (I. 1. 272-5 and XVI. 9. 36-40.). This is for Vairāgya.

give Viśrānti for the readers in the Saṃcāri Rāsa-s and Saṃcāri themes also is not only not incompatible but is in

(l) The triumph of Time, the vanity of earthly glories and the inevitable Nirveda are described in a masterly manner when the great archer, Arjuna, tried again and again, but could not use his bow when before his very eyes the Yādava women were lifted by the Dasyu-s and Ābhīra-s:

ददर्शापदि कष्टायां गाण्डीवस्य परामवम् ।
सर्वेषां चैव दिव्यानामस्त्राणामप्रसन्नताम् ॥
नाशं वृष्णि कलत्राणां प्रभावाणामनित्यताम् ।
दृष्ट्वा निर्वेदमपान्नो व्यासवाक्यप्रचोदितः ॥
धर्मराजं समासाद्य संन्यासं समरोचयत् ॥ I. 2. 361-3.

In the second of his introductory verses in his commentary on the Bhagavad-gītā, Abhinavagupta says that the chief fruit of the epic of Vyāsa is Mokṣa, and that Dharma, etc. are for its development:

द्वैपायनेन मुनिना यदिदं व्यधायि
शास्त्रं सहस्रशतसंमितमत्र मोक्षः ।
प्राधान्यतः फलतया प्रथितस्तदन्य-
धर्मादि तस्य परिपोषयितुं प्रणीतम् ॥

Abhinavagupta's pupil, Kṣemendra, holds Śānta as the teaching of the Mahābhārata. He says at the end of his Bhāratamañjarī:

रत्नोदारचतुःसमुद्रशनां भुक्त्वा भुवं कौरवो
भग्नोरुः पतितः स निष्परिजनो जीवन् वृकैर्मक्षितः ।
गोपैर्विश्वजयी जितः स विजयः कक्षैः क्षिता वृष्णयः
तस्मात् सर्वमिदं विचार्य सुचिरं शान्त्यै मनो दीयतात् ॥

In fact, Kṣemendra would see ultimate Śānta even in the Rāmāyaṇa in which Ānandavardhana sees Karuṇa; Kṣemendra says at the end of his Rāmāyaṇamañjarī:

भोगार्हे नवयौवनेऽपि विपिने चीराम्बरो राघवः
तत्राप्यस्य परेण दारहरणं क्लेशस्तदन्वेषणे ।
संप्राप्तापि जनापवादरजसा त्यक्ता पुनर्जीनक्री
सर्वं दुःखमयं तदस्तु भवतां श्लाघ्यो विवेकोदयः ॥

perfect harmony with the chief Rasa and chief idea. Vide Dhva. Ā., Uddyota IV, p. 238. Also Abhinavagupta in his Abhi. Bhā.:

दृष्टः अङ्गेष्वपि विश्रान्तिलाभः, स्वभावौचित्यात्, यथा रामस्य
वीराङ्गे पितुराज्ञां पालयतः ।

GOS, I, p. 339.¹

Next in importance to the Mahābhārata are the two Śānta Rasa poems of Aśvaghoṣa, the Buddhacarita and the Saundarananda. The following is a list of other Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s:

1. The Rājataranginī of Kalhaṇa mentions Śānta as its Rasa (I. 23):

क्षणमङ्गिनि जन्तूनां स्फुरिते परिचिन्तिते ।

मूर्धाभिषेकः शान्तस्य रसस्यात्र विचार्यताम् ॥

No great history can escape the ultimate suggestion of the noble Rasa of Śānta.²

His Avadānakalpalatā is naturally a Śānta Rasa composition; Kṣemendra's son Somendra, who supplemented the work says in its introduction:

संतोषाय प्रशमसुखिनां निर्मितोऽयं प्रबन्धः ।

¹ The author of the Bhāgavata, in speaking of the Mahābhārata, says that in the great Epic, Vyāsa had described pravṛtti (as pūrvapakṣa) so much and so well, that man who is by nature attached to it, has mistaken the pūrvapakṣa itself for the siddhānta.

जुगुप्सितं धर्मकृतेऽनुशासतः

स्वभावरक्तस्य महान् व्यतिक्रमः ।

यद्वाक्यतो धर्म इतीतरः स्थितो

न मन्यते तस्य निवारणं जनः ॥ I. 5. 15.

² But Dr. Keith considers, in his History of Sanskrit Literature, that the Śānta in Kalhaṇa is a moral bias detracting from his merit as a historian.

2. Kaivalyavallīpariṇayavilāsa, a philosophical Kāvya written perhaps by a Travancore prince or poet attached to him. Bhakti, Kaṭākṣalakṣmī (the saving grace of the Lord), Brahmavidyā and Kaivalyavallī are some of the characters figuring in this poem. IO, 8133.

3. Jñānamudrāpariṇaya-kāvya. Oppert I, 5537; Auf., I, 210a.

4. Hamsasaṃdeśa, anonymous (different from Vedānta-deśika's Hamsasaṃdeśa and Rūpa's Hamsadūta). Vedānta. With a commentary in verse. Ptd. JRAS, 1884, pp. 450-1; TSS, 103.

5. Indudūta by Vinayavijayaṇi. A pupil sends the moon as messenger to convey to his preceptor his own spiritual progress. Ptd. Kāvya-mālā Guccaka 14, pp. 40-60.

6. Cetodūta. The theme is identical with that of the previous work. Ptd. Ātmānanda Granthamālā 25, Bhavanagar, 1924.

7. Bhaktidūtī by Kālīprasāda (23 verses). A message to the beloved called Mukti, through the maid Bhakti. Mitra, Notices, III, p. 27.

8. Manodūta by Viṣṇudāsa. Bhakti. IO, vol. II, Nos. 3897-9; Mitra, Notices, II, 613; Alwar, 944. Ptd. Saṃskṛta Sāhitya Pariṣat, Calcutta, 1937.

9. Manodūta by Rāmarāma. Bhakti. MS. No. 1282, Vaṅgīya Sāhitya Pariṣad, Calcutta.

10. Manodūtīkā on Jīva-Ātman relations. Stein, pp. 70, 287, and Introd. p. xxxv; Cabaton, Bibliothèque Nationale Catalogue, I, 449c. Same as Auf., I, p. 429a—Manodūtīkā, Vedānta, Paris, D. 253, III.

11. Manodūta, Jain. Jainagranthāvalī, p. 332.

12. Meghadūtasamasyālekha by Meghavijaya. This is a message to the author's Guru, like No. 5. Ptd. Ātmānanda-grantharatnamālā 24, Bhavanagar, 1964.

13. Manodūta by Indireśa. According to Puṣṭimārga. Ptd. Bombay, 1923. Br. Mu. Ptd. Bks. Cat., 1906-28, column 388.
14. Hṛdayadūta by Bhaṭṭa Harihara. MS. Weber, I, 571. Printed along with the previous Manodūta.
15. Śīladūta by Cāritrasundaragaṇi. Not a regular Dūtakāvya. Ptd. Śrī Yaśovijaya Jaina Granthamālā 14, Benaras, 1915.
16. Siddhadūta of Avadhūtarāma. Here, 'a Tāpasa is the lover, a Siddha is the dūta and Vidyā is the beloved'. MS. dated Saṃvat 1423, Bom. Br. R.A.S., 1235. Br. Mu. Ptd. Bks. Cat., 1906-28, column 452.
17. Jñānavilāsakāvya by Jagannātha. 'This is an allegorical Kāvya explaining the greatness of Vedānta.' TD, 3792.
18. Vijñānatarāṅgiṇī by Mahārudrasimha. A Kāvya on the life of Śaṃkaradāsa, a great devotee. TD, 3736.
19. Gītavītarāga by Abhinava Cārukīrtipaṇḍitācārya. This work is called Bāhubalīsvāmi-aṣṭapadī in a MS. in the Jain Mutt at Sravanabelagola. This is a Jain Śānta Rasa imitation of the Gītagovinda of Jayadeva. 2 MSS., Mysore, I, p. 246.
20. Ātmavilāsa, also called Gītagāmodara, is another imitation of the Gītagovinda, but has the purpose of dealing with different religious schools and extolling Bhakti-rasa. See Descriptive Catalogue of MSS., BORI, Poona, vol. IX, 1, 149, 150; each of its seven cantos is devoted to a school—Dvaita, Viśiṣṭādvaita, Kevalādvaita, Śuddhādvaita and finally Bhakti.
21. Kalikalmaṣakautuka is an allegorical Campū in which the author Kṛṣṇakānta Vidyāvāgīśa of Navadvīpa (c. A.D. 1868) deals with the good and bad of the Kali age. Hpr., Report on search for Skt. MSS., 1901-6, p. 9.

22. Madanaparājaya by Nāgadeva (c. 14th cent. A.D.) is another allegorical Campū. Ptd. Bhāratīya Jñānapīṭha Granthamālā, Skt. Series 1, 2nd ed., 1964.

The Mahākāvya-s or Campū-s describing the lives of the saints and religious teachers are Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s. We have thus several Śaṅkaravijaya-s on the Advaita teacher, Yatirājavijaya, Vedāntācāryavijaya and Divyasūricarita on the Śrīvaiṣṇava teachers, the Madhvavijaya on the Dvaita teacher and so on. Mahākāvya-s on the stories of Rāma and Kṛṣṇa will also fall in this category so far as their ultimate devotional motive is concerned. So also those composed on themes derived from the Purāṇa-s, on the stories of Śiva and on the greatness (Māhātmya-s) of kṣetra-s or sacred places. There are also pilgrimage Kāvya-s like Vādirāja's Tīrthaprabandha and Samarapuṅgava's *Yātrāprabandha*¹ which too are Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s. The Citra-campū of Bāṇeśvara (A.D. 1744) is based on Vaiṣṇavite Vedāntism, the soul's pilgrimage to Vṛndāvana. A large number of Jain Campū-s on the lives of the Śālākāpuruṣa-s would also come under the Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s.²

Among dramas, Aśvaghoṣa's seem to be the earliest to have Śānta as their dominant Rasa. His Śāriputraprakaraṇa deals with the conversion of the hero to the Buddhist faith and another of his dramatic fragments discovered by Dr. Lüders shows an allegorical philosophical play. Long after this, without any memory of Aśvaghoṣa's play, Jayanta Bhaṭṭa, the great logician of Kashmir, conceived on his own, in the tenth century A.D., a novel type of play as he himself remarks in the prologue, in his Āgamaḍambara or Śaṅmatanāṭaka, which is relevant to our tracing the history of the Śānta Rasa plays.

² Somadeva in his Yaśastilakacampū (III. 274) describes Kāvya as navacchāya, having nine Rasa-s, i.e. including Śānta.

In four acts, Jayanta presents here the heretical sects of Buddhism, Jainism, the depraved sects of Nīlāmbara-s, Kāpālika-s and Kālamukha-s, and then the Vaiṣṇava Pāñcārātra, not based on the authority of the Veda. Exponents of these are defeated in debate or otherwise dealt with by the protagonist of Nyāya philosophy coupled with Śaiva religion and in the end the Nyāya-Śaiva teacher makes the pronouncement that all paths, rightly followed, lead to the same goal, and exhorts adherents of all schools to eschew corrupt practices. Written earlier than the play of Kṛṣṇamiśra, Jayanta's play, which had remained in oblivion so far, supplies a significant link in the chain of Śānta Rasa plays.¹ After Jayanta and about the time of Abhinavagupta, Kṛṣṇamiśra (c. A.D. 1098) wrote his Advaita allegory, the Prabodhacandrodaya,² which, if we leave out the Āgamaḍambara of Jayanta, may be taken to have inaugurated a regular category of philosophical and allegorical plays. The following plays of this class were produced, in different parts of the country, to propagate the several schools of philosophical and religious thought:

1. Moharājaparājaya by Yaśaḥpāla. Jain. (c. A.D. 1229-32) Ptd. GOS 9.

¹ See my account of this play in Saṃskṛta Raṅga Annual, III, Madras, 1963, pp. 57-70. An edition of this on the basis of the two available MSS. is to appear through the Mithila Institute of Sanskrit Studies, Darbhanga.

² There seems to be an abridged version of the Prabodhacandrodaya of Kṛṣṇamiśra, Laghu-prabodhacandrodaya-nāṭaka, BORI, 239 of Viś. I. There seems to be a Prabodhacandrodaya-kāvya also in four Ullāsa-s. A MS. of this work is noticed in the private diary of R. A. Sastri, now deposited with the New Catalogus Catalogorum section, Dept. of Sanskrit, University of Madras, on

2. Amṛtodaya by Gokulanātha. Nyāya. (16th cent. A.D.) Ptd. KM 59.

3. Samkalpasūryodaya by Veṅkaṭanātha. Viśiṣṭādvaita. (14th cent. A.D.) Ptd. Adyar Library Series 65, 1948.

4. Caitanyacandrodaya by Kavikarṇapūra. Caitanya. (c. A.D. 1550) Ptd. KM 87.

5. Dharmavijaya by Śuklabhūdeva. Ptd. Grantha-ratnamālā, Bombay; Sarasvati Bhavana Texts No. 35. MSS. in many catalogues. There is also a commentary on this by the author's pupil Bhavānīśaṃkara. IO, 4183.

6. Bhāvanāpuruṣottama by Ratnakheṭa Śrīnivāsadīkṣita, father of Rājacūḍāmaṇidīkṣita. Advaita. TD, 4427-4429; Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts, V, Adyar, No. 1431.

7. Muktipariṇaya by Sundaradeva. TD, 4460. N.W. Provinces Cat., pt. VII, p. 46.

8. Vidyāpariṇayana by Ānandarāyamakhin. Advaita. (c. A.D. 1684-1728) Ptd. KM 39.¹

9. Jīvanmuktikalyāṇa by Nallādīkṣita. Advaita. Mysore, I, pp. 276, 637; Adyar, II, p. 27b; IO, Keith, pp. 1224-5. Serially published in the Samkaragurukulapatrikā, Srirangam, vol. 3, April-June, 1941 ff.

10. Cittavṛttikalyāṇa by Nallādīkṣita.² Mentioned by him in his Jīvanmuktikalyāṇa. IO, Keith, p. 1225a; Rice, p. 256; Auf., I, 207b.

p. 34 of part I, as existing in the Pyara Candra Jain Big Mandir, Sailana State (Malwa, C.I.).

¹ This author wrote an Āyurveda allegory called Jīvānandana, (KM 27; ALS 59) in which religion also figures; the real author of both is Veda Kavi.

² Mallāsomayājīn is the same author (Rice, p. 256). Keith's remark on p. 1225a of his IO catalogue and on p. 1695b, Index, that Mallādīkṣita is the correct name and 'Nallā' is incorrect, is wrong. The name of this well-known South Indian author is Nallādīkṣita.

11. Pracaṇḍarāhūdaya by Ghanaśyāma.¹ TD, 4388.
12. Siddhāntabherināṭaka by Sudarśanācārya. Viśiṣṭādvaita (?). Mysore, I, p. 286.
13. Anumitiṭpariṇaya by Nṛsiṃhakavi of Triplicane, Madras. Marriage between Anumiti, daughter of Parāmarśa, with Nyāyarasika. This play is of little philosophical interest; it is on the subject of logic. MD, 12463.
14. Vivekaviṇaya by Rāmānuja Kavi, son of Pūrṇaguru and grandson of Rāmānujaguru, of Sriperumbudur near Madras. The triumph of Viveka over passions. MD. 12683-4; Adyar, Descriptive Catalogue, vol. V, no. 1557.
15. Bhaktivaibhavanāṭaka by Rājaguru Vāhinīpati Mm. Jivadeva, son of Trilocanācārya of Puri, patronized by King Pratāparudradeva. On Kṛṣṇabhakti. MT, 3752.
16. Mithyājñānakhaṇḍana by Ravidāsa. A short allegorical play in one act. IO, 4200; Bombay Br. R.A.S. 1289-90 and many other catalogues also.
17. Mudritakumudacandra by Yaśaścandra. A dramatization of a philosophical debate. Bom. Br. R.A.S. 1292. Ptd. Yašovijaya Jaina Granthamālā 8.
18. Pūrṇapuruṣārthacandrodaya by Jātavedas of Viśvāmitragotra. The author later became an ascetic. On the union of Ānandapakvavallī and King Daśāśva, lord of the ten senses, i.e. Ātman. MD, 12540-1. MD, 14602 is a metrical resumé of the story of this play. There are two copies of a commentary on this drama. Descriptive Catalogue of Skt. MSS. in the Curator's Office Library, Trivandrum. Nos. 1287-88.

19. Prabodhodayanātaka by Śukleśvaranātha. The several systems of philosophy dispute here in a debate in the court of King Bhagavantarāya. Hpr., Notices, IInd series, vol. III, No. 190, pp. 122-4.

20. Śivanārāyaṇabhañjamahodayanāṭikā by Narasiṃhamiśra who lived under the patronage of Śiva Nārāyaṇa Bhañja, Rāja of Keonjhar. An allegorical play from Orissa. The work ends with Jīvanmukti. Hpr., Report on search for Skt. MSS., 1895-1900, published by the Asiatic Soc., Bengal, Calcutta, 1901, p. 18. (Hpr. Notices, IInd Series, vol. IV, 1911, No. 196.)

21. Śrinivāsaratnavijayanāṭikā on the same plan as the above by the same author Narasiṃha, this time on another worthy personality of Orissa, and ending in Jīvanmukti in the last act, as in the previous play. MT, 3705.

22. Jñānasūryodayanātaka by Vādicandra. Jain. Hiralal, Central Provinces Catalogue, p. 646, No. 7252; Granthānāmāvali, Ailak Pannalal Digambar Jain Sarasvati Bhavan, Jhalrapatan, p. 30; Peterson, II, 198; III, 401. See Pathak, JBRAS, 18, p. 223.¹

23. Tārābhaktitaranṅinī contains two allegorical dramatic sequences in which Kali, Dharma, Viveka, etc. figure as characters. The work as a whole, however, is not a drama. Mitra, Notices, 1607.

24. Satsaṅgavijayanātaka by Vaijanātha. Cat. of Skt. MSS. in the Private Libs. of Gujarat, Kathiawad, Kacch, Sindh and Khandesh by Bühler, II, p. 124, No. 54.

25. Svānubhūtinātaka by Anantapaṇḍita, son of Tryambaka Paṇḍita. MS. dated Samvat 1705. S. R. Bhandarkar,

Besides these, there are many late dramas on the lives of the religious leaders, saints and devotees of Śiva and Viṣṇu. Rāmānujācārya's career is dramatized in the Yatirājaviṅṇaya or Vedāntavilāsa by Varadācārya of Kāñcī (MD, 12696-12700; TD, 4486; Mysore I, p. 281; Adyar II, p. 30a). Śivabhaktā- nandanāṭaka (MT, 5092 and 5520) is on the life of one of the Śaivite saints. Such dramas are more truly spiritual; for their portrayal of the religious and spiritual career of such personalities is more effective than the presentation of abstract spiritual ideas as characters on the stage. A love-story evokes love and, for this purpose, one does not write a play in which Śṛṅgāra figures as a character with Madhu, Viraha, etc. as other characters. Thus dramas on the life of saints and devotees are Śānta Rasa plays. The Bhartṛharinirvedanāṭaka of Harihara (Kāvya-mālā 29) is a Śānta play of a conception far superior to other specimens though the author is somewhat unequal to the theme. The prastāvanā says that it is a Śānta play and that the Śānta Rasa is the only lasting Rasa.

Even in dramas on Rāma, Kṛṣṇa and Śiva, which are very large in number, there is Bhakti and through it Śānta is depicted as the ultimate Rasa, though the drama by itself has a different and definite Rasa in its theme. For, it is devotion to these forms of God that prompteth the poets to write and it is devotion that is the result in the hearts of the spectators. The actual Rasa of the play in such cases will thus be a Rasavat, subordinated to Bhakti and Śānta which form the Rasa-s ultimately suggested, Parama-dhvani.

The Śānta Rasa is accepted by a majority of writers. The earliest writer now known to mention it is Udbhāṭa. He simply mentions it in his Kaśś but must have dealt with it at greater length, perhaps refuting the opposition to it also, in his now lost commentary on the Nāṭya-śāstra. Lollaṭa certainly recognized it, for as will be seen in a further section of this book, Lollaṭa recognizes numerous Rasa-s. If he had admitted many minor Bhāva-s as capable of becoming Rasa-s, he must certainly have admitted Śānta, which his predecessor had accepted.

तेन आनन्येऽपि रसानां पार्षदप्रसिद्ध्या एतावतामेव प्रयोज्यत्वमिति
यद् भट्टल्लटेन निरूपितम्, तदवलेपेनापरामृश्येत्यलम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 299 (also on p. 341).

But Lollaṭa seems to have made a compromise with the conservatives as regards the number of Rasa-s by appealing to pārṣadaprasiddhi as certifying only a few as Rasa-s. This 'vogue in circles of connoisseurs', Lollaṭa says, speaks only of these as Rasa-s, as capable of portrayal on the stage (prayojya). The words 'these only' (etāvatām eva) in Lollaṭa perhaps refer only to the old eight. That Śānta also is included and the word "these" refers to nine has to be confirmed by a more definite evidence. We have no clue to know Śaṅkuka's attitude towards Śānta. From the number of views on the Sthāyin of Śānta which Abhinavagupta reviews and which must have been the views of the previous commentators of Bharata, we can guess that Śaṅkuka also accepted Śānta. Rudraṭa recognizes Śānta and gives Samyagjñāna or Tattvajñāna as its Prakṛti or Sthāyin, ch. VII, 3. He describes it in ch. XV, 15-16:

सम्यग्ज्ञानप्रकृतिः शान्तो विगतेच्छनायको भवति ।

सम्यग्ज्ञानं विषये तमसो रागस्य चापगमात् ॥

जन्मजरामरणादित्रासो वैराग्यवासना विषये ।

सम्यग्ज्ञानं स्थायिभावः । विभावस्तु शब्दादिविषयस्वरूपम् । अनुभावो जन्मादित्रासादयः ।

Comm. on above by Namisādhū, KM 2, p. 166.

Namisādhū adds that it is improper to deny the existence of Śānta as a Rasa:

Ānandavardhana not only recognizes the Śānta but also argues for its acceptance, illustrating it from the Nāgānanda—

यथा शान्तशृङ्गारौ नागानन्दे निवेशितौ ।

Dhva. Ā., KM ed., 1928, p. 176

and gives tr̥ṣṇāksayasukha as its Sthāyin. Rājaśekhara's Kāvya-mīmāṃsā might have recognized the Śānta in its lost chapter called Rasādhikārika, since Rājaśekhara follows Rudraṭa to a large extent. Bhaṭṭa Tota accepts it and from a remark of Abhinavagupta at the end of the Śānta section in the Locana, we see that Tota's Kāvya-kautuka contains an elaborate examination of the objections to Śānta and gives a brilliant exposition of it as the greatest Rasa.

मोक्षफलत्वेन चायं परमपुरुषार्थनिष्ठत्वात् सर्वरसेभ्यः प्रधानतमः । स चायमसदुपाध्यायभट्टतोतेन काव्यकौतुके, अस्माभिश्च तद्विवरणे बहु-तरकृतनिर्णयः पूर्वपक्षसिद्धान्त इत्यलं बहुना । Locana, p. 178.

Abhinavagupta accepts it as the greatest Rasa in his three works, his lost commentary on his teacher's Kāvya-kautuka, his

Locana and his Abhinavabhāratī. Abhinavagupta's predecessor and ancestor, the author of the Candrikā on the Dhvanyāloka, accepts the Śānta but gives the ruling that it can appear as an element in the subsidiary plot of the drama but never as the leading Rasa (Locana, p. 178). This has been pointed out already. The view of the Candrikā represents one stage in the history of Śānta. It grants that Śānta is a Rasa but holds it still unworthy of the honour of being the leading Rasa. The next stage is the recognition of it as an Ādhikārika Rasa, the Rasa of the main theme, but permissible as an Ādhikārika Rasa only in a Kāvya; in Nāṭaka, it should only be a Prāsaṅgika Rasa, the Rasa of a subsidiary episode. The last stage is its complete acceptance, as Ādhikārika in Nāṭaka also, and as the greatest of all Rasa-s, synthesizing all the other Rasa-s in itself. Bhaṭṭanāyaka accepts it and, like Abhinavagupta, holds it as the greatest Rasa. Taking the very first verse of the Nāṭya-śāstra, nāṭyaśāstram pravakṣyāmi brahmaṇā yad udāhṛtam, Bhaṭṭanāyaka imaginatively interprets this as suggesting the Śānta Rasa.¹ Brahmaṇā yad udāhṛtam does not mean 'the Śāstra which was introduced by Brahmā', but 'drama which is compared to the Brahman or the Absolute of Vedānta'. The Nāṭa is like the Brahman; upon him is created the world of drama, as this world upon the substratum of the Brahman. Drama is māyā and the nature of its reality is anirvacanīya, indescribable. Though fundamentally non-existent in the sense in which the Nāṭa and the Brahman exist as realities, both this world and drama do exist. Both help in the attainment of the Puruṣārtha-s. The essence of this view is given by him in his maṅgalaśloka to his now lost

Hṛdayadarpaṇa (See Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, pp. 4-5). Bhaṭṭa-nāyaka seems to have accepted as genuine the Śānta text found in Bharata.

शान्तरसोपक्षेपोऽयं भविष्यति 'स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्तादुत्पद्यते रसः' इति । तदनेन पारमार्थिकं प्रयोजनमुक्तमिति व्याख्यानं हृदयदर्पणे पर्यग्रहीत । यदाह—

नमस्त्रैलोक्यनिर्माणकवये शंभवे यतः ।

Later again, in chapter 27 on the Siddhi-s, Abhinavagupta has occasion to quote Bhaṭṭanāyaka and point out, along with him, that Śānta is the ultimate basis of all Rasa-s and that this is indirectly hinted at by Bharata.

सोऽप्ययं सिद्धयंशो दैवः शान्तरसस्य समस्तरसप्रकृतितां 'स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्तादुत्पद्यते रसः' इति वदता मु(सू)चित एव । स्पष्टतया तु नोक्तः, रहस्यार्थस्य (त्वात्), अन्यपरत्वाच्च शास्त्रस्य । तदुक्तं भट्टनायकेन, etc. Abhi. Bhā. Mad. MS., III, p. 87. GOS, III, pp. 304-5 (corrupt).

Kuntaka accepts Śānta and considers it as the Rasa of the Rāmāyaṇa (Vj, De's ed., 1928, p. 239). Kṣemendra accepts it as can be seen from his Aucityavicāracarcā, pp. 130-1. Not only does he, following Abhinavagupta and Ānandavardhana, consider Śānta as the Rasa of the Mahābhārata (see v. 3 at the end of his Bhāratamañjarī) but of the Rāmāyaṇa too, of which Ānandavardhana considers Karuṇa as the Rasa. Kṣemendra says that the Karuṇa itself is the argument for Śānta being the ultimate Rasa (see v. 1 at the end of his Rāmāyaṇamañjarī). Śānta is the Rasa of Kṣemendra's Bauddhāvadāna-kalpalatā and some of his minor works, Darpadalana, etc.

Bhoja accepts Śānta both in his SKĀ and Śr. Pra. Most of the later writers accept it. The Viṣṇudharmottara accepts it (III. 30. 2, 8, 9) and holds it as independent and standing apart from the other eight Rasa-s, four of which are primary ones giving rise to the other four; and as having the Supreme Being as its presiding deity and Vairāgya as its Sthāyin:

शान्तो रसः स्वतन्त्रोऽत्र पृथगेव व्यवस्थितः ।

* * * * *

शान्तस्य देवो विज्ञेयः परः पुरुष एव तु ।

* * * * *

शान्तस्य तु समुत्पत्तिः नृप वैराग्यतः स्मृता ॥

The critics who do not accept Śānta are mainly writers on Dramaturgy proper. They think they are loyal to Bharata by denying it. This attitude begins, as far as extant works go, in the Daśarūpaka, the model and source for many a later work on Rūpaka. Dhanamjaya and Dhanika, both refute it and argue for its impossibility in drama.

शममपि केचित् प्राहुः पुष्टिर्नाट्येषु नैतस्य ।¹ DR, IV, 33.

From this it would appear that Dhanamjaya denies Śānta only in drama but accepts it in Kāvya. But, as a matter of fact, Dhanamjaya, as interpreted by Dhanika, does not recognize it even in Kāvya (see p. 124). Mammaṭa first says

¹ D. T. Tatacharya misunderstands this Śama, the Bhāva which is given here as the Sthāyin of Śānta, as something not having anything to do with Śānta and as something new and distinct from Śānta. He says incorrectly: 'Dhanamjaya seems to accept Śama as distinct from Śānta Rasa, which, he thinks, has no place in drama.' (JOR, vol. 5, p. 28.)

बिभ्रद् रसान्तरभूमिकां * * * नवमो रसः । ibid. I. 3.

Dhanamjaya further says that the mental condition in the state of relish, kāvyaśvāda, is of four forms: vikāsa, vistāra, kṣobha and vikṣepa, answering to the four primary Rasa-s of Śṛṅgāra, Vīra, Bībhatsa and Raudra, together with their four derivative Rasa-s, Hāsyā, Adbhuta, Bhayānaka and Karuṇa (IV. 43-4). A fifth or ninth state is therefore not possible in drama; but if it is introduced in Kāvya, in the form of a description of its accessory factors like Muditā, Maitrī, Karuṇā, Upekṣā, etc. they must come under one of the four states, vikāsa, etc.

अथ तदुपायभूतो मुदितामैत्रीकरुणोपेक्षादिलक्षणः, तस्य च विकास-
विस्तारक्षोभविक्षेपरूपतैवेति । तदुक्त्यैव शान्तरसास्वादो निरूपितः ।

DRA, IV. 45-6.

To grant it in Kāvya and to deny it in Nāṭya is as clumsy a compromise as the one which grants it inherent Rasa-character and denies it conventional vogue as a Rasa. Kāvya is, in essence, only drama and this Abhinavagupta has emphasized in his *Abhi. Bhā.*¹ If it is possible to develop the Śānta as the theme of a Kāvya, equally is it possible to handle it as the motif of a drama.

There are other writers who are not so antagonistic towards Śānta as to deny it totally. They are not Abhāvavādin-s but are Antarbhāvavādin-s. The aspect called the quietistic is no doubt available in Kāvya and Nāṭya but one need not recognize it as a special and separate Rasa with the name Śānta which Bharata does not speak of. We can have it and relish it as a variety of one of the Rasa-s already given.

by Bharata. Thus, for instance, some writers include Śānta in Vīra and say that Śānta is nothing but Dayā-vīra. This view cannot however explain all cases of Śānta but it owes its origin to the fact that it was the Nāgānanda that was at first kept in view by the sponsors and detractors of Śānta. Others try to include it in Jugupsā. Inclusion in many other Bhāva-s is possible as will be shown in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta. But in all these cases the Antarbhāvā-vādin-s mistake a Saṃcārin, though an ābhyantara one, for the Sthāyin. Vīra, as emphasizing the ego, as ahaṃkāra-pradhāna, goes ill with Śānta which is the very negation of ahaṃkāra. If there are certain varieties of selfless Vīra like Dayā-vīra, Dharma-vīra and Dāna-vīra, they must be brought under the mahāviṣaya, namely the Śānta, and not vice versa. So also Jugupsā, etc.¹ These are at best very prominent and frequently appearing accessories. We can say:

कस्यचिच्छान्तभेदस्य स तु स्यादुपलक्षणम् ।

Dayā-vīra, etc. may be some cases of Śānta, not all cases of Śānta. Śānta comprehends all the forty-nine Bhāva-s as also its Vyabhicārin-s. It cannot be included in any of these. Suddha-jugupsā, Dayā-vīra, Vicitra-ratyādīsthāyapaṭaka—these are, each of them, a kind or a case of Śānta; they cannot define Śānta. If, in spite of the fundamental difference between Śama and Utsāha, some want to include Śānta in Vīra, because both have Utsāha of a sāttvika form in them, all the Rasa-s can be included in Vīra, for there is hardly any activity without Utsāha. If because of the sāttvika nature of the Utsāha in Śānta and Vīra, the two are made into one, Vīra and Raudra can as well be made into one, because both carry out the destruction of the enemy. This antarbhāva-vāda is dealt with at greater length in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Śānta is the Rasa of Śama, or Tattvajñāna or realization of Self. The whole world may be its Uddīpana-vibhāva, especially pilgrimage, resort to solitude, company of the good, etc. Its Ālambana-vibhāva is, in cases where it is oriented to devotion, a personal God, and in other cases, the Ātman or the Brahman. Those who have accepted Śānta give it all the Rasa-details which Bharata gives to other Rasa-s, namely its varṇa (colour), devatā (presiding deity), vṛtti, guṇa, etc. The original text of Bharata on the rasa-devatā-s reads adbhuto brahmadaivataḥ (VI. 50). Abhinavagupta says that according to the Śānta-advocates, the text reads thus:

वीरो महेन्द्रदेवः स्याद् बुद्धः शान्तोऽब्जजोऽद्भुतः—इति शान्त-
वादिनः केचित् पठन्ति । बुद्धो जिनः परोपकारैकपरः, प्रबुद्धो वा ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 300.

Abhinavagupta says that either the Buddha or the enlightened soul in general is the devatā of Śānta. The mention of the Buddha in the amended text is tell-tale and shows the hand of some writer like Rāhula. It confirms our surmise in an earlier section of this book that the Buddhists might have ushered the Śānta in. It is natural that Viśvanātha clearly stated

Nārāyaṇa as the devatā of Śānta, Śrī Nārāyaṇadaivataḥ. The *Alaṃkārasaṃgraha*¹ of Amṛtānanda considers Parabrahman as its presiding deity and the permanent abode of the Lord the Ālambana. The Alaṃkārasarvasva of Harṣopādhyāya (?), written for one Gopāladeva, makes the supreme spirit, Parabrahman, the devatā of Śānta.² Regarding the colour of Śānta, one naturally expects it to be pure white, to be in consonance with the purity and knowledge that characterize it. Viśvanātha describes it as kundendusundaracchāyaḥ. So also did Abhinavagupta; according to him, advocates of Śānta changed the text pītaś caivādbhutaḥ smṛtaḥ into svacchapītau śamādbhutau.

स्वच्छपीतौ शमाद्भुतौ इति शान्तवादिनां पाठः । GOS, I, p. 299.

However, in view of the fundamental and equanimous character of Śānta, it would be proper, according to Abhinavagupta, to hold Śānta as being above all these correlations of colour, etc.

सर्वसाम्याच्च विशेषतो वर्णदेवताभिधानमनुचितमप्यस्य तत्कल्पितमिति ज्ञेयम् ।
Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 341.

The Vṛtti of Śānta is given by Abhinavagupta as the Sāttvatī, because the Sāttvatī-vṛtti is described by him as full of Sattva-guṇa.³

शान्ते तु सात्त्वत्येव वृत्तिरिति । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 341.

² MT, 3325. In MT, 5225, another MS. of the same work in the same Library, the author is given as Aubhalārya Kṛṣṇa of Devarakoṇḍa.

³ Regarding this false etymology, of Sāttvatī from Sattva, see my article on the Vṛtti-s, JOR, vol. 7, pp. 38-44.

Later in NS, chapter 20, dealing with Vṛtti-s, in the verses apportioning the Rasa-s among the four Vṛtti-s, the line relating to Sāttvatī was read by the advocates of Śānta as:

सात्त्वती चापि विज्ञेया वीराद्भुतशमाश्रया । (V. 73)

Others read the line as virādbhutasamāśrayā:

अत्र शमशब्दः (देन) शान्तरसपरिग्रह इति तद्वादिनो मन्यन्ते ।

‘समाश्रया’ इत्यन्ये पठन्ति ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, III, p. 105.

But, correctly speaking, the real Vṛtti of Śānta cannot be any of the four nor can it be any one of the four in the several situations according to the Vyabhicārin-s. In the case of a drama involving Bhakti or devotion to a personal God, the Vṛtti is Kaiśikī. According to Kollūri Rājaśekhara, author of the Sāhityakalpadruma, the eight Rasa-s, in four pairs, are born from the four Veda-s, and the Śānta from the Upaniṣad-s: śāntas tūpaniṣad-gaṇāt.¹

The Samgītasudhākara of king Haripāladeva (Madras MS.)² which, as will be seen presently, gives Śānta as a less basic Rasa and introduces a permanent quietistic Rasa called Brāhma, which latter corresponds to the Śānta of others, postulates the Vṛtti of this basic Brāhma-rasa as the Brāhmī-vṛtti. In the fight of Viṣṇu with the two demons, Madhu and Kaiṭabha, in which incident the four Vṛtti-s are said to have arisen, Brahmā was a spectator and Haripāla makes this taṭastha or 'spectator' Brahmā, the source of his Brāhmī-vṛtti. This Vṛtti he ascribes not only to the Brāhma-rasa, but to Śānta and Adbhuta also. Brahmā is the deity of Adbhuta in the old text of Bharata also. Brahmā is thus the deity of Śānta and Brāhma Rasa-s according to Haripāla:

कैशिक्यारमटी ब्राह्मी सात्त्वती भारती तथा ॥

ब्राह्मी नाम भवेद्वृत्तिः ब्राह्मशान्ताद्भुताश्रया ।

ब्राह्मी ब्रह्मोद्भवा तत्र शेषा नारायणोद्भवाः ॥ Mad. MS., p. 19.

Regarding the guṇa of Rasa-s, Ānandavardhana says that mādhurya is the guṇa of Śṛṅgāra (Sambhoga), Vipralambha and Karuṇa. This guṇa is sweetness and the melting of the heart. Really speaking this mādhurya, applicable to worldly sweetness or citta-druti of a worldly nature, cannot apply to Śānta. Perhaps prasāda may fit Śānta, for, above all, Śama is the tranquillity and transparence of the cittavṛtti or antaḥ-karaṇa which had become tarnished with the dust of this world. Prasāda which shows the total absence of rāga and dveṣa is the nearest approach to the taṭasthatā of Śānta. But Hemacandra considers that in Śānta, mādhurya exists in a high degree.

Kāvyaṇuśāsana, IV, p. 201..

सातिशयमिति—अत्यन्तद्रुतिहेतुत्वात् । Comm. ibid.

Jagannātha also has similar views. He says that mādhurya is present in the greatest degree in Śānta.

तत्र शृङ्गारे संयोगारुख्ये यन्माधुर्यं ततोऽतिशयितं करुणे, ताभ्यां विप्रलम्भे, तेभ्योऽपि शान्ते । RG, p. 53.

In this respect, both Hemacandra and Jagannātha only follow Mammaṭa who says:

आह्लादकत्वं माधुर्यं शृङ्गारे द्रुतिकारणम् ।

करुणे विप्रलम्भे तच्छान्ते चातिशयान्वितम् ॥ K. Pra., VIII. 3.

These writers seem to have in their mind the state of spiritual realization or brahmāsvāda or the realization of ānanda, that being the end of Śānta Rasa. Surely bliss unalloyed is sweetest.

The objectors to the Śānta mentioned among their arguments that when prescribing appropriate music, tempo, etc. for each Rasa, Bharata did not mention any of these for Śānta.¹ This is not correct with regard to every element of the text or its production on the stage, for in the chapter on the gati, gait, appropriate to each character (ch. 12), Bharata deals elaborately with the gait suited to recluses, hermits, those performing penance and austerity and particular classes of religious persons (vv. 78-86).²

यच्चान्यैः रौद्रानन्तरं शान्तरसाभिप्रायेण पठितं . . . तदनर्थमेव . . . स्वकल्पितमेवेत्युपेक्ष्यम् ।
Abhi. Bhā., GOS, II, p. 150.

III

In this section I propose to speak of some peculiar and original views expressed by some writers on the Śānta Rasa.

THE RASAKALIKĀ OF RUDRABHAṬṬA

In the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta it will be seen that Nirveda, Tṛṣṇākṣayasukha, Vairāgya, Tattvajñāna, etc. make their claim to be the Sthāyin of Śānta. Each of these helps the other and shades off into the other. All of them form aspects of the one Rasa of Śānta. So it seems to Rudrabhaṭṭa, the author of the Rasakalikā, an unpublished work on Rasa preserved in two parts in two MSS. in the Govt. Oriental Manuscripts Library, Madras (Nos. MT, 2241 and 3274).¹

¹ The two MSS. make the work almost complete; but there still seems to be some portion missing. On p. 32 of MT 2241, there is a Cāṭu on a king named Arjuna. This Rasakalikā is identical with the Rasakalikā which is quoted by Vāsudeva in his commentary on the Karpūramañjarī (KM ed.). All the six verses cited by Vāsudeva are found in the Rasakalikā in these Madras MSS. There are two copies, an original and a transcript, of the Rasakalikā in the Mysore Oriental Library.

There is no indication of the author in the MSS. of this work. But we are able to know that one Rudrabhaṭṭa was its author from the external evidence of a Kanarese treatise on Rasa, the Rasaratnākara of Sālva (16th cent.). Sālva says that he draws upon Amṛtānanda, Hemacandra, Rudrabhaṭṭa and Vidyānātha. While dealing with the Uddīpana-Vibhāva-s, Sālva says that

He says first that Śama is the Sthāyin of Śānta (MT, 2241, p. 7) and then describes on page 9 that Śama is the untinted, rippleless state of the mind which is acquired through Vairāgya, etc.

शमो वैराग्यादिना निर्विकारचित्तत्वम् । यथा—

अशीमहि वयं भिक्षाम् आशावासो वसीमहि ।

शयीमहि महीपृष्ठे कुर्वीमहि किमीश्वरैः ॥ MT, 2241, p. 9.

What other things does he mean besides Vairāgya when he says vairāgya-ādinā? He explains this on page 47. He says that even as Vira is of the forms of Dāna-, Dayā-, Yuddha- and Dharma- Vira-s, Śānta also has four Prakāra-s or phases or forms: Vairāgya, Doṣa-nigraha, Saṃtoṣa and Tattva-sākṣātkāra.

अथ शान्तः—

विषयेभ्यो विरक्तस्य तत्त्वज्ञस्य विवेकिनः ।

रागादिनिर्विकारत्वं शान्तिरित्यभिधीयते ॥

सा चतुर्विधा—वैराग्यम्, दोषनिग्रहः, संतोषः, तत्त्वसाक्षात्कारिता चेति ।

विषयेभ्यो निवृत्तिर्वैराग्यम् . . . । रागाद्यभावो दोषनिग्रहः

तृष्णोन्मूलनं संतोषः . . . । तत्त्वसाक्षात्कारः ॥ pp. 47-8.

Here Vairāgya and the other three are spoken of not as means to Śama but as forms of Śama or Śānta itself.

Rudrabhaṭṭa mentions them as four in his Rasakalikā (Rasaratnākara, Madras University Kanarese Series No. 2, ed. by A. Venkata Rao and Pandit H. Sesha Ayyangar, p. 11). On pp. 188-9 of this ed., is found an appendix containing all the passages of the Rasakalikā quoted by Śālva.

THE SAṂGĪTASUDHĀKARA OF HARIPĀLADEVA

Unlike most of the later writers, king Haripāla boldly wrote on independent lines, creating new concepts. He accepts thirteen Rasa-s: the old eight of Bharata, Śānta, Vātsalya (which comes down from Rudraṭa's time), and three absolutely new Rasa-s, Saṁbhoga, Vipralambha and Brāhma. He expressly says that the last three are new and distinct Rasa-s according to his view.

शृङ्गारो हास्यनामा च बीभत्सः करुणस्तथा ।

वीरो भयानकाह्वानो रौद्राख्योऽद्भुतसंज्ञकः ॥

शान्तो ब्राह्माभिधः पश्चाद् वात्सल्याख्यस्ततः परम् ।

संभोगो विप्रलम्भः स्याद् रसास्त्वेते त्रयोदश ॥

Madras MS., MT, 3082 (ch. 4, p. 16).

What his new Rasa-s, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha, are and how they differ from the first, namely Śṛṅgāra—these questions will be taken up in another section. Now we shall restrict ourselves to Haripāla's views on the new Rasa named Brāhma which he holds in addition to, and not in the place of, the Śānta. What are these two Rasa-s, Brāhma and Śānta, and how do they differ? What are their respective and distinct Sthāyin-s? What is the necessity for recognizing two such Rasa-s?

Haripāla enumerates the Sthāyin-s of his Rasa-s thus:

आह्लादः प्रथमं नर्म¹ जुगुप्सा शोक एव च ।

उत्साहदैन्य(ये)² क्रोधोऽथ विस्मयस्तदनन्तरम् ॥

² bhaya is the old Sthāyin of Bhayānaka.

निर्वेदश्च तथानन्दः प्रीती रत्यरती तथा ।

प्रत्येकं स्थायिनो भावाः क्रमात् प्रत्येकमीरिताः ॥ ibid., p. 17.

He accepts the view that Nirveda is the Sthāyin of Śānta and in this acceptance, he seems to have a purpose which we shall see presently. Haripāla says further with regard to these Rasa-s:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।

अतिरिक्ता उदीर्यन्ते हरिपालमहीभुजा ॥ p. 17.

ब्राह्मो नाम रसः सर्वप्रपञ्चोत्तीर्णरूपकः ।

नित्यः स्थिरोऽत एवायं पार्थक्येन प्रकीर्तितः ॥ p. 18.

From the latter verse we have to take it that Haripāla distinguishes the Śānta and the Brāhma Rasa-s as differing in the degree of permanence. He calls the Brāhma, of which Ānanda is given as the Sthāyin, eternal (nitya) and permanent (sthira), and from this we have to understand that the Śānta of which Nirveda is the Sthāyin is impermanent (anitya, asthira). While discussing the claims of Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna to be the Sthāyin of Śānta, Abhinavagupta quotes the verse vythā dugdho 'naḍvān, etc. and points out that the resulting Bhāva is Kheda or Nirveda in ordinary things in the sphere of our worldly activities, which has no reference to the fourth Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. This Nirveda can be developed into a Rasa which is a kind of quietude, Śānta. Perhaps, it is to distinguish such a Rasa as this Nirveda-Śānta involving a passive attitude while in the midst of mundane activities that Haripāla postulated a Brāhma Rasa to refer to a regular activity towards the attainment of Mokṣa.

No such explanation is however offered by Haripāla. The above suggested explanation loses point when it is realized that Nirveda in ordinary things must only be a Bhāva and if it is nourished into a Rasa, it cannot stop short without developing into a Rasa referring to Mokṣa. It is a pity that Haripāla has not explained himself more elaborately.

THE PRAPAÑCAHRDAYA

The Prapañcahrdaya, an anonymous compendium, published as No. 65 of the Trivandrum Skt. Series, treats of the subject of Rasa under Nāṭya, in the section on the Gāndharva-veda, in the chapter on the Upaveda-s. The work approaches Śānta in a new manner. It says that there are only eight Sthāyin-s but takes the Nāṭya-śāstra as giving nine Rasa-s! It thus speaks of eight Sthāyin-s and nine Rasa-s. It refutes the views of those who hold Śānta as the negation of the other eight and holds it as the cessation of all the senses, sarva-indriya-uparama. But what exactly is the Śānta, it does not say.

तदेतत् (नाट्यम्) अष्टभावानां नवरसानाम् आश्रयभूतम् । ते च प्रदर्शिताः—

रतिर्हासश्च शोकश्च क्रोधोत्साहौ भयं तथा ।

जुगुप्सा विस्मयश्चैवेत्यष्टौ भावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥

नामभ्युपगमात् । अतः सर्वेन्द्रियोपरमलक्षणः शान्तो नवमरसः । pp. 55-6.

How can one speak of a Rasa without a Sthāyin?

THE ANUYOGADVĀRA-SŪTRA

The Anuyogadvāra-sūtra with the Sanskrit gloss of Maladhāri Hemacandra (Āgamodaya Samiti Series) deals with the nine Rasa-s of Kāvya, pp. 134 ff. The gloss first explains the Praśānta Rasa thus:

प्रशाम्यति क्रोधादिजनितौत्सुक्यरहितो भवत्यनेनेति प्रशान्तः । परम-
गुरुवचःश्रवणादिहेतुसमुल्लसित उपशमप्रकर्षात्मा प्रशान्तो रस इत्यलं विस्तरेण ।

The text describes and illustrates the Praśānta thus:

निद्वेसमणसमाहाणसंभवो जो पसंतभावेणम् ।
अविकारलक्ष्णो सो रसो पसंतो त्ति गायव्वो ॥
[निर्दोषमनःसमाधानसंभवो यः प्रशान्तभावेन ।
अविकारलक्षणः स रसः प्रशान्त इति ज्ञातव्यः ॥]

पसन्तो रसो जहा—

सम्भावनिर्विगारं उवसंतपसंतसोमदिट्ठीअम् ।
ही जह मुणिणो सोहइ मुहकमलं पीवरसिरीअम् ॥

[प्रशान्तो रसो यथा—

सद्भावनिर्विकारम् उपशान्तप्रशान्तसौम्यदृष्टीकम् ।
पश्य यथा मुनेः शोभते मुखकमलं पीवरश्रीकम् ॥]

Besides this Praśānta Rasa, the commentator explains that the Vīra Rasa in the text has two sublime varieties called Tyāga-vīra and Tapo-vīra, both of which are superior to the third variety called Yuddha-vīra. It further explains that Tyāga-vīra, Tapo-vīra and the Praśānta are Rasa-s which are not brought into existence by any 'sūtra-doṣa-s' like anṛta, parahiṃsā, etc. Yuddha-vīra involves paropaghāta, destruction of others; Adbhuta is roused by 'hyperbole', atīśayokti, which is a species of falsehood. More of this later.

THE STHĀYIN OF ŚĀNTA

WHEN it is said that Bharata did not speak of the Śānta Rasa, it follows that he did not mention any Sthāyin which developed into that Rasa. One of the chief arguments of those who do not accept Śānta is that Bharata did not mention its Sthāyin. Says the Locana:

ननु नास्त्येव शान्तो रसः । तस्य तु स्थाय्येव नोपदिष्टो मुनिना
इत्याशङ्क्याह । p. 176.

The reply to this objection to Śānta must show that not only is Śānta Rasa possible from a Sthāyin

1. Śama. like Śama, but also that the Sthāyin is available in Bharata's text itself. So certain writers who held Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta interfered with Bharata's text. The result of this interference is seen in three places. The first two are emendations of Bharata's Anuṣṭubh-s enumerating the Rasa-s and the Sthāyin-s:

śṛṅgāra . . . bibhatsādbhutasamjñāu cety aṣṭau nātye rasāḥ smṛtāḥ became śṛṅgāra . . . bibhatsādbhutaśāntāś ca nava nātye rasāḥ smṛtāḥ. And jugupsā vismayaś ceti sthāyibhāvāḥ prakīrtitāḥ was read as jugupsāvismayaśamāḥ sthāyibhāvāḥ prakīrtitāḥ.

Abhinavagupta has the following remarks on these two texts:

शान्तापलापिनस्तु अष्टाविति तत्र पठन्ति ।

तत्र शान्तस्य स्थायी 'विस्मयशमाः' इति कैश्चित् पठितः ।

GOS, vol. I, p. 269.

The third case of interference is a complete interpolation of a section on Śānta in ch. 6 (GOS, I, p. 333). The Kāvya-mālā and the Kāshī editions of the MS do not have the section on Śānta in ch 6. In this interpolated section, Śāma is said to be the Sthāyin of Śānta:

अथ शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावात्मको मोक्षप्रवर्तकः ।

That this section was not found in certain manuscripts and that certain recensions counted only eight Rasa-s is known from Abhinavagupta's own remarks. Abhinavagupta says:

तथा च चिरन्तनपुस्तकेषु स्थायिभावान् रसत्वमुपनेष्याम इत्यनन्तरम्
'शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावात्मकः' इत्यादिशान्तलक्षणं पठ्यते ।

GOS, I, p. 340.

This remark will make it clear that the section on Śānta Rasa is not exactly the end of chapter 6, as now found in the GOS edition, but the beginning of the section treating of all the Rasa-s, i.e. before the sub-section on Śṛṅgāra. There is no doubt on this point that the section on Śānta opened the section on Rasa-s and appeared even before Śṛṅgāra, in some old manuscripts which Abhinavagupta consulted. For Abhinavagupta makes an additional score out of this priority of Śānta in the treatment of Rasa-s. He says that it is because the Sthāyin of Śānta is Sthāyin par excellence, being the Ātman itself on which arise the comparatively less basic Sthāyin-s, Rati, etc. and because the relish in all Rasa-s, rasāsvāda, is of the form of Śānta, being alaukika, free from worldly links, Śānta is the greatest Rasa and hence it is that it is dealt with at the very beginning.

—इत्यस्य (शान्तस्य) सर्वप्रकृतित्वाभिधानाय पूर्वमभिधानम् ।

GOS, I, p. 340.

Who may be the author responsible for introducing the Śānta texts in the NS? It is not possible to say anything definite. All that we know now is that Udbhaṭa, the earliest of the now known regular commentators on Bharata, accepts the Śānta as is seen from his KASS which however does not mention its Sthāyin. Pratihārendurāja gives the Sthāyin-s and speaks of Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

For those who believe in the genuineness of these texts on Śānta as Bharata's own, there is no difficulty in answering the objection that Śānta cannot be accepted for the reason that Bharata did not mention its Sthāyin at all. For according to them, Bharata spoke of nine Rasa-s, mentioned Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta and described Śānta as the greatest Rasa.¹

One of the main objections to Śama being accepted as the Sthāyin of Śānta is that the texts which say so cannot be relied upon as genuine because of their absence in some recensions. Also because of the fact that the Śama here spoken of would make the number of Bhāva-s fifty and Bharata gives only forty-nine. Therefore some advocates of Śānta put forward Nirveda as the Sthāyin, Nirveda being one of the forty-nine given by Bharata. These advocates of Nirveda did not, however, criticize Śama. Another objection, an imaginary one, is that Śama and Śānta are synonymous

इत्यन्तेन मध्ये शान्तः परिगृहीतः, तन्मतान्तरानुसारेण, न स्वसिद्धान्तेन। ततः परमतमप्रतिषिद्धमनुमतमेवेति नीत्यान्यैः सोऽपि समर्थितः। TSS 59, p. 17.

and the former cannot be the Sthāyin of the latter. Śama and Śānta differ even as Bhaya and Bhayānaka, Vismaya and Adbhuta and Hāsa and Hāsyā. The former is laukika, the latter alaukika. Says Abhinavagupta:

शमशान्तयोः पर्यायत्वं तु हासहास्याभ्यां व्याख्यातम् । सिद्धसाध्यतया
यदलौकिकत्वेन (लौकिकालौकिकत्वेन) साधारणासाधारणतया च वैलक्षण्यं
शमशान्तयोरपि सुलभमेव ।

GOS, I, p. 336.

Both the above-mentioned objections to Śama are thus set forth by Abhinavagupta, earlier, as pūrvapakṣa:

एतदपरे न सहन्ते, शमशान्तयोः पर्यायत्वात् (१), एकान्नपञ्चाशद्भावा इति संख्यात्यागात् (२) ।

ibid. p. 333.

Rudraṭa comes next to Udbhaṭa in the discussion on the Sthāyin of Śānta. He mentions Śānta as
2. Samyagjñāna. a Rasa and gives its Sthāyin as Samyagjñāna. Namisādhū clearly says that Rudraṭa gives Samyagjñāna as the Sthāyin.

सम्यग्ज्ञानप्रकृतिः शान्तो विगतेच्छनायको भवति ।

सम्यग्ज्ञानं विषये तमसो रागस्य चापगमात् ॥

XVI. 15.

सम्यग्ज्ञानं स्थायिभावः (Namiśādhū)

Evidently Rudraṭa did not rely on the Śānta texts in Bharata's Nṛ but was bold enough to advocate Rasa-s not mentioned by Bharata. So he left out Śama and put forward Samyagjñāna as the Sthāyin of Śānta. If Samyagjñāna means the realization of the Self, it becomes the causal antecedent of Śama. Samyagjñāna is Tattvajñāna and all writers following Bharata have given it as one of the Vibhāva-s of Śama. But Namisādhū does not make any difference between Samyagjñāna and Śama. Under Rudrāṭa's verse enumerating the Rasa-s, Namisādhū enumerates the Sthāyin-s, the Vyabhicārin-s, etc. And here, he gives Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

We are not able to know what Bhāva was held as Sthāyin by Lollaṭa and Śaṅkuka. Some of the views on the Sthāyin of Śānta mentioned in the Abhinavabhāratī may be the views of these two commentators. To those views we shall turn presently. Before that we shall examine the views of authors whose works are available to us. Ānandavardhana accepts the Śānta Rasa, criticizes the views of the opponents of Śānta and determines the character of this Rasa. He does not hold Śama or Nirveda as its Sthāyin but gives Trṣṇāṅkṣayasukha as its Sthāyin. He says:

शान्तश्च तृष्णाक्षयसुखस्य यः परिपोषः तल्लक्षणो रसः प्रतीयत एव ।
तथा चोक्तम्—

‘यच्च कामसुखं लोके यच्च दिव्यं महत् सुखम् ।

तृष्णाक्षयसुखस्यैते नार्हतः षोडशीं कलाम् ॥’

Dhva. A, III. 176.

The Locana explains:

तृष्णानां विषयाणां यः क्षयः सर्वतोनिवृत्तिरूपः निरोधः तदेव सुखं
तस्य यः स्थायीभूतस्य परिपोषः रस्यमानताकृतः तदेव लक्षणं यस्य स
शान्तो रसः ॥

This non-acceptance of Śama shows that Ānandavardhana did not accept or follow the Śānta text in Bharata. His Sthāyin for Śānta is that happiness which is the cessation of all desires—Trṣṇā-kṣaya-sukha—and is inspired by Vyāsa, whose Mahābhārata Ānandavardhana is going to expound as a Śānta-epic in the next chapter of his work. If, however, we take this trṣṇā as an upalakṣaṇa for all Bhāva-s, this Sthāyin will become identical with the Śama or the Prasāma of all citta-vṛtti-s. That this Sthāyin also will, in some way, become a form of Śama is accepted by Ānandavardhana when he distinguishes the Śānta from the Vīra in which certain opponents include the Śānta. Ānandavardhana says:

अस्य च शान्तस्य अहंकारप्रशमैकरूपतया स्थितेः । p. 177.

And the Locana here interprets ahamkāra-prasāma as nirīhatva. Hemacandra, a follower of Ānandavardhana and Abhinavagupta equates Ānandavardhana's Trṣṇākṣaya with Śama:

—तृष्णाक्षयरूपः शमः स्थायिभावः चर्वणां प्राप्तः शान्तो रसः ।
Kāvyañuśāsana, p. 80.

The Locana informs us that there were some who, not satisfied with Trṣṇākṣayasukha, gave the

4. Sarva-cittavṛtti-prasāma. complete cessation of all the citta-vṛtti-s, the modifications of the mind, as the Sthāyin.

Abhinavagupta replies that if this is meant as a negative state, it can hardly be a Bhāva; for a negative state cannot be a Bhāva; if, however, it is meant as a positive state marked by the absence of all the citta-vṛtti-s, it comes to the same thing as that state of bliss which is marked by the annihilation of all desires.

अन्ये तु सर्वचित्तवृत्तिप्रशम एवास्य स्थायीति मन्यन्ते । तच्चासत् ;
 अभावस्य प्रसज्यप्रतिषेधरूपत्वे चेतोवृत्तित्वाभावेन भावत्वायोगात् । पर्युदासे तु
 अस्मत्पक्ष एवायम् ॥

Locana, p. 177 (reconstructed).

There are others, the Locana continues, who quote a verse from Bharata on Śānta as the one basic Rasa of which the other Bhāva-s are transformations and hold that state of the mind when it is itself and is free from any transforming condition, as the Sthāyin of Śānta. Abhinavagupta says that this also differs only slightly from Tṛṣṇākṣaya. While anupajāta-viśeṣa-citta-vṛtti, the state in which no modification has arisen in the mind, is a state of prāgabhāva of Tṛṣṇā, etc., Tṛṣṇākṣaya refers to a state of the pradhvaṃsābhāva, the destruction of the modifications in the form of Tṛṣṇā, etc. The extermination of Tṛṣṇā is the natural process; we see in experience the polluted citta gradually clearing.

इति भरतवाक्यं दृष्टवन्तः सर्वरससामान्यस्वभावं शान्तमाचक्षाणा
अनुपजातविशेषान्तरं चित्तवृत्तिरूपं शान्तस्य स्थायिभावं मन्यन्ते । p. 177.

Bhoja gives Dhṛti as the Sthāyin of Śānta in his Sarasvatikanthābharaṇa, pp. 514-15:

6. Dhṛti. धृतिस्थायिभावः वस्तुतत्त्वलोचानादिभिः व्यभि-
चारिभावैः वागारम्भादिभिरनुषज्यमानः निष्पन्नः शान्त
इत्यभिगीयते ।¹ अन्ये पुनरस्य शमं प्रकृतिमामनन्ति, स तु धृतेरेव
विशेषो भवति ।

What is this Dhṛti? Dhṛti means firmness, contentment and joy. All the three are pertinent. But Bhoja means only contentment, Saṃtuṣṭi, for, his illustration is:

सर्वाः संपत्तयस्तस्य संतुष्टं यस्य मानसम् ।
उपानद्गूढपादस्य ननु चर्मास्तृतैव भूः ॥

¹ See also the Sāhityamīmāṃsā, TSS 144, p. 59, where this view of Bhoja is noted. The SM itself does not accept the Śānta.

This contentment again is not far off from Trṣṇākṣaya or Śama. Bhoja mentions here that Śama is held to be a Sthāyin by others, and says that it comes under Dhṛti. Perhaps the reason why Bhoja did not adopt Śama is that it is not found in Bharata's list of forty-nine Bhāva-s. Dhṛti is found there. Elsewhere Bhoja gives the same Śama as a variety of the Vyabhicārin called Mati: mativiśeṣaḥ śamo yathā (p. 523). Mati has a variety called Tattvajñāna which is again not different from Śama.¹ In the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, Bhoja discards Dhṛti and holds Śama as the Sthāyin.

अत्र च शमप्रकृतिः शान्तः, etc.

Śr. Pra., Madras MS., vol. II, pp. 377-8.

Dhṛti is mentioned by Bharata as a Vyabhicārin and in chapter 7, Vijñāna, Śruti, Śauca, Ācāra and Guru-bhakti are mentioned among its Vibhāva-s. These would properly come within the scope of the Śānta Rasa. Earlier, in the first chapter itself, Bharata speaks of Dhṛti. While describing how variously drama pleases persons of differing temperaments and moods, Bharata says that drama gives Dhṛti to those whose minds are in anguish or are disturbed very much.

अर्थोपजीविनामर्थो धृतिरुद्विग्नचेतसाम् ।

GOS, I, p. 112.

This Dhṛti may refer generally to the balm-like effect that drama has. Abhinavagupta takes it as dhairya, firmness of heart. It may also refer in particular to such dramas in which the production of Dhṛti in the audience is the special purpose of the drama. Such cases would be Śānta-plays.

¹ This variety of Mati is not that which Bhoja holds as the Sthāyin for his new Udātta Rasa on p. 515, SKĀ.

Many other Bhāva-s are held as the Sthāyin of Śānta by other writers. We come to know of these from the Abhi. Bhā. We are not however given in this work the names of the writers who held those views. The first of these Bhāva-s to claim our attention is Nirveda. Almost the only reason why certain writers hold Nirveda as the Sthāyin of Śānta is their necessity to show the opponents of Śānta Rasa that the Sthāyin of Śānta is surely found in Bharata. They are not for holding to Śama, a Bhāva not to be found among Bharata's forty-nine Bhāva-s. While Bhoja tried for some time to get over the difficulty by picking out Dhṛti from the forty-nine, there were earlier writers who took the very first Vyabhicārin, Nirveda, and proposed to treat it as a Bhāva which was both Vyabhicārin and Sthāyin. The Abhi. Bhā. says:

तत्त्वज्ञानजो निर्वेदोऽस्य स्थायी । एतदर्थमेव उभयधर्मोपजीवित्व-
ख्यापनाय अमङ्गलभूतोऽप्यसौ पूर्वं निर्दिष्टः । GOS, I, pp. 269-70.

The problem that has to be faced first is the postulation of Śānta as a Rasa. The first objection against it is that Bharata has not given its Sthāyin. To answer this criticism, certain advocates of Śānta say that Bharata has given the Sthāyin of Śānta in his text: it is Nirveda. But how did these advocates of Śānta discover that it was Nirveda? Bharata does not say so; Bharata gives it as a Vyabhicāribhāva, the first among them. The reply is that Bharata's mention of Nirveda at the head of the Vyabhicārin-s and immediately after the Sthāyin-s, has a meaning. Nirveda is a dislike for objects and as such, is inauspicious, amaṅgala. The sage Bharata is one whose utterances are auspicious, and so his mention of Nirveda as the first among the Bhāva-s is to suggest to us to explore a hidden meaning (amaṅgalaṃ sat jñāpayati). It is to show to us that though it is inauspicious, it is given as the first, since, while being a Vyabhicārin, it is also a Sthāyin—the Sthāyin of the Rasa called Śānta. If it were not for the suggestion of this purpose Bharata would not have given the inauspicious Nirveda first. Then arises the question: Is Nirveda itself the Sthāyin? Nirveda is born of broken love, poverty or many more causes. What variety of it exactly is the Sthāyin of Śānta? Bharata describes Nirveda thus in chapter 7:

तत्र निर्वेदो नाम दारिद्र्यव्याध्यवमानाधिक्षेपाकुष्ठक्रोधताडन-इष्टजन-
वियोगतत्त्वज्ञानादिभिः विभावैः उत्पद्यते । GOS, I, p. 357.

Bharata here mentions many causes which produce Nirveda. One of these varieties of Nirveda is that born of Tattvajñāna. It is Nirveda towards all mundane things. This Nirveda alone is relevant in a consideration of the Śānta Rasa. It is this Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna that is held as the Sthāyin of Śānta by those who are anxious to have the authority of Bharata. But how can a Vyabhicārin become a Sthāyin? It is said that only such Nirveda as is born of broken love, poverty, etc. is Vyabhicārin. The same Nirveda when it is born of Tattvajñāna and shuns all mundane things becomes the permanent Sthāyin. Says Śārṅgadeva:

स्थायी स्याद्विषयेष्वेव तत्त्वज्ञानोद्भवो यदि ।

इष्टानिष्टवियोगासिद्धस्तु व्यभिचार्यसौ ॥

SR, VII. 1366-7.

Such Nirveda becomes greater not only than other kinds of Nirveda but also than all the other Sthāyin-s and Vyabhicārin-s all of which it subordinates. Says Abhinavagupta while expounding the case for Nirveda:

तत्त्वज्ञानजश्च निर्वेदः स्थाय्यन्तरोपमर्दकः । भाववैचित्र्यसहिष्णुभ्यो
रत्यादिभ्यः यः परमः स्थायिशीलः स एव हि स्थाय्यन्तराणामुपमर्दकः ।

GOS, I, p. 334.

It is this anyopamardaka Sthāyin type of Nirveda that is taken.

Mammāṭa accepts Nirveda as the Sthāyin.

निर्वेदस्य अमङ्गलप्रायस्य प्रथममनुपादेयत्वेऽपि उपादानं व्यभिचारि-
त्वेऽपि स्थायित्वामिधानार्थम् । तेन—

निर्वेदस्याभिभावाख्यः शान्तोऽपि नवमो रसः ।

Mammāṭa does not say that this Nirveda is amaṅgala, but says it is amaṅgala-prāya. As a matter of fact, Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna is the greatest maṅgala. Says Bhaṭṭa Gopāla in his gloss here:

तत्त्वचिन्तायां तु निर्वेदस्य न किञ्चिदमङ्गलप्रायत्वम्, प्रत्युत मङ्गल-
प्रायत्वमित्याह ।

K. Pra., TSS ed., p. 138.

This shows how trivial this argument for Śānta based on maṅgalavāda is. Another difficulty in this argument of maṅgala-amaṅgala is the question why there should be any maṅgala when the enumeration of the Vyabhicārin-s begins. No doubt, there is the use of madhya-maṅgala among writers, but why should that madhya-maṅgala be at the beginning of the Vyabhicārin-s? Another argument advanced by the advocates of Nirveda is that it is in the position of a lamp on the door-step, a dehālī-dīpa, shedding light on either side of the door. Being enumerated at the end of the eight Sthāyin-s and at the beginning of the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s, it has to be taken, according to the implied idea of Bharata, that Nirveda among the Vyabhicārin-s must once be taken with the preceding items, the Sthāyin-s, and then with the succeeding items, the Vyabhicārin-s. This is also an argument without weight. For there are other Vyabhicārin-s which are also Sthāyin-s, as for instance, Amarṣa which as Krodha is the Sthāyin of Raudra, and Viṣāda which as Śoka is the Sthāyin of Karuṇa. These are not brought to the front and enumerated at the beginning along with Nirveda.

Another possible objection to having Nirveda as Sthāyin, in addition to its being a Vyabhicārin, is that a Bhāva which Bharata has definitely mentioned as a Vyabhicārin cannot be taken as a Sthāyin also. But to this the reply advanced is that Bharata himself gives a hint, taking which it can be proved that the status of Sthāyitva, Vyabhicāritva and Sāttvikatva of the forty-nine Bhāva-s does not belong only to those given under those names but that any of the forty-nine may, according to the circumstances, become any of the three. This is the pre-Abhinavagupta view of the nature of the forty-nine Bhāva-s and of the names Sthāyin, Vyabhicārin and Sāttvika. As a consequence of this view there developed a tendency which expressed itself, from the times of Rudraṭa and Lollaṭa up to the time of Bhoja, that Rasa-s are not eight or nine only, but forty-nine. The hint mentioned above and referred to by these theorists is contained in Bharata's text on the Vyabhicārin-s of Rati where he mentions Jugupsā, a Sthāyin, as one among the prohibited.

व्यभिचारिणश्चास्य आलस्यौग्रचजुगुप्सावर्जाः ।

GOS, I, p. 307.

This means that Bharata himself suggests that Sthāyin-s may become Vyabhicārin-s and Vyābhicārin-s, Sthāyin-s. This view is stated as follows by Abhinavagupta, as pūrvapakṣa:

जुगुप्सां च व्यभिचारित्वेन शृङ्गारे निषेधन्मुनिः भावानां सर्वेषामेव
स्थायित्वसंचारित्वचिन्तनात्तावत्त्व-(चित्तजत्व)¹ अनुभावत्वानि योग्यतोपनिपतितानि
शब्दार्थबलाकृष्टानि अनुजानाति ।² Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 334.

Abhinavagupta criticizes this view. He does not accept the Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna as the Sthāyin of Śānta.³ If such Nirveda as is born of Tattvajñāna is the Sthāyin, it means that Tattvajñāna is the Vibhāva. The other Vibhāva-s given, namely Vairāgya, Samādhi, etc. are not Vibhāva-s strictly. If they are included as Vibhāva-s because they are causes producing Tattvajñāna, they are really the causes of the cause. The cause of the cause is never called Vibhāva. Further, Nirveda itself is an aversion towards all objects and is not different from Vairāgya. Far from being the product of Tattvajñāna, Nirveda is one of the causes bringing about Tattvajñāna, for one having aversion to

² Cf. Vyaktiviveka, TSS ed., p. 13.

³ But in one of the earlier contexts in his Locana on the Dhva. Ā., Abhinavagupta mentions Nirveda as the Sthāyin of Śānta. While commenting on a verse of his own illustrating a variety of Ākṣepa, Abhinavagupta says:

असत्पुरुषसेवा तद्वैफल्यकृतोद्वेगात्मनः शान्तरसंस्थायिभूतनिर्बेदविभावानु-
भावरूपतया चमत्कृतित्वम् ।

mundane things strives after Mokṣa and acquires Tattvajñāna. It is well known that Mokṣa is directly attained through Tattvajñāna and it is not true to say that one attains Tattvajñāna first, then feels aversion, Vairāgya, and then attains Mokṣa. Īśvarakṛṣṇa also says that Vairāgya is not the final stage preceding Mokṣa, that Vairāgya at best results only in Prakṛti-laya in the absence of Tattvajñāna. Tattvajñāna alone results in Mokṣa.

वैराग्यात् प्रकृतिलयः ।

Sāṃkhyakārikā, 45.

Says the Vṛtti of Gauḍapāda here:

यथा कस्यचिद् वैराग्यमस्ति, न तत्त्वज्ञानम्, तस्मादज्ञानपूर्वा-
द्वैराग्यात् प्रकृतिलयः । मृतः अष्टासु प्रकृतिषु प्रधानबुद्ध्यहंकारतन्मात्रेषु
लीयते, न मोक्षः ॥

It may be said that Tattvajñāna strengthens Vairāgya and increases it. Patañjali also says that Vairāgya towards guṇa-s results from Tattvajñāna (puruṣakhyāti): tatparam puruṣakhyāter guṇavaitṛṣṇyam (Yogasūtra, I. 16). But Vyāsa, in his Bhāṣya on this sūtra, says that such Vairāgya is really Jñāna: jñānasyaiva parā kāṣṭhā vairāgyam (Ānandāśrama ed., p. 20). Therefore it comes to Tattvajñāna strengthening and increasing itself from stage to stage. The result is: there is no Nirveda as Sthāyin but only Tattvajñāna. That is the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Surely Bharata speaks in chapter 7 (Bhāvādhyāya), while describing Nirveda, of the Nirveda that is born of Tattvajñāna. This Tattvajñāna or Samyagjñāna and the Nirveda born of it do not refer to Śānta Rasa and its Sthāyin but refer only to the ordinary and common Nirveda born of realizing that one has made a mistake, and wasted energy in a worthless cause through mistake, as in serving a miser who would not pay: vrthā dugdho 'naḍvān, etc. Such Nirveda can only be a Bhāva.

The advocate of Nirveda quotes now Akṣapāda against Patañjali. Akṣapāda, he states, says in his Nyāya-sūtra, I. 1. 2, that the removal of mithyājñāna, i.e. the appearance of Tattvajñāna, produces the destruction of doṣa, i.e. produces Vairāgya. Thus Tattvajñāna-ja Nirveda or Tattvajñāna-ja Vairāgya is the Sthāyin. This Nirveda or Vairāgya is the final stage and not Tattvajñāna which is only one of the causes of Vairāgya. The reply to this is thus given in the Abhi. Bhā.: Surely Akṣapāda speaks of Vairāgya, but who said Vairāgya is Nirveda? Nirveda is an attitude of aversion and a continued sadness and, as such, is hardly identical with Vairāgya. Mokṣa, for which we are now postulating the Rasa (the Śānta), is a state of kaivalya in which there is neither the sorrow nor the joy of this earth. Vairāgya is the cessation of rāga and dveṣa, and is not identical with Nirveda. Even if we accept that Nirveda is Vairāgya, it does not follow from Gautama's words that Vairāgya or Nirveda is the Sthāyin of Śānta. According to the sūtra of Gautama:

दुःखजन्मप्रवृत्तिदोषमिथ्याज्ञानानामुत्तरोत्तरापाये तदनन्तरापायादपवर्गः,

it is not the immediately preceding condition of mukti. From Vairāgya, activity (pravṛtti) must stop; from cessation of activity, birth must end and when birth ends, misery flies away; when misery has fled, it is mukti.

Lastly, there is no good reason why one should take so much trouble: qualify it as Nirveda born of Tattvanjñāna and call it Vairāgya and hold on to Nirveda. Such a cumbersome and elaborately described Nirveda is only another name for the simple Śānta which can be the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Other views on the Sthāyin of Śānta are also available in the Abhi. Bhā. Certain writers held

8. Utsāha. Utsāha, the Sthāyin of Vīra, as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. Abhinavagupta says:

उत्साह एवास्य स्थायीत्यन्ये ।

p. 269.¹

How did some writers come to hold Utsāha as the Sthāyin of Śānta? Utsāha, as given by Bharata, is the Sthāyin of Vīra. It is said that there are three or four varieties of Vīra, Dharma-vīra, Yuddha-vīra, Dāna-vīra and Dayā-vīra. The variety named Dayā-vīra, or the more comprehensive Dharma-vīra, as portrayed in the acts of sacrifice of Bodhisattva-s and as dramatized by Harṣa in his Nāgānanda is very much akin to Śānta. So much so that some antagonists of Śānta say that there is no need for a ninth Rasa named Śānta and that the situations in discussion come under Dharma-vīra or Dayā-vīra.

Śārngadeva, SR, VII. 1363-4.

² In reply to these critics of Śānta who hold that there is no need for a new Rasa like Śānta when there is Dayā-vīra, Abhinavagupta says that Bharata gave only three varieties of Vīra,

Further, the path to attain Mokṣa is one of strenuous effort and the Yogin's fights and victories in the realm of the spirit have always been described in the image of heroism. Cf. the description of Aja and Raghu in canto VIII of the Raghuvamśa (vv. 19-23; from anayat prabhuśaktisaṃpadā to iti śatruṣu cendriyeṣu ca). Subrahmaṇya explains at length in his commentary, the Praudha-prakāśa, on the Prabodhacandrodaya (Madras MS.),¹ how Śānta-Rasa is portrayed in the play in the Samāsokti of Vīra. In a verse quoted by Avatārakavī in his commentary on his own Īśvaraśataka,² a Vīra is defined in terms of a saint.

वीतरागभयद्वेषो रहितः सर्वसंशयैः ।

सर्वभूतानुकम्पी च वीर इत्युच्यते बुधैः ॥

In fact, the saint has been called a Mahā-vīra. Thinking on these lines perhaps, certain advocates of Śānta who were exercised about finding a Sthāyin for Śānta from among the Dāna-vīra, Dharma-vīra and Yuddha-vīra and that one cannot create a new Vīra. Dayā-vīra is only a new name for Śānta.

² KM Gucchaka IV, under verse 24.

Bhāva-s mentioned by Bharata, chose Utsāha. They intended to improve upon the position of those who took hold of Nirveda, who made the mistake of voting a Vyabhicārin to a Sthāyin's place and hence felt their position beset with many difficulties. They had to resort to quibbling with auspiciousness-inauspiciousness, dehalīdīpa-nyāya, etc. The sponsors of Utsāha, like those of Rati and Jugupsā to whom we shall come presently, had the advantage of fixing one of the eight Sthāyin-s mentioned by Bharata as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. But then arose the problem: How could one Bhāva beget two Rasa-s? The difficulty was overcome by accepting varieties of the same Sthāyin. It was even as Nirveda being made into a special species called Tattva-jñāna-ja Nirveda, Nirveda born of the knowledge of Truth. Hāsa also has many varieties. Rati is divided into Saṃbhoga and Vipralambha.

The writers who held Utsāha as the Sthāyin of Śānta built on sand. They knew not what they were doing. The opponents at once undermined them by suggesting the inclusion of Śānta in Vīra. One of the main pūrvapakṣa-s to Śānta is the possibility of its inclusion in one of the eight Rasa-s mentioned by Bharata. Ānandavardhana mentions this objection and replies:

पनात् । अस्य च अहंकारप्रशमैकरूपतया स्थितेः, etc.

तयोश्च एवंविधविशेषसद्भावेऽपि यद्यैक्यं परिकल्प्यते, तद्वीररौद्रयोरपि
तथा प्रसङ्गः ।

Dhva. Ā., pp. 177-8.

The Daśarūpakāvaloka says:

अन्ये तु वीरवीर्यसादौ अन्तर्भावं वर्णयन्ति ।

p. 117.

The real position of the Bhāva called Utsāha is this: Utsāha closely attends upon Ahaṁkāra without which there cannot be any activity. No Rasa is possible without these two elements. Bhoja pursues this line and discovers his Ahaṁkāra theory of Rasa. But according to the rule of pre-dominance, prādhānya-nyāya, it is Vīra Rasa to which this Utsāha is connected most. This Vīra is held to have four varieties, Yuddha, Dharma, Dāna and Dayā Vīra-s. Of this Yuddha-vīra is Vīra proper. Utsāha is however Sthāyin of the other three varieties also. This Utsāha is the very basis of all action and as such can be seen in some varieties of Śānta. Two such varieties are Dayā-vīra and Dharma-vīra which are really names of two aspects of Śānta. Śānta is a wider field; it includes Dayā and Dharma but is not included in or exhausted by these two. Numerous are the religions and paths of action towards spiritual realization. Why these two Vīra-s, Dayā and Dharma, only? Dāna-vīra can be a form of Śānta. Dāna may stand for Tyāga also. Tyāgenaike amṛta-tvam ānaśuḥ says the Upaniṣad. Even Yuddha-vīra can be a form of Śānta: there are those who fight religious crusades for the defence of their faith. Similarly there can be a variety of Śānta called Pāṇḍitya-vīra which Jagannātha humorously introduces.¹ Study of texts, learning their true import and

¹ Rasagaṅgādhara, K.M., ed., pp. 37-42:

वस्तुतस्तु बहवो वीररसस्य शृङ्गारस्यैव प्रकारा निरूपयितुं शक्यन्ते (p. 51). Jagannātha mentions besides the four old Vīra-s, Satya-vīra, Pāṇḍitya-vīra, Kṣamā-vīra and Bala-vīra. The Mahābhārata mentions numerous varieties of Vīra, while describing Dāna. Bhīṣma says in the Dānadharma-parvan in the Anuśāsana. (Kumbhakonam ed.), vv. 22-7:

शूरा बहुविधाः प्रोक्ताः तेषामर्थोस्तु मे शृणु ।

propagation of their teachings form part of Śānta activities. These produce Pāṇḍitya-vīra in the prophet who has to meet and win adversaries in debate. So also there is Kṣamā-vīra which also Jagannātha points out. Kṣamā is a virtue of very great importance in Śānta. Utsāha therefore is not Śānta; Śānta comprehends many kinds of Utsāha; that is, several kinds of sublimating Utsāha-s are Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta. Dayā-Utsāha, Dāna-Utsāha, etc. are very frequent and are intimately related Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta. Even the Yogin who has realized Truth and has become, like God, kṛta-kṛtya and avāpta-samasta-kāma, one having accomplished everything, has no more personal objective to be gained, has yet embodied existence in this world as a jīvanmukta and naturally, like God, he also withdraws not from untainting action for the good of the world. The Lord says:

न मे पार्थास्ति कर्तव्यं त्रिषु लोकेषु किञ्चन ।

नानवाप्तमवाप्तव्यं वर्त एव च कर्मणि ॥

Bhagavad-gītā. III. 22-4.

यज्ञशूरा दमे शूराः सत्त्वशूरास्तथा परे ।
 युद्धशूरास्तथैवोक्ता दानशूराश्च मानवाः ॥
 बुद्धिशूरास्तथैवान्ये क्षमाशूरास्तथा परे ।
 सांख्यशूराश्च बहवो योगशूरास्तथा परे ॥
 अरण्ये गृहवासे च त्यागे शूरास्तथा परे ।
 आर्जवे च तथा शूराः शमे वर्तन्ति मानवाः ॥
 तैस्तैश्च नियमैः शूरा बहवः सन्ति चा परे ।
 वेदाध्ययनशूराश्च शूराश्चाध्यापने रताः ॥
 गुरुश्रूषया शूराः पितृश्रूषया परे ।
 मातृश्रूषया शूरा भैक्ष्यशूरास्तथा परे ॥
 अरण्ये गृहवासे च शूराश्चातिथिपूजने ।
 सर्वे यान्ति परान् लोकान् स्वकर्मफलनिर्जितान् ॥

Thus the Utsāha of such selfless activities as Dāna-vīra, Dayā-vīra, Dharma-vīra, etc. is an intimate accessory (and only an accessory) in Śānta. Says Abhinavagupta:

स्वात्मनि च कृतकृत्यस्य परार्थघटनायामेव उद्यम इति उत्साहोऽस्य
परोपकारविषयेच्छाप्रयत्नरूपो दयापरपर्यायः अभ्यधिकोऽन्तरङ्गः । अत एव
तत् केचित् दयावीरत्वेन व्यपदिशन्ति, अन्ये धर्मवीरत्वेन ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 338.

There is a saying that for those who would have this world, there is no hope for the other. Only he who discards all mundane things can walk to salvation. For this, he must cultivate the feeling of disgust or loathing towards the things of this world. This is the Bhāva of Jugupsā.¹ Some hold this to be most important in Śānta and propose it for the place of the Sthāyin:

जुगुप्सेति केचित् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 262.

Bhaṭṭa Tauta has made some contribution with regard to this Jugupsā and its relation to Śānta. In verses 97-102, chapter 6, Bharata speaks of the varieties in each of the eight Rasa-s and here he says of Bibhatsa:

बीभत्सः क्षोभणः शुद्ध उद्वेगी स्याद् द्वितीयकः ।

विष्ठाकृमिभिरुद्वेगी क्षोभणो रुधिरादिजः ॥ (101)

Bibhatsa is of two kinds, Kṣobhaṇa and Udvegī. But in the first line, there is an additional word śuddha. Commentators took it as qualifying Kṣobhaṇa and they distinguished the Udvegī variety as aśuddha. But Bhaṭṭa Tauta said that

Bībhatsa is of three kinds: Kṣobhaṇa, Śuddha and Udvegī. The GOS edition gives a reading here which has syāt tṛtīyakaḥ for syād dvitīyakaḥ. Tauta explains Śuddha-Jugupsā as disgust at the so-called pleasures of the world. Such Jugupsā is illustrated by poems of Vairāgya in which sense-enjoyments are denounced. This is a very powerful aid to Mokṣa.¹ When assailed by passions and tempted by evil, Patañjali asks us to contemplate on the other side of the pleasures, the attendant misery, etc. and begin to loathe them.

रुधिरान्त्रादिदर्शनाद्यो बीभत्सः (स) क्षोभणत्वाच्छुद्धः । यस्तु विष्ठादिभ्यः
स उद्वेगी हृदयं चलयति, सोऽशुद्धः, अशुद्धविभावकत्वात् ।

उपाध्यायस्त्वाह— बीभत्सस्तावत् विभावविशेषात् यत्र तु संसार-
नाश्वनायकरागप्रतिपक्षतया² मोक्षसाधनत्वात् शुद्धः, यदाहुः—‘शौचात्
स्वाङ्गजुगुप्सा’ (योगसूत्रम्, २. ४०) इति । तथा ‘वितर्कबाधने प्रतिपक्ष-
भावनम्’ इति (योगसूत्रम्, २. ३३) । तेन सोऽपि (बीभत्सोऽपि)
परमार्थतस्त्रिविध एव ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 332.

But Tauta did not have the reading syāt tṛtīyakaḥ, for he interprets the text syād dvitīyakaḥ. He says that though there are really three kinds, Bharata speaks of two, because of the rarity of persons having the Śuddha-Jugupsā.

द्वितीयक इत्यनेन तस्य दुर्लभत्वेन अप्राचुर्यं सूचयति । ibid., p. 332.

² The meaning is that Rāga or desire is the Nāyaka or the prime player in the drama of life (saṃsāra-nāṭya) and the Śuddha or pure variety of Jugupsā or disgust is that which a special or rare character develops towards that Rāga.

So it is that some critics who do not want a separate Śānta say that, even as it is possible to include it in Vīra, it is possible to include it in Bībhatsa. The Daśarūpakāvaloka says:

अन्ये तु वीरवीभत्सादौ अन्तर्भावं वर्णयन्ति ।

The reply to this is the same as to the argument which sought to include Śānta in Vīra. Just as Utsāha is a very prominent accessory of Śānta, Jugupsā also is. This Śuddha-Jugupsā may be a prominent Vyabhicārin; but Śānta is not of the form of Jugupsā. The Locana says:

आदिग्रहणेन विषयजुगुप्सरूपत्वात् वीभत्सेऽन्तर्भावः शक्यते ।
सा त्वस्य व्यभिचारिणी भवति, न तु स्थायितामेति । p. 178.

The Abhi. Bhā. says:

केवलं यथा विप्रलम्भे औत्सुक्यम्, संभोगेऽपि वा 'प्रेमासमाप्तो-
त्सवम्' इति, यथा च रौद्रे औग्र्यम्, यथा च करुणवीरभयानकाद्भुतेषु
निर्वेदधृतित्रासहर्षाः व्यभिचारिणोऽपि प्राधान्येनावभासन्ते तथा शान्ते जुगु- प्साद्याः, सर्वथैव रागप्रतिपक्षत्वात् । p. 338.

Another interesting view is that which regards the first

10. Rati. Sthāyin, Rati, itself as the Sthāyin of Śānta Rasa. This view also arose out of the necessity to choose one of the Sthāyin-s mentioned by Bharata himself as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. This view also makes a fine approach to Śānta and is an appreciation of an aspect of the fundamental nature of Śānta. Truth whose realization is salvation is of the nature of Self which is Ātman. It has to be realized by piercing the veil of things which are an-ātman and which shroud the Ātman. Things which are an-ātman must be loathed and this loathing of an-ātman led to the Jugupsā-view. The Rati-view is closely related to the Jugupsā-view; for when an-ātman is loathed, Ātman has to be loved. This love of Ātman, Ātma-rati, is the Sthāyin of Śānta. When one realizes Ātman everywhere, his love floods the universe; Jugupsā then flies away; for there is none besides or beyond Ātman to be shunned then:

यस्तु सर्वाणि भूतानि आत्मन्येवानुपश्यति ।

सर्वभूतेषु चात्मानं ततो न विजुगुप्सते ॥ Īśāvāsyaopaniṣad, 6.

Like Śuddha-Jugupsā, this is Śuddha-rati, a superior love, distinct from the Rati of man for woman. Bhoja pursued this idea of Ātma-rati and arrived at the philosophical summit of the Śṛṅgāra theory of one Rasa:

ज्ञेयो रसः स रसनीयतया आत्मरक्तेः । *Śṛ. Pra.*¹

The Abhi. Bhā. records the Rati-view thus:

तत्र अनाहतानन्दमयस्वात्मविषया रतिरेव मोक्षसाधनमिति सैव शान्ते
स्थायिनीति । यथोक्तम्—

यश्चात्मरतिरेव स्यादात्मतृप्तश्च मानवः ।

आत्मन्येव च संतुष्टः तस्य कार्यं न विद्यते ॥ इति

(Bhagavad-gītā, III. 17.²).

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 335.

Further, Rati has this additional qualification for being the Sthāyin of Śānta, since the final state of Mokṣa is one of ānanda and the Self which is realized is itself of the form of bliss.

² See Chāndogyaopaniṣad, VII. 25. 2: आत्मरतिरात्मक्रीडः; Mundakopaniṣad, III. 1. 4: आत्मक्रीड आत्मरतिः ।

This Rati sails in the same boat as Utsāha and Jugupsā. Only it seems to be more intimate to Śānta, a Vyabhicārin of greater importance. Not only Ātma-rati, but Rati for a personal God, which is called Bhakti and is proposed as a separate Rasa, comes under Śānta. The Śānta has had a love-treatment at the hands of some poets and theorists.

अत एव ईश्वरप्रणिधानविषये भक्तिश्रद्धे स्मृतिमतिधृत्युत्साहानुप्रविष्टे
अन्यथैवाङ्गमिति न तयोः पृथग्रसत्त्वेन गणनम् ।
Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 340.

On the same grounds on which Utsāha, Jugupsā and Rati were proposed, the other Sthāyin-s can also be proposed as Sthāyin-s of Śānta. Only 11. Any one of the remaining Sthāyin-s. they have to be shorn of their ordinary Vibhāva-s, etc. and made a superior and extra-ordinary variety (vicitra) with Vibhāva-s like Śruta. Any one of these eight vicitra Sthāyin-s can be called the Sthāyin of Śānta. Abhinavagupta says:

अन्ये मन्यन्ते रत्यादय एवाष्टौ चित्तवृत्तिविशेषा उक्ताः । त एव
कथितविभावविविक्त(तया) श्रुताद्यलौकिकविभावविशेषसंश्रयाः विचित्रा एव
तावत् । ततश्च तन्मध्याद् एव अन्यतमोऽत्र स्थायी ।

It is in accordance with this view that some hold a variety of Vīra, Dayā or Dharma, Jugupsā for the world called Śuddha-Jugupsā and Rati towards the Self called Ātma-Rati as the Sthāyin-s of Śānta. Abhinavagupta elaborates in his pūrvapakṣa that others among the eight Sthāyin-s have equal claim to be the Sthāyin.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I. pp. 336-7 (corrected).

It is often said that for the thinking man, the world is a comedy. Man's pursuit after trifles, his asthāne mahattva-sambhāvanā, produces laughter in those who know the real value of the things of the world. To the Yogin, man's action and sentiment appear as karma-ābhāsa and bhāva-ābhāsa. Says Bhaṭṭa Bhallaṭa in a fine verse:

एतत् तस्य मुखात् कियत् कमलिनीपत्रे कणं पाथसः

यन्मुक्तामणिरित्यमंस्त स जडः शृण्वेतदस्मादपि ।

अङ्गुल्यग्रनखक्रियाप्रविलयिन्यादीयमाने शनैः

कुत्रोद्धीय गतो हहेत्यनुदिनं निद्राति नान्तःशुचा ॥

So much on behalf of the importance of Hāsa in Śānta.

³ Krodha.

⁴ Utsāha.

⁵ Bhaya.

⁷ Vismaya.

It is but a thin line that divides comedy from tragedy.¹ To the feeling man, the same world is a tragedy. The Yogin pities the poor samsārin, caught in the whirlpool of passion. Thus Śoka seems to dominate in Śānta. The seeking Yogin, the yatamāna, who strives towards his goal, considers the world and its temptations as his enemy; he becomes angry at them and desires to do away with them. This attitude is Krodha and Raudra. The same attitude begets fear of the temptations from which the seeker desires to fly. This is Bhaya. He reads of or listens to an exposition of the greatness, the omniscience, omnipresence, blissfulness and other aspects of the nature of the Self and when he contemplates this wonderful truth about his own Self, he is thrilled and struck with the wonders of the world of the Spirit. This is Vismaya. As explained already, he loathes the so-called pleasures of the world and then Jugupsā forms the prominent attitude. In this manner, these seven Sthāyin-s can claim to be the Sthāyin-s of Śānta.

The very possibility of each or all of the eight Sthāyin-s being the Sthāyin of Śānta prevents any one of them being the settled Sthāyin of Śānta. It cannot also be held that, according to circumstances, the Sthāyin varies in Śānta. A Rasa with many Sthāyin-s is foreign to the theory of Rasa and is an impossibility. Many Sthāyin-s can only imply many Rasa-s. If by virtue of the unity of the object, i.e. Mokṣa, a plurality of Sthāyin-s is accepted as resulting only in one Rasa, it can be pointed out that in view of both Vīra and Raudra resulting in the same end, the destruction of the enemy, Vīra and Raudra can be made into one Rasa.

Therefore, neither any one nor all of the eight Sthāyin-s can be put forward as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

The real significance of this view however lies in another direction. It points to the fact that any or all of the other Sthāyin-s become, in their vicitra varieties, Vyabhicārin-s of Śānta and in their ordinary varieties the causes of Śānta. One may pass to Śama from Rati or Śoka; as a result of broken love, or the death of a beloved person, one may seek solace in Śama. Aśoka fought the Kaliṅga-s and passed from Vīra to Śānta. Therefore any of the eight Rasa-s or all of them can be the Uddīpaka of Śānta. Therefore it is that Śārṅgadeva says: Śama is present in all the Rasa-s.

शमः सर्वरसेष्वस्ति स्थैर्यत्वेऽन्यभिचार्यसौ । (SR, VII. 3535)

A lull in the play of any Bhāva can occur in a temporary way; it may be recalled that Alamkāra texts deal with and illustrate phases of a feeling, as rising (udaya), subsiding (prāsama), mixture with others (śabalatā). This transitory Śama of a Bhāva, if it is of an enduring character, sthāyīya, would cease to be a mere Vyabhicārin and would take characteristics entitling it to become the basis of Śānta.

Kallinātha, in his comments upon the statement of Śārṅgadeva quoted above, says:

अयमर्थः—लोके शृङ्गारादिषु अष्टसु मध्ये यं कंचन रसमनुभवत एव पुंसो जन्मान्तरसुकृतविशेषवशात् शम उत्पद्यत इति तत्तद्रससंबन्धात् शमस्य सर्वरसेषु अस्तित्वम् इति ।

It is perhaps in this sense that Amṛtānanda, in his Alamkārasaṃgraha, considers Śānta to be above all Rasa-s, with neither friend nor foe among them.

शान्तः सर्वोत्तरस्तस्य न मैत्री न विरोधिता । Adyar ed., p. 22.

The next view is a reply to the criticism of the above-given view which proposed any one of the eight Sthāyin-s as the Sthāyin of Śānta. This view suggests that all the eight can be considered as constituting together the Sthāyin, taking Śānta as a peculiar case.

12. All the eight Sthāyin-s together.

सर्व इत्येके ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 269.

अन्ये तु पानकरसवत् अविभागं प्राप्ताः सर्व एव रत्यादयोऽत्र स्थायिन इत्याहुः । चित्तवृत्तीनामयुगपद्भावात्, अन्योन्यं च विरोधात् एतदपि न मनोज्ञम् ।

ibid. p. 332.

It is true that as pūrvapakṣa, the whole of this complex world is involved in Śānta; but all these form only Vyabhicārīn-s. Says Abhinavagupta:

तत्त्वज्ञानलक्षणस्य च स्थायिनः समस्तोऽयं लौकिकालौकिकचित्तवृत्तिकलापो व्यभिचारितामभ्येति ।

ibid. p. 338.

Rasa is developed from one and only one Sthāyin; if many Bhāva-s appear, they can do so only as Vyabhicārīn-s. The analogy of pānaka-rasa must not be introduced here. These Bhāva-s contradict each other and cannot co-exist at the same time. How could they function together to produce a common Rasa?

So, what is the real Sthāyin of Śānta? Abhinavagupta holds that Tattvajñāna or Ātma-svarūpa itself is the Sthāyin of Śānta. He briefly states it thus in his Abhi. Bhā.:

13. Siddhānta:
Ātman, Ātmajñāna
or Tattvajñāna.

कस्तर्ह्यत्र स्थायी? उच्यते—इह तत्त्वज्ञानमेव तावन्मोक्षसाधनमिति
तस्यैव मोक्षे स्थायिता युक्ता । तत्त्वज्ञानं च नाम आत्मज्ञानमेव ।
तेन आत्मैव ज्ञानानन्दादिविशुद्धधर्मयोगी परिकल्पितविषयोपभोग-
रहितोऽत्र स्थायी । GOS, I, p. 337.

Earlier also he says:

ततः त्रिवर्गात्मकप्रवृत्तिधर्मविपरीतनिवृत्तिधर्मात्मको मोक्षफलः शान्तः ।
तत्र स्वात्मावेशेन रसचर्वणेन्युक्तम् । ibid., p. 269.

Tattvajñāna or knowledge of Ātman is the direct cause or is itself Mokṣa. Therefore Ātmajñāna or the very nature of the Soul or Self which is itself of the form of Knowledge and Bliss—jñāna and ānanda—is the Sthāyin. This Ātman is Sthāyin not in the same sense in which Rati, etc. are; it is Sthāyin par excellence. It is the basis and the root of all other Sthāyin-s. It is upon the substratum of this ultimate Sthāyin that, as a result of sense-contacts with external objects of the world, the other eight Sthāyin-s are created. Behind Rati, Hāsa, etc. is the eternal Ātman. Rati and other Sthāyin-s rise and fall but Ātman endures through all of them, sthāyi-tama; Rati and the other Sthāyin-s become its Vyabhicārin-s. (Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 337.)

Therefore it is, says Abhinavagupta, that Bharata does not mention this Śānta Rasa and its Sthāyin, Ātman. For, it belongs to a higher plane and it would have been inappropriate if Bharata had given it among Rati and the rest. It is the very basis of Rati, etc. which are not possible without it. Hence there is no need to mention specially what is undeniably implied.

अत एव पृथगस्य गणना न युक्ता ।

ibid., I, p. 337.

Bhaṭṭa Gopāla adds that Bharata abstained from indicating the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Śānta, not because he did not accept this Rasa, but because of its super-mundane nature.

विभावाद्यप्रतिपादनं तस्य परमपुरुषार्थतया लोकयात्रातिक्रान्तत्वात् ।

K. Pra. Vyākhyā, TSS ed., p. 139.

This answers also the objection that one should not go beyond the total number of the Bhāva-s which is given by Bharata as forty-nine. Abhinavagupta says that the sanctity of the number 'forty-nine' is protected and that Bharata treats of Śānta by omission, by his eloquent silence.

तेन आत्मैव ज्ञानानन्दादिविशुद्धधर्मयोगी परिकल्पितविषयोपभोग-
रहितोऽत्र स्थायी । न चास्य स्थायितया स्थायित्वं वचनीयम् । रत्यादयो
हि तत्तत्कारणान्तरोदयप्रलयोत्पद्यमाननिरुध्यमानवृत्तयः कंचित्कालम् आपे-
क्षिततया स्थायिरूपात्मभित्तिसंश्रयाः स्थायिन उच्यन्ते । तत्त्वज्ञानं तु
सकलभावान्तरभित्तिस्थानीयं सर्वस्थायिभ्यः स्थायितमं सर्वा रत्यादिकाः
चित्तवृत्तीः व्यभिचारीभावयन् निसर्गत एव सिद्धस्थायिभावमिति तन्न
वचनीयम् । अत एव पृथगस्य गणना न युक्ता । न हि खण्डमुण्डयोर्मध्ये
गोत्वमिति गण्यते । तेन एकान्नपञ्चाशद्भावा इत्यव्याहतमेव ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I. p. 337.

As the permanent wall upon which Rati, etc. are formed, Ātman, the supreme Sthāyin, is necessarily implied. This mention by silence means not only its acceptance but its acceptance as the greatest Rasa.

Another reason why Bharata has not mentioned Śānta along with Rati, etc. is the difference between Ātmajñāna and other Sthāyin-s. Ātmajñāna is not relished through the same means in the same manner as other Sthāyin-s. Since Ātma-svarūpa is usually seen as tinted by Rati, etc. the ordinary means of comprehension which comprehend Rati, etc. do not comprehend the Ātma-svarūpa. Further, Bharata never attempts to give all the possible Sthāyin-s. He gives only those Sthāyin-s which are also Vyabhicārin-s; hence it is that he clubs them all together and speaks of them as the forty-nine Bhāva-s. That Sthāyin, Ātmajñāna, which is never a Vyabhicārin anywhere, is not mentioned at all by him. How could he, knowing as he did, its real nature?

As for the argument that the definition of the drama-type Dīma, which expressly speaks of only eight Rasa-s, Abhinavagupta explains that Bharata's description really implies nine Rasa-s and Śānta is kept in mind. The further condition that the Dīma should handle dīpta or forceful Rasa-s, dīpta-rasakāvyayoniḥ would become, as he argues in the Abhinava-bhārati, superfluous, if it is not the intention to prohibit Śānta in the Dīma.

All the above-given ingenuity and strain are the unavoidable corollary of the ancient method of commenting which never desired to go against the basic text and would introduce new things only by securing for them the sanction of the basic text. The facts about the Rasa of Śānta itself which we gather from this discussion are:

1. Tattvajñāna or Ātmajñāna or Ātma-svarūpa or briefly the Ātman itself is the Sthāyin of Śānta.
2. It is like the wall; upon it are formed Rati, etc. which are upādhi-s of the pure self-illuminated Spirit. Nourishment of the permanent, unconditioned and untarnished Spirit by the appropriate Vibhāva-s, etc. will give the Śānta Rasa.
3. Though Rati, etc. are Sthāyin-s compared to Nirveda, etc. they are Vyabhicārin-s compared to the Ātma-sthāyin, which is sthāyi-tama.

न चास्य आत्मस्वभावस्य व्यभिचारित्वम्, असंभवात्, अवैचित्र्या-
वहत्वात्, अनौचित्याच्च । शम आत्मस्वभावः ।

This Ātma-svabhāva is called Śama.¹

If Ātman itself is taken as the Sthāyin of Śānta Rasa, we have the unique case of a Rasa in which the Ālambana and Sthāyin are identical. If Nirveda (Vairāgya) is the Sthāyin or even Śama, the Ālambana would be different, namely the phenomenal world with reference to which one develops aversion or non-attachment or the state of being not disturbed by it, i.e. quietude. Viśvanātha, author of the Sāhityadarpaṇa, who holds Śama as Sthāyin, gives option for the Ālambana, the worthlessness of the phenomenal world or the Self in its true form:

अनित्यत्वादिनाशेषवस्तुनिःसारता तु या ।

परमात्मस्वरूपं वा तस्यालम्बनमिष्यते ॥

III. 246-7.

¹ Abhinavagupta holds Śama which is identical with Ātma-svabhāva as a Sthāyin for all time; this is what Śārṅgadeva meant when he said that Śama which is enduring, Sthira, is not a Vyabhicārin. The anonymous commentary on the Vyaktiviveka also points out how Śama appears in the form of a Vyabhicārin in Śrīngāra also.

स्थायिनामपि व्यभिचारित्वं भवति । यथा रतेर्देवादिविषयायाः, हास्यस्य शृङ्गारादौ, शोकस्य विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारादौ शमस्य कोपामिहतस्य प्रसदोद्गमादौ ।

TSS ed., pp. 11-12.

Just as there are two different Nirveda-s, two different Tattva-jñāna-s, there are two Śama-s. The Nirveda illustrated by the verse vrthā dugdho 'naḍvān, etc. is only a Bhāva; it cannot be Tattvajñānaja-Nirveda which alone is held by some as Sthāyin. See Abhi. Bhā., pp. 335-6. Similar is the case of Vyabhicāri-Śama and Sthāyi-Śama.

Where Śānta is oriented to Bhakti, the Lord is taken as Ālambana, as Hemādri says (The Kaivalyadīpikā on the Bhāgavatamuktāphala, p. 269).

Abhinavagupta advanced the above-given arguments for Śānta and its Sthāyin without resorting to the text of Bharata on Śānta found in some recensions. In this text, Śama is given as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

अथ शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिनावात्मकः, etc.

Abhinavagupta says that Śama is only another name for Ātma-svabhāva. When one speaks of Śama or Nirveda both of which are citta-vṛtti-s, one has to qualify them as a special and superior kind to make them the Sthāyin of Śānta. This qualification is unnecessary when Ātman itself is accepted as the Sthāyin. Rati, etc. which contaminate the Ātman represent the disturbed or vyutthita state of the citta. The pure nature of the Spirit is like the white thread on which are hung coloured stones at intervals. By constant meditation and effort, the pure light within is seen. It is a state of bliss in two ways, as rasāśvāda and as the āśvāda of the real Ātma-svarūpa which is ānanda.¹

The text on Śānta found in some recensions describes Śānta as the prakṛti, and Rati and other Bhāva-s as its vikāra-s. The latter rise and fall, appear and disappear on the Ātman. They emerge from it and merge in it.

न यत्र दुःखं न सुखं न द्वेषो नापि मत्सरः ।

समः संवेषु भूतेषु स शान्तः प्रथितो रसः ॥

अस्मिन्नाटके तु मुखप्रतिमुखसन्धिषु रामायणादिष्विव रसास्वादसमुद्भूतो विगलितवेद्यन्तर आनन्द उदेति । निर्वहणसन्धौ तु विगलितवेद्यान्तरः साक्षाद् ब्रह्मानन्द एव ।

भावा विकारा रत्याद्याः शान्तस्तु प्रकृतिर्मतः ।

विकारः प्रकृतेर्जातः पुनस्तत्रैव लीयते ॥

स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्ताद्भावः प्रवर्तते ।

पुनर्निमित्तापाये च शान्त एवोपलीयते ॥

NS, VI. 106-8.

Therefore it is that Bharata, says Abhinavagupta, treated of Śānta at the head of all the Rasa-s. Further the relish of all Rasa-s is alaukika, shorn of all mundane associations, and hence śānta-prāya. The bliss realized is akin to brahmāsvāda which is ātmāsvāda. Jagannātha pursued this line and said that Rasa is the manifestation of the light of Ātman itself when the obscuring element falls away. Poetry and drama remove the bars and Ātman manifests itself:

वस्तुतस्तु वक्ष्यमाणश्रुतिस्वारस्येन भग्नावरणा चिदेव रसः ।

RG, p. 23.

Ananta Bhaṭṭa on the Rasamañjarī, Ben. Skt. Ser. ed., p. 234:

आनन्दरूपतया प्रकाशमानं रत्यवच्छिन्नं चैतन्यं शृङ्गारः । आवरणं चाज्ञानमेव ।

The Rasavilāsa of Bhūdeva Śukla, Poona, 1952, I. 1:

चारुकाव्यसमुत्पन्नमनोवृत्त्या विनाशिते ।

THE TEXT OF THE ABHINAVABHĀRATĪ ON THE ŚĀNTA RASA

IN this section, I am presenting the text of the Abhi. Bhā. on the Śānta Rasa. It would have been unnecessary to give this text here, if the text available in the GOS edition had not been so error-ridden. The text presented here by me has been corrected with the help of Professor Mahamahopadhyaya S. Kuppuswami Sastriar. I give in the footnotes the incorrect readings found in the MS. in the Madras Government Oriental MSS. Library against the letter 'M', and those in the GOS edition against the letter 'G'.¹ There are still a few passages of which completely satisfactory reconstruction has not been possible. Pandit H. Sesha Aiyangar, formerly of the Kannada Department of the University of Madras, placed at my disposal the readings in two MSS. of the Abhi. Bhā. from Māngāv Koil, which belonged to the former H. H. the Jiyar of Melkote. Some of the readings in these two Māngāv MSS. supported our reconstructions while many agreed with those found in the GOS edition. Three of the Māngāv readings were definitely helpful. The Māngāv readings are given in the footnotes, preceded by the letter 'A'.

¹ Nāṭya-śāstra, GOS, vol. I, ed. 1, pp. 333-42. In the second revised edition of 1956, some of the reconstructions offered by me here have been adopted, but unfortunately, in some places, the second edition construes the passages wrongly.

It is well known that Hemacandra, who reproduces whole sections from Abhinavagupta, helps us a good deal in the task of reconstructing the text of the Abhi. Bhā. The Śānta Rasa section in the Abhi. Bhā. is to be found, with the omission of some parts, on p. 68 (text and comm.), pp. 80-87 (comm.) and p. 96. (comm.) of Hemacandra's Kāvyaṃuśāsana in the N. S. Press edition. As pointed out in the footnotes, Hemacandra supports the two Māngāv readings selected by me, towards the close of the section.

¹ M. reads चिन्ततात्तापत्व and G. चिन्तनात् तावत्व. Both mean little. We must have a word here to mean सात्त्विकत्व. All writers from Bharata explain Sattva as Manas and therefore चित्तजत्व is suggested as meaning सात्त्विकत्व. Unfortunately Hemacandra's epitome of this passage (p. 68, comm.) does not have this word.

PREYAS, VĀTSALYA, PRĪTI, SNEHA, BHAKTI AND ŚRADDHĀ RASA-S

THE advent of the Śānta Rasa seems to have set the writers thinking on the sanctity or otherwise of the number eight or nine pertaining to the Rasa-s.¹ Close on the footsteps of Śānta, an aspect of love called Preyas or Vātsalya, covering cases of non-sexual love like that between parents and children, elders and youngsters, became a Rasa. The first work we now know mentioning Preyas as the tenth Rasa is the Kāvya-lamkāra of Rudraṭa (XII. 3). Preyas is found in Udbhaṭa as an Ālamkāra by the side of Rasavat, both of which belong to a separate class of emotion-figures. Udbhaṭa considers Preyas as the poetry of Bhāva, Bhāva-kāvya, and distinguishes it from the poetry of Rasa called Rasavat. In Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin, Preyas was a kind of sweet compliment born of devotion or love, preyaḥ priyatarākhyānam. In this sense, Preyas as Cāṭu lives in later literature also. But Udbhaṭa's view is peculiar. As Pratīhārendurāja observes, any Bhāva is Preyas for Udbhaṭa.

¹ Sivaprasada Bhattacharya, in his Sanskrit gloss (in his ed.) of the Ālamkāra-kaustubha of Kavikarṇapūra Gosvāmin in the Varendra Research Society Series, says that some Ālamkārika-s, following the Pāka-śāstra and the Vaidya-śāstra, hold Rasa-s to be six in number.

षड् रसा इति रसज्ञा भिषजः, तदनुसारिणः केचिदलंकारमार्गगा अपि ।

The basis of this statement is not given; and I have not been able to find the Ālamkārika-s who held Rasa-s to be six.

एवं भावकान्यस्य प्रेयस्वदिति लक्षणया व्यपदेशः ।

This view found no follower, since Udbhaṭa's view of Bhāva-kāvya and Rasa-kāvya and his view of Bhāva or Rasa being indicated by their own names met with criticism. The older Preyas of Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin as speech expressive of non-sexual love developed into a new Rasa. Daṇḍin says that this Preyas is very closely related to Śṛṅgāra but is distinct, since Prīti is the basis of the former whereas Rati is the Sthāyin of Śṛṅgāra.

प्राक् प्रीतिर्दर्शिता सेयं रतिः शृङ्गारतां गता । KĀ, II. 289.

The friendship or affection of parents—Sneha and Vātsalya—figure in some of the noblest poetry and there was felt a necessity to recognize a Rasa for such situations. Rudraṭa who introduces Preyas at first, mentions Sneha as its Sthāyin, snehaprakṛtiḥ preyān. That Rudraṭa thought mainly of friendship is shown not only by the Sthāyin but also by the following explication:

अन्योन्यं प्रति सुहृदोर्व्यवहारोऽयं मतस्तत्र । XVI. 18.

We now get three categories of non-sexual attachment or affection: (i) the Preyas of Rudraṭa with Sneha as its Sthāyin which comes to friendship; (ii) Vātsalya or the affection of parents and elders for children and youngsters¹ and

¹ Viśvanātha calls this Vatsala, describes it as paternal affection and gives it as a Rasa in his Sāhityadarpaṇa after giving the eight old Rasa-s and the Śānta, the ninth.

अथ मुनीन्द्रसंमतो वत्सलः —

स्फुटं चमत्कारितया वत्सलं च रसं विदुः ।

स्थायी वत्सलता स्नेहः पुत्राद्यालम्बनं मतम् ॥

(iii) Prīti, other kinds of attachment like that between a leader and a follower, a king and his officer or court-poet. To these is to be added the fourth, Bhakti,¹ reverence to elders and devotion to God.

All these aspects, to begin with, were called only Preyas which then was understood as all types of non-sexual love:

प्रीतिरप्येवमेव स्यान्न त्वस्यां सांप्रयोगिकी । Bhoja, SKĀ, V.

Daṇḍin's Preyas, as his two illustrations show, refers only to the fourth aspect called Bhakti. He actually calls it by the name Bhakti and uses as its synonym, Prīti. Commenting on Vidura's words spoken on Kṛṣṇa's arrival at his house, Daṇḍin says:

उद्दीपनानि तच्चेष्टा विद्याशौर्योदयादयः ।
आलिङ्गनाङ्गसंस्पर्शशिरश्चुम्बनमीक्षणम् ॥
पुलकानन्दबाष्पाद्या अनुभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ।
संचारिणोऽनिष्टशङ्काहर्षगर्वादयो मताः ।
पद्मगर्भच्छर्विर्गणो दैवतं लोकमातरः ॥

The illustration given is Raghu's childhood and Dilīpa's Vātsalya (Raghuvaṃśa, III). Haripāladeva (Samgītasudhākara, MT, 3082, pp. 16, 17) accepts Vātsalya as a Rasa and gives Prīti, as its Sthāyin. The Mandāramaranda-campū curiously enough considers Karuṇā or Kāruṇya (compassion) as the Sthāyin of Vātsalya: अन्ये तु करुणास्थायि वात्सल्यं दशमोऽपि च । KM ed., p. 100.

Kavikarṇapūra, who illustrates Vātsalya with Yaśodā's love for the child Kṛṣṇa, gives Mamakāra as its Sthāyin:

अत्र ममकारः स्थायी । Alaṃkāraustubha, p. 148.

¹ Kavikarṇapūra classifies love into sexual love—Sāmpṛayogiki Prīti, Maitrī, Sauhārda and Bhāva. The last is the Sthāyin of Bhakti. तत्र रतिर्यथा—

रतिश्चेतोरञ्जकता सुखभोगानुकूल्यकृत् ।
सा प्रीति-मैत्री-सौहार्द-भावसंज्ञाश्च गच्छति ॥

Alaṃkāraustubha, p. 124.

इत्याह युक्तं विदुरो नान्यतस्तादृशी धृतिः ।

भक्तिमात्रसमाराध्यः सुप्रीतश्च ततो हरिः ॥ KA, II. 277.

The other instance is the manifestation of a king's devotion to Śiva, uttered in the form of a stotra on seeing Him:

इति साक्षात्कृते देवे राज्ञो यद्राजवर्मणः ।

प्रीतिप्रकाशनं तच्च प्रेय इत्यवगम्यताम् ॥ ibid., II. 279.

It is quite natural that in Sanskrit literature, Bhakti should have come in as a dominant motif and that scholars should have accepted it as a distinct Rasa. Though Rudraṭa mentions only the Preyas of Sneha, we find the Abhi. Bhā. saying that others propose not only Bhakti but Śraddhā, Faith, also as a new Rasa. Abhinavagupta however does not consider them as distinct Rasa-s but includes them in Śānta of which the two are important accessories.

अत एव ईश्वरप्रणिधानविषये भक्तिश्रद्धे स्मृतिमतिधृत्युत्साहानुप्रविष्टे
अन्यथैव अङ्गम् (शान्तस्य) इति न तयोः पृथग्रसत्त्वेन गणनम् ॥ ¹

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 340.

Of Bhakti, more will be said in the section on Madhura Rasa. The Daśarūpaka mentions Prīti and Bhakti separately as Bhāva-s and includes them in Harṣa, Utsāha or some other similar Bhāva (IV. 84).

¹ Hemacandra reproduces this discussion on the additional Rasa-s from the Abhi. Bhā. See KAH, p. 68, text and comm. Śivarāma's Rasaratnahāra is another work which refers to the Śraddhā Rasa proposed by some and rejects it as not being a Rasa at all, being devoid of camatkāra:

श्रद्धयाश्च (अ?) सुखात्मकत्वात् चमत्कारानुत्पादान्तर(न्न र)सत्त्वमिति नव-
संख्योक्तिर्न विरुद्धा । KM Gucchaka 6, p. 120.

प्रीतिभक्त्यादयो भावाः ।

हर्षोत्साहादिषु स्पष्टमन्तर्भावान्न कीर्तिताः ॥

Prīti here means types of love other than Rati and Bhakti. To be clear about accepting friendship as Rasa, some seem to have called Sneha itself as a Rasa. Rudraṭa used the name Sneha for the Sthāyin and called the Rasa, Preyas; but these proposed Sneha as the Rasa and Ārdratā as the Sthāyin. Rudraṭa himself mentioned this Ārdratā while describing Sneha as the Sthāyin:

आर्द्रान्तःकरणतया स्नेहपदे भवति सर्वत्र ।

XV. 19.

The Abhi. Bhā. thus introduces and criticizes this Sneha Rasa with Ārdratā as its Sthāyin:

आर्द्रतास्थायिकः स्नेहो रस इति त्वसत् । स्नेहो ह्यभिषङ्गः । स च रत्युत्साहादावेव पर्यवस्यति । तथा हि—बालस्य मातापित्रादौ स्नेहो भये विश्रान्तः, यूनो मित्रजने रतौ, लक्ष्मणादेः भ्रातरि धर्मवीर एव । एवं वृद्धस्य पुत्रादावपि द्रष्टव्यम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 342.¹

This dismisses Prīti, Sneha, Vātsalya and similar Rasa-s based on attachment. This is not a commendable attitude. To

स्नेहो भक्तिर्वात्सल्यमिति हि रतेरेव विशेषः । तुल्ययोः या परस्परं रतिः स स्नेहः । अनुत्तमस्य उत्तमे रतिः प्रसक्तिः, सैव भक्तिपदवाच्या । उत्तमस्य अनुत्तमे रतिः वात्सल्यम् । एवमादौ च विषये भावस्यैव आस्वाद्यत्वम् ॥

Śārngadeva, SR, VII. 1516-19:

भक्तिं स्नेहं तथा लौल्यं केचित् त्रीन् मन्वते रसान् ।

श्रद्धार्द्रताभिलाषांश्च स्थायिनस्तेषु ते विदुः ॥

have less distinctions is no great aim. If it is said that friendship is only a variety of Rati, what should we call the Rasa in the association of Rāma and Sugrīva? It cannot be Śṛṅgāra. If brotherly attachment again is brought under Rati, what is the Rasa in the association of Rāma and Bharata, or Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa? If Dharma-vīra can be called forth to deny Rasatva to Lakṣmaṇa's attachment to Rāma, why should not opponents of Śānta call forth another kind of Vīra to deny Rasatva to Śānta? Do Abhinavagupta and Hemacandra mean that Friendship, Brotherly Attachment, Parental Affection and the like are only Bhāva-s that cannot be nourished into a state of Rasa with attendant accessories? Literature is only too full of these types of attachment. The instance of Daśaratha's death due to separation from Rāma is ample proof for the existence of Vātsalya¹ as a major mood, fit to be developed and fit to be relished. Bhoja includes it in his preliminary enumeration of ten Rasa-s.² As we have already seen, Viśvānātha, Haripāladeva and some others accept it; and as we

तत्र हास्यशृङ्गारयोः स्वरितोदात्तैः, वीररौद्राद्भुतेषु उदात्तकम्पितैः करुण-
वात्सल्यभयानकेषु अनुदात्तस्वरितकम्पितैर्वर्णैः पाठ्यमुपपादयति ।

But Vātsalya here is obviously an error of Bibhatsa which is otherwise missing. Abhinavagupta reads Bībhatsa here.

A similar strange passage occurs in ch. 22, in v. 3, (same ed.) where Rasa-s are mentioned as nine:

अव्यक्तरूपं सत्त्वं हि ज्ञेयं नवरसाश्रयम् ॥

But the correct reading here is भावरसाश्रयम् as the Kasi ed. shows.

² Śr. Pra., beginning: वत्सलभयानकशान्तनाम्नः । आम्नासिपुर्दश रसान्, etc.

shall see presently, it is acceptable to the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s.

LAULYA RASA

In the same section, the Abhi. Bhā. mentions and criticizes another Rasa called Laulya, of which the Sthāyin is given as Gardha. Abhinavagupta suggests that it can be included in Hāsa, Rati or elsewhere.

एषैव गर्वस्थायिकस्य लौल्यरसस्य प्रत्याख्याने सरणिर्मन्तव्या, हासे वा, रतौ वा, अन्यत्र पर्यवसानात् । Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 342.

Laulya seems to have been proposed to label the Rasa of an anti-hero like Rāvaṇa whose vile passion for Sītā is enormous. This thirst of heart, Abhinavagupta says, is inappropriate; it is not Rasa in him, but only Rasābhāsa; and the anaucitya or impropriety of his desire causes Hāsyā Rasa. Śārṅgadeva summarizes Abhinavagupta thus:

अयुक्तविषया तृष्णा लौल्यं तद्भास्यकारणम् ।

See also Bhānudatta, RT, ch. 5, p. 125: laulye hāsyah.¹

MṚGAYĀ AND AKṢA RASA-S

Even as Abhinavagupta does, Dhanaṃjaya also refers to other Rasa-s proposed by writers. Prīti and Bhakti, two additional Bhāva-s, and their inclusion by Dhanaṃjaya in one or the other of the Bhāva-s, were referred to previously. In the same verse, Dhanaṃjaya refers to two additional Rasa-s, Mṛgayā and Akṣa, Hunt and Gambling.

प्रीतिभक्त्यादयो भावा मृगयाक्षादयो रसाः ।

हर्षोत्साहादिषु स्पष्टमन्तर्भावान्न कीर्तिताः ॥

DR, IV. 83.

Rasa refers no longer to a mental state only; these writers generalize it to mean any motif or any 'idea'.

If we can infer anything from the mention of these additional Rasa-s by Abhinavagupta after a reference to Lollaṭa's view that Rasa-s are innumerable, we may say that it was Lollaṭa who proposed these additional Rasa-s. Though Lollaṭa's commentary on the NS is not available, we have, about that time, the Kāvyaṭīkā of Rudraṭa, which holds the same view on the number of Rasa-s as Lollaṭa is mentioned by Abhinavagupta as holding. These writers re-examined Bharata's text to find out what exactly constituted rasatva and bhāvatva. Bharata considered as Rasa-s those emotions which were 'masters', svāmibhūta-s, and were consequently attended upon by many minor ones (bahvāśrayāḥ), namely the Bhāva-s. The forty-nine Bhāva-s described by him include the eight Sthāyin-s also and these eight are once again described as Bhāva among the Bhāva-s. This shows that the eight Sthāyin-s had a Sthāyin-stage and a Bhāva-stage. When reinforced by Vyabhicārin-s, Rati, etc. became Sthāyin-s. Similarly, some writers thought, other Bhāva-s also can be reinforced by other attendant Bhāva-s and made into Sthāyin-s. According to this view, the Vyabhicārin-s themselves would have other Vyabhicārin-s; Nirveda is attended by Cintā; Śrama by Nirveda and so on. Says Abhinavagupta:

—व्यभिचारिणामपि च व्यभिचारिणो भवन्ति, यथा निर्वेदस्य चिन्ता, श्रमस्य निर्वेद इत्यादि निरूपयन्ति । तच्चासत् । Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 346.

Abhinavagupta did not accept this view.¹ But Lollāṭa's and Rudraṭa's position would make its acceptance necessary for them. Bharata says while explaining what Rasa is:

अत्र रस इति कः पदार्थः ? उच्यते ; आस्वाद्यत्वात् ।

Rudraṭa perhaps based himself on this text when he said that any Bhāva can be a Rasa, because āsvādyatva or relishability is present in it:

इति मन्तव्या रसाः सर्वे ॥

रसनाद्रसत्वमेषां मधुरादीनामिवोक्तमाचार्यैः ।

निर्वेदादिष्वपि तन्निकाममस्तीति तेऽपि रसाः ॥ XII. 3-4.

¹ If he had accepted this view, he might have given a handle to those who considered all the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s also as capable of becoming Rasa-s. So, he says, wherever there seem to occur in one Vyabhicārin many others, as for instance Vitarka, etc. in Unmāda in Purūravas, it cannot be said that one Vyabhicārin is nourished by others, but it must be said that all these are separately Vyabhicārin-s nourishing the main Sthāyin, Vipralambha Rati.

But this contention of Abhinavagupta does not seem to have any support in Bharata. He seems to allow Vyabhicārin-s in Vyabhicārin-s. Defining Dainya, the Āryā in the NS says: चिन्ता-औत्सुक्य-समुत्था (VII. 74, p. 362). Asūyā, a Vyabhicārin is given as an Anubhāva of another Vyabhicārin Garva (p. 369). In Autosukya, Cintā and Nidrā are given; and many other Vyabhicārin-s also occur here as well as in Viṣāda (p. 370).

On p. 66 of his Locana, Abhinavagupta cites क्लृप्त्यर्थ, etc. and calls it a case of Bhāva-śābalatā. He says that this verse portrays four pairs of Vyabhicārin-s appearing one after another: Vitarka-Autosukya, Mati-Smaraṇa, Śaṅkā-Dainya, and lastly Dhṛti-Cintā. He concludes however that finally Cintā is the Vyabhicārin which we relish. This seems to mean that the one Vyabhicārin of Cintā has other Vyabhicārin-s, Vitarka, etc.: पर्यन्ते तु चिन्ताया एव प्रधानतां ददती परमास्वादस्थानम् ।

Only the poet must develop the Vyabhicārin also to a state of relishability. Namisādhū explains Rudraṭa clearly and observes that there is no mental state which cannot be called Rasa, if it is developed:

अयमाशयो ग्रन्थकारस्य—यदुत नास्ति सा कापि चित्तवृत्तिः या परिपोषं गता न रसीभवति । भरतेन सहृदयावर्जकत्वप्राचुर्यात् संज्ञां चाश्रित्य अष्टौ वा नव वा रसा उक्ता इति ।

Rudraṭa was perhaps contemporaneous with Śaṅkuka (c. A.D. 850) and thus followed Lollaṭa (c. A.D. 825) on this question of Rasa-s being as many as Bhāva-s. If Bharata spoke only of eight or nine Bhāva-s as Rasa-s, it is because of their greater vogue among poets and critics. According to Abhinavagupta, Lollaṭa said the same thing:

एतावन्त एव च रसा इत्युक्तं पूर्वम् । तेन 'आनन्त्येऽपि पार्षद-प्रसिद्ध्या एतावतां प्रयोज्यत्वम्' इति यत् भट्टल्लोटेन निरूपितं तदवलेपेना-परामृश्येत्यलम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 299.

तेन रसान्तरसंभवेऽपि पार्षदप्रसिद्ध्या संख्यानियम इति यदन्यैः¹ उक्तम्, तत् प्रत्युक्तम् । भावाध्याये चैतद्वक्ष्यते ।

ibid., p. 341.

It is perhaps Lollaṭa who, while commenting on the text enumerating the Sthāyin-s, Vyabhicārin-s, etc. at the beginning of chapter 6, says regarding Sthāyin-s that Bharata did not give any fixed number for the Sthāyin-s; for, Abhinavagupta says in his commentary in this place:

स्थायिषु च संख्या नोक्तेत्यपरे ।

ibid., p. 270.

Unfortunately, the Bhāvādhyāya of the Abhi. Bhā. is, for the most part, lost and Abhinavagupta's detailed statement and refutation of Lollaṭa's view are lost to us.

Pratīhārendurāja who comes after Ānandavardhana notices this view of Rudraṭa that Nirveda and the other Bhāva-s are also Rasa-s. His explanation for the generally prevailing view that only eight or nine are Rasa-s is not very different from Lollaṭa's pārṣada-prasiddhi. Pratīhārendurāja takes his stand on caturvarga, the fourfold objective of human efforts, as contrasted with those objects which are to be avoided by the wise, the parihārya. He says that only nine are called Rasa-s because of their reference to the four Puruṣārtha-s and the name Rasa as restricted to these nine is tāntrika, technical and traditional for this Śāstra. This is a clumsy explanation; virtually this writer accepts the position of Rudraṭa. The tāntrika or pāribhāṣika nomenclature begs the question and one fails to see how any Bhāva, Nirveda or another, is irrelevant to a Puruṣārtha. Says Pratīhārendurāja :

एते च शृङ्गारादयो नव यथायोगं चतुर्वर्गप्राप्त्युपायतया तदितर-
परिहारनिबन्धनतया च रत्यादीनां स्थायिनां नवानां भावानां यः परिपोषः
तदात्मकाः । अतः तथाविधेन रूपेण आस्वाद्यत्वात् आस्वादभेदनिबन्धनेन
तान्त्रिकेण रसशब्देन अभिधीयन्ते । निर्वेदादौ तु तथाविधस्य आस्वाद्यस्य
(द्यत्वस्य) अभावात् प्रवृत्तिनिमित्तभेदनिबन्धनस्य तान्त्रिकस्य रसशब्दस्य
अप्रवृत्तिः । आस्वाद्यमात्रविवक्षया तु तत्रापि मधुराम्लादिवत् रसशब्द-
प्रवृत्तिरिविदुः । यदुक्तं शृङ्गारादीन् रसानुपक्रम्य—रसनाद्रसत्वमेषां + अस्तीति
तेऽपि रसाः¹ इति । तदाहुः—

चतुर्वर्गेतरौ प्राप्यपरिहार्यौ क्रमाद्यतः ।

शृङ्गारादिषु तान्त्रिकस्य रसशब्दस्य उक्तम् ॥ KASS. Vyākhyā, p. 49.

To some extent, the final observation of Abhinavagupta himself at the end of the sixth chapter is weak and justifies the restriction of rasatva to eight or nine on grounds neither stronger than nor different from Lollaṭa's pārṣada-prasiddhi or Pratīhārendurāja's caturvarga-prāpti-upāya.

एते नवैव रसाः, पुमर्थोपयोगित्वेन, रञ्जनाधिक्येन वा

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 299; also p. 341.

VIASANA, DUḤKHA AND SUKHA RASA-S

The Nāṭyadarpaṇa of Rāmacandra and Guṇacandra follows Abhinavagupta, reproducing these very words of the Abh. Bhā. but adds that though usefulness in Puruṣārtha and rañjanā restrict Rasa-s to nine, more Rasa-s are possible: Lauḷya with Gardha as its Sthāyin; Sneha with Ārdratā as its Sthāyin; Vyasana Rasa with Āsakti as its Sthāyin; Duḥkha Rasa with Arati as its Sthāyin and Sukha Rasa with Saṃtoṣa as its Sthāyin:

संभवन्ति त्वपरेऽपि—यथा गर्धस्यायी लौल्यः, आर्द्रतास्यायी स्नेहः,
आसक्तिस्थायि व्यसनम्, अरतिस्थायि दुःखम्, संतोषस्थायि सुखमित्यादि ।
GOS, 1st ed., p. 163.

According to the view that accepts the Vyabhicārīn-s also as Rasa-s, the names Sthāyin and Vyabhicārīn are not fixed names of two sets, but rather names of stages. A Sthāyin may be a Vyabhicārīn and a Vyabhicārīn may become a

Sthāyin. Abhinavagupta himself draws our attention to Bharata prohibiting the Vyabhicārin Jugupsā in Śṛṅgāra (Abhi. Bhā., p. 334). This Jugupsā is a Sthāyin. The Vyaktiviveka, discussing this question, says that Sthāyin-s appear also as Vyabhicārin-s and it is in the latter aspect that they are dealt with by Bharata in the Bhāvādhyāya:

तत्र स्थायिभावानामुभयी गतिः । . . . यत्तु भावाध्याये स्थायिनां
लक्षणमुक्तं तद्व्यभिचारिदशापन्नानामेव . . . । TSS. ed., p. 13.

The commentary says here:

स्थायिनामपि व्यभिचारित्वं भवति । यथा रतेर्देवादिविषयायाः, हासस्य
शृङ्गारादौ, शोकस्य विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारादौ, क्रोधस्य प्रणयकोपादौ, विस्मयस्य

Further, we find among the Vyabhicārin-s, Amarṣa which is only Krodha, the Sthāyin of Raudra, but in a lower degree; Trāsa which is Bhaya, the Sthāyin of Bhayānaka; Viṣāda which is only Śoka, the Sthāyin of Karuṇa Rasa.

Bhoja is a writer who held the same view as Lollaṭa and Rudraṭa on the number of Rasa-s. Bhoja's theory of Rasa is a very complex problem and it has been expounded at length by the present writer in the Rasa chapter of his work Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa.¹ Bhoja is a monist and a pluralist combined, regarding this question of the number of Rasa-s. Fundamentally, Rasa is only one to him, and that is, Śṛṅgāra or Ahaṃkāra or Abhimāna. Compared to this, even Rati-Śṛṅgāra, Hāsyā, Vīra and the other old Rasa-s, are unfit to be called Rasa-s, but are only Bhāva-s; much more so the Vyabhicārin-s. But this is a pāramārthika state of affairs and there is a vyāvahārika state also in which, by upacāra, the name Rasa, by virtue of the immanence of Ahaṃkāra in all of them, applies to all the forty-nine Bhāva-s.

UDĀTTA AND UDDHATA RASA-S

If we turn to Bhoja's SKĀ, ch. 5, we find him first mentioning only the Sthāyin-s of the eight old Rasa-s:

रतिर्हासश्च ।

. विस्मयश्चाष्टौ स्थायिमावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ V. 14.

Then, he adds, that these Rasa-s have viśeṣa-s, which, as a matter of fact, means, additional Rasa-s:

शृङ्गारवीरकरुणारौद्राद्भुतभयानकाः ।

बीभत्सहास्यप्रेयांसः शान्तोदात्तोद्धता रसाः ॥ V. 164.

The additional Rasa-s mentioned here are the old Śānta, the Preyas which we have already heard of and two absolutely new Rasa-s, Udātta and Uddhata. Dr. Abhaykumar Guha, writing on the Rasa cult in the Caitanya-caritāmṛta, in the Sir Asutosh Mookerjee Silver Jubilee Volumes, says (III, pt. 3, p. 375): 'Another rhetorician, Bhojarāja, adds one more, e.g. Preman (love). Thus according to Bhojarāja, eleven rasa-s in all.' He further says that, to the well-known nine, some add Vātsalya, while Bhoja adds Preman, thus making them eleven. This information is wrong. Dr. S. K. De says in vol. II of his Studies in the History of Sanskrit Poetics (p. 264) that Bhoja mentions as many as ten Rasa-s, including the Śānta and Preyas; this also is incorrect. As shown above, Bhoja accepts twelve Rasa-s in all in his SKĀ. There is no peculiarity about Śānta and Preyas¹ in Bhoja, both of which are Rasa-s

¹ (a) Bhoja gives Preyas as vatsala-prakṛti, i.e. having Vātsalya as its Sthāyin (SKĀ, p. 514). Bhoja's illustration is however not friendship, but only love for woman which will not prove Preyas as different from Śṛṅgāra. As a matter of fact, Preyas is considered by Bhoja as the Rasa lying at the root of Śṛṅgāra and all other types of love. Preyas is called ahetu-pakṣapāta:

रतिप्रीत्योरपि चायमेव मूलप्रकृतिरिष्यते । यदिस्थमाहुः—

‘ अहेतुः पक्षपातो यस्तस्य नास्ति प्रतिक्रिया ।

स हि स्नेहात्मकस्तन्तुरन्तर्भूतानि सीव्यति ॥ ’

(Uttararāmacarita, V. 17) SKĀ, p. 515.

The verse from the Uttararāmacarita quoted by Bhoja occurs in the drama to explain the inexplicable love that two persons, of whatever description they may be, evince mutually on seeing each other, called tārāmaitraka and caṅśūrāga. This is a purer and more basic love which finds a high place in Bhoja's imaginative mind. Bhoja, as can be seen in the last section of this book, synthesizes all Rasa-s and Bhāva-s in this Preyas or Preman.

from earlier times. The two new Rasa-s of Bhoja are Udātta and Uddhata. They are both explained and illustrated on p. 515 of the SKĀ. Mati is held as the Sthāyin of the Udātta Rasa and Garva as the Sthāyin of the Uddhata Rasa. Bhoja says that the Udātta is also called Ūrjasvin.

It is clear that Bhoja proposed these two new Rasa-s as a result of his realization that each type of hero shall be distinguished by a Rasa which dominates his character and constitutes his individuality. Thus Śānta is the Rasa of the Dhīra-śānta hero; Preyas of the Dhīra-lalita; Udātta or Ūrjasvin of the Dhīrodātta and Uddhata of Dhīroddhata. He says expressly in his Śr. Pra.:

न च अष्टावेवेति नियमः, यतः शान्तं प्रेयांसम् उद्धतम् ऊर्जस्विनं
च केचिद्रसमाचक्षते । तन्मूलश्च किल नायकानां धीरशान्त-धीरललित-
धीरोद्धत-धीरोदात्तव्यपदेशः । Mad. MS., vol. II, pp. 337-8.

Among old Sanskrit writers also, as among modern research scholars, few had a correct knowledge of what the king of Dhārā said actually. Bopadeva and Hemādri in their Bhāgavatamuktāphala and its commentary Kaivalya-dīpikā took note of Bhoja's Preyas, Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s and

Hāsyā is love for Hāsa; Vīra is love for Utsāha and so on. In his Śrīngārāprakāśa, ch. III, Bhoja says at the very outset:

रसांस्त्वह प्रेमाणमेव आमनन्ति ।

(b) Dr. De and Dr. Guha evidently owe their view of the number of Rasa-s accepted by Bhoja to Kavikarṇapūra's Alaṃkāra-kaustubha:

भोजस्तु वत्सलप्रेमभ्याम् एकदश रसानाचष्टे । p. 123.

Bhoja's synthesis of all Rasa-s in Preman is to be found in this writer also; of this more later. (See Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, pp. 147-8.)

rejected them.¹ Śiṅgabhūpāla was the other writer who caught sight of Bhoja's Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s and criticized them in his Rasārṇavasudhākara, TSS ed., pp. 168-72. The anonymous Sāhityamīmāṃsā (TSS, 114), a work largely indebted to Bhoja, also notes Bhoja's Udātta, Uddhata and Preyas and remarks that some would consider these three Rasa-s as included in the eight. I have dealt with this elsewhere.²

In addition to these two new Rasa-s, Bhoja, like Rudraṭa, recognized all the Bhāva-s as being capable of becoming Rasa-s. In the Vyavahāra-stage, Bhoja held all the forty-nine Bhāva-s as Rasa-s³:

Bhoja restates Rudraṭa's position with some arguments. He asks: If Rati and the other seven become Rasa-s, why not Harṣa and the rest? If it is said that Rati, etc. alone become Rasa-s by virtue of their being Sthāyin-s, why are not Harṣa and others Sthāyin-s? It cannot be said that all these eight and these eight only are 'permanent', and Harṣa, etc. are 'fleeting'. Among these eight also, there are Bhaya, Hāsa, Śoka, Krodha, etc. which are not 'permanent'. Permanence or evanescence is not invariably inherent in any Bhāva but is born as a result of character and circumstance. Universality and the quality of being a major mood do not pertain to these eight only. Cintā is as much a major mood, in a character and in a set of conditions, as Rati. Therefore, even as Rati, Glāni (Fatigue), or Harṣa (Delight), have their own Vyabhicārin-s, Anubhāva-s and Vibhāva-s.¹ Provided the poet develops these, Harṣa, etc. also, with their attendant emotional conditions, they also attain to sthāyitva and rasatva. Thus, in a later section devoted to illustration, Bhoja speaks of Ānanda Rasa with Harṣa as its Sthāyin.² (SKĀ, p. 636 and Śr. Pra., vol. II, p. 394.) On pp. 394-5 of his Śr. Pra. (vol. II) and p. 627 of his SKĀ, he speaks, along with the Vīra and Uddhata Rasa-s, of the new Rasa-s Svāntarya, Ānanda, Praśama, and Pāravaśya. On p. 399 of the Śr. Pra. (vol. II) and 629 of his SKĀ, he speaks of Sādhvasa, Vilāsa, Anurāga and Saṃgama Rasa-s. This beats Rudraṭa who mentioned Nirvedādi only, i.e. all the citta-vṛtti-s and primarily the Vyabhicārin-s, as Rasa-s. But Bhoja extends rasatva to Sāttvika-s also, which are physical manifestations. And in this respect, he is one with Namisādhū who says while commenting on the bit in Rudraṭa:

इति मन्तव्या रसाः सर्वे—

इतिशब्दः एवंप्रकारार्थः । एवंप्रकारा अन्येऽपि भावा रतिनिर्वेद-
स्तम्भादयः सर्वेऽपि रसा बोद्धव्याः ।

² The Nāṭyadarpaṇa, as pointed out above, mentions Sukha as a Rasa with Saṃtoṣa as its Sthāyin. Contentment, Saṃtoṣa, is Ānandavardhana's Trṣṇākṣaya and Sukha in the Nāṭyadarpaṇa is really Śānta Rasa.

Though called Bhāva-s, the Sāttvika-s are physical manifestations; śārīras tu sāttvikabhāvādīḥ says Bhānudatta in his Rasataranginī. But to Bhoja, even these are Rasa-s, as much as any citta-vṛtti. Fortunately the inanimate Uddīpana Vibhāva-s like the southern breeze and moonlight and the Ālambana Vibhāva-s which are characters themselves are not made Rasa-s! To these Bhoja would be content to give the name rasānvayavibhūti-s. But there seem to have been some, before Bhoja also, who would take, as the Daśarūpaka points out, such themes as Mṛgayā (hunt) and Akṣa (gambling) as Rasa-s.

From a passage in the Locana of Abhinavagupta we understand that a period of chaos prevailed in the world of Rasa-s. Abhinavagupta says that some hold the pure Vibhāva only as Rasa; some Sthāyin only; some the Vyabhicārin only; some the interplay of all these; some the story enacted itself and some all this put together:

अन्ये तु शुद्धं विभावम्, अपरे शुद्धमनुभावं, केचित्तु स्थायिमात्रम्,
इतरे व्यभिचारिणम्, अन्ये तत्संयोगिनम्, एके अनुकार्यं, केचन सकलमेव
समुदायं रसमाहुरित्यलं बहुना ।

Locana, p. 69.

It is perhaps on the authority of this passage in the Locana that Jagannātha Paṇḍita says in his RG, p. 28:

‘विभावादयः त्रयः समुदिता रसः’ इति कतिपये । ‘त्रिषु य
एव चमत्कारी स एव रसोऽन्यथा तु त्रयोऽपि न’ इति बहवः ।
‘भाव्यमानो विभाव एव रसः’ इत्यन्ये । ‘अनुभावस्तथा तथा’ इतीतरे ।
‘व्यभिचार्येव तथा तथा परिणमति’ इति केचित् ।

Such a view of the concept of Rasa has been criticized by Abhinavagupta.¹ Surely the very substratum of the

Bhāva-s, namely the characters, the Ālambana Vibhāva-s, cannot be called Rasa. Things like moonlight and the southern breeze, which are jaḍa and are conditions of Nature which kindle the sentiment, Uddīpana-s, cannot possibly be mental states, citta-vṛtti-s, and are thus not to be called Rasa-s. Similarly the Sāttvika. What Bhāva is a tear which is a drop of water and romāñca which is hair standing on end? While defining, explaining and illustrating the eight Sāttvika-s, which are also Rasa-s to him, Bhoja says in his SKĀ (pp. 498-500) that though they become Rasa-s, they, being Sāttvika-s, are not attended by accessory Saṃcārin-s:

अयं च स्तम्भः पुष्टोऽपि सात्त्विकत्वात् सदैव अन्यानुयायीति
नानुभावादिभिरनुबध्यते ।

अस्यापि (रोमाञ्चस्य) सात्त्विकत्वात् अन्यानुबन्धादयो न जायन्ते ।
SKĀ, p. 498.

What does Bhoja mean by such qualified Rasa-s? How can an unattended thing be considered puṣṭa or developed? If it is still looking up to something to render itself understood anyamukhaḥprekṣin, how is it leading? A mere description of Stambha cannot make an instance of Stambha Rasa. The concept of Rasa means (1) an emotional state and (2) an emotional state which is pradhāna. This pradhānatva is not a mere question of a poet nourishing a Bhāva. It means that the Bhāva is, by nature, a major mood, within which occur a number of secondary emotional states. Only such a major state of mind can be reinforced by attendant conditions. Bhoja says Glāni can be reinforced by Śrama, etc. This is not possible. When it is said that one is glāna, fatigued, the question is at once asked, and the mind does not rest without asking this question: Why is he fatigued? That is, there cannot be viśrānti in a minor or fleeting feeling; such a minor mood is common to more than one state of mind. One may be fatigued because of Vipralambha, because of fighting in Vīra, because of Yogic practice in Śānta. But when it is said that Rāma loves Sītā, there is no more question. A Sthāyin explains a world of feelings; it is like a master with many servants; it is independent, svatantra and ananyamukhaprekṣin, ananyānuṣāyin and svaviśrānta. This is the significance of the simple but effective simile of the King and the followers. Abhinavagupta clearly explains the position thus:

अप्रधाने च वस्तुनि कस्य संविद् विश्राम्यति, तस्यैव प्रत्ययस्य प्रधानान्तरं प्रत्यनुधावतः स्वात्मनि अविश्रान्तत्वात् । अतो अप्रधानत्वं जडे विभावानुभाववर्गे, व्यभिचारिनिचये च संविदात्मकेऽपि नियमेन अन्यमुख-प्रेक्षिणि संभवतीति तदतिरिक्तः स्थाय्येव चर्वणापात्रम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 283.

ये त्वेते ऋतुमाल्यादयो विभावाः बाह्याश्च बाष्पप्रभृतयो अनुभावाः
ते न भावशब्दव्यपदेश्याः ।

भावशब्देन तावत् चित्तवृत्तिविशेषा एव विवक्षिताः ।

ibid., ch. 7, p. 343.

As regards the criticism that some among the accepted Sthāyin-s of old are less permanent, Abhinavagupta accepts that there does exist a graded prādhānya among them. He accepts also that sometimes, the Sthāyin-s become Vyabhicārin-s but Vyabhicārin-s do not become Rasa-s. Vyabhicārin-s are always paratantra.¹ It cannot be contended that all

¹ To Abhinavagupta, the Vyabhicārin-s are always paratantra; to Bhoja, they are svatantra and paratantra according as they are Rasa or Bhāva. There is a writer, later than Vidyānātha, named Venkaṭanārāyaṇadīkṣita, of the Āndhradeśa, who seems to follow

Bhāva-s are equally relevant to the Puruṣārtha-s. The point in the argument of caturvargopayoga is this: There are any number of things that man aspires for and works to get; but all this falls under the four heads of Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa. Similarly, though any feeling of man, as such, cannot but be related to his activity towards caturvarga-prāpti, there is a classification and grouping possible among them, according to which we arrive at a few dominant heads, under which the rest can be brought. The argument of rañjanādhikya means this: Though there is āsvādyatva in everything in poetry and drama, it is only some mental conditions that can be handled as leading themes; how can Glāni be worked at as the Rasa of a drama and who will relish it?

Jagannātha Paṇḍita adopts a peculiar attitude towards this question. He raises the problem by pointing to Bhakti as an additional Rasa. As love for God, an anurāga, it cannot be brought under Śānta, since Śānta implies absence of any Rāga. He replies that all Rati except the Rati between man and woman is only a Bhāva and can never become a Rasa. If it is argued that Bhagavad-Rati can be taken as the Sthāyi-Rati and the Strī-puṃ-Rati be relegated to the Bhāva-class, another might propose Rati for children as a Sthāyin and a the view of writers like Bhoja. For, he says that Vyabhicārin-s are of two kinds, svatantra and paratantra; when they help to heighten another, they are the latter; they are the former when they do not have to heighten another:

परतन्त्राः स्वतन्त्राश्च द्विविधा व्यभिचारिणः ।

परपोषकतां प्राप्ताः परतन्त्रा इतीरिताः ।

तदभावे स्वतन्त्राः स्युः भावा इति च ते स्मृताः ॥

Śṛṅgārasāra, MD. 12958, pp. 112-13.

He however does not explain his position further.

third might ask why Jugupsā and Śoka cannot be put down as Vyabhicārin-s instead of being called Sthāyin-s. The whole system of Bharata will then have to be overhauled and this is far from desirable! Bharata alone is the guide and authority to decide which Bhāva is Sthāyin and which Vyabhicārin:

न चासौ शान्तरसेऽन्तर्भावमर्हति । अनुरागस्य वैराग्यविरुद्धत्वात् ।
 उच्यते—भक्तेः देवादिविषयरतित्वेन भावान्तर्गततया रसत्वानुपपत्तेः ।

 कुली स्यात् । रसानां नवत्वगणना च मुनिवचननियन्त्रिता भज्येत, इति
 यथाशास्त्रमेव ज्यायः ।

RG, pp. 45-6.

BHAKTI AND MADHURA-RASA

It was pointed out previously how Daṇḍin illustrated Preyas by two instances of devotion to God, Bhakti. It is natural that, in this country, this sentiment of devotion should have been soon accepted as a Rasa. But Abhinavagupta and others proposed to bring it under Śānta. Śānta is the Rasa relating to the final Puruṣārtha, i.e. Mokṣa; and many are the paths leading to Mokṣa. The three paths of Bhakti, Karman and Jñāna are well known. It may be that Bhakti is in some cases an āṅga of the Śānta developed on lines of Jñāna but the advocates of Bhakti held it to be supreme by itself. They made Jñāna and Karman its aids; the release, Mokṣa, from everything which was the aim of the jñānin, the Bhakta did not favour. He wanted that he should permanently be loving God.

Just as Vīra Rasa has the four varieties, Dāna, etc. this Bhakti also has the varieties of Madhura or Śṛṅgāra or Ujjvala, i.e. love as in the case of the Gopī-s towards Kṛṣṇa, Sakhya as in the case of Arjuna, Vātsalya as in the case of Devakī, Yaśodā, Vasudeva and Nanda, Dāsyā or servitude as in the case of other devotees.

BOPADEVA ON BHAKTI

It was Bopadeva and Hemādri who, in their Bhāgavatamuktāphala and its commentary Kaivalyadīpikā,¹ developed this idea of Bhakti as the main Rasa taking diverse forms and having other Rasa-s subservient to it. In chapter 11, the Bhāgavatamuktāphala says that the devotee or one having Bhakti is of nine kinds and the Rasa of Bhakti takes the form of the nine Rasa-s: Hāsyā, Śṛṅgāra, Karuṇā, Raudra, Bhayānaka, Bibhatsa, Śānta, Adbhuta and Vīra:

स नवधा भक्तः । भक्तिरसस्यैव हास्य-शृङ्गार-करुण-रौद्र-भयानक-बीभत्स-शान्त-अद्भुत-वीर-रूपेणानुभवात् ।

p. 164.

In the commentary on this, the Kaivalyadīpikā, the position of those opposed to Bhakti as a Rasa is repeated and Bhakti is established as a legitimate Rasa, capable of being relished and having all the required constituents of Sthāyin, etc.:

सामाजिकानां हि यस्मादेवंसामग्रीको भक्तिरसः, तस्मादनपह्वीय
इत्यर्थः । तत्रैषा सामग्री । केनाप्युपायेन मनोनिवेशः² स्थायी । चरित्र-
श्रवणादयः उद्दीपनविभावाः । विष्णुभक्तश्चालम्बनम् । अनुभावास्तु स्तम्भादयो
वक्ष्यमाणाः । यथायोग्यं धृत्यादिव्यभिचारिणश्च । उपायस्तु रतिहास्यादिः ।

ibid., p. 167.

² i.e. in Viṣṇu.

Hemādri then criticizes Abhinavagupta and Hemacandra for not accepting Bhakti as a Rasa and points out that if on the score of its restricted appeal, it is not considered as a Rasa, the same difficulty is in Śānta too; no, in all Rasa-s, for each Rasa evokes response only in those hearts which are attuned to it:

न च संगच्छमानोऽप्ययमसर्वविषयत्वाद् रसत्वात् च्यवतामिति
चोद्यम् । तथा सति सर्वरसोच्छेदापातात् । . . . एवं प्रशान्तब्रह्मचारिप्रभृतयः
शृङ्गाररसास्वादे बहिरङ्गाः । . . . अननुभूतशोकस्पर्शानां च करुणरसास्वादावसरे
पाषाणप्रत्ययत्वम् । तस्मात् सवासनस्यैव रसचर्वणेऽपि(णेति) सर्वथा निस्तुषं भक्तिरसदर्शनम् ।

pp. 167-8.

The elaboration of Bhakti Rasa on these lines in which the rhetoricians of Bengal who followed the school of Caitanya specialized was a continuation of what Bopadeva did as a pioneer. Rūpagosvāmin acknowledges his indebtedness to Bopadeva when he says in his Ujvalanīlamāṇi:

स्पष्टं मुक्ताफले चैतहोपदेवेन वर्णितम् । KM 95, p. 450.

Rūpa's two works, the Bhaktirasāmṛtasindhu and the Ujvalanīlamāṇi deal with this Bhakti Rasa at very great length. Dr. Abhaykumar Guha has dealt with this subject in his article on the Rasa cult in the Caitanyacaritāmṛta in the Sir Asutosh Mookerjee Silver Jubilee Volumes (III, pt. 3, pp. 368-88); and Dr. S. K. De's complete account of 'The Bhakti-Rasa-Śāstra of Bengal Vaiṣṇavism' in the IHQ (vol. 8, 1932, pp. 643-88), obviates the need for us to devote any part of this book to this subject.¹

¹ See also pp. 192-3 of his book, The Early History of the Vaiṣṇava Faith and Movement in Bengal, Calcutta, 2nd. ed., 1961.

These Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal accept the eight Rasa-s of Bharata; accept the Śānta; accept the Vātsalya; accept the 'Sneha-prakṛtiḥ Preyān' or the 'Ārdratā-sthāyikāḥ Snehaḥ' as Sakhya and add only one absolutely new Rasa-concept, namely Dāsyā. Thus they speak of twelve Rasa-s but they give a new orientation to the whole scheme, wherein lies the speciality of their school. The old Śṛṅgāra becomes the chief Rasa; it is Rati for their God; it is also called Madhura and Ujjvala. Along with this Madhura, there are four others which are primary; they are Śānta, Dāsyā, Sakhya and Vātsalya. These five are called the five Mukhya Bhakti Rasa-s. The rest, the seven (Hāsya, Adbhuta, Vīra, Karuṇa, Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Raudra), are secondary, the Gauṇa Bhakti Rasa-s. The primary Bhakti Rasa-s numbering five are the five forms of Bhakti; the seven secondary Rasa-s are more or less Vyabhicārin-s for the five primary Rasa-s, for they are Rasa-s only when they involve Kṛṣṇa-rati:

शान्त दास्य (सख्य) मधुर रस नाम
 कृष्ण भक्ति रस मध्ये ए पञ्च प्रधान ।
 हास्याद्भुत वीर करुण रौद्र बीभत्स भय
 पञ्चविध भक्ते गौण सप्त रस ह्य ।
 पञ्चरस स्थायी व्यापी रहे भक्तमने
 सप्तगौण आगन्तुके पाइये कारणे ॥

(Quoted by Dr. A. K. Guha in the article referred to above.)

According to the table given by Dr. De in his article (p. 666), Dāsyā is called Prīta (rendered as Faithfulness) and Sakhya is called Preyas (rendered as Friendship).

Kavikarṇapūra's Alaṃkāra-kaustubha is a regular Alaṃkāra treatise but it introduces some ideas of these Vaiṣṇava Alaṃkārika-s also. Kavikarṇapūra does not give us the classification into Mukhya and Gauṇa Rasa, and we miss also Dāśya in his work. He accepts the eight Rasa-s of Bharata, the Śānta and the Vātsalya. To these ten he adds two more, Preman and Bhakti. Preman is the name he gives to the Madhura Rasa, the divine Śṛṅgāra between Kṛṣṇa and the Gopī-s. He considers Citta-drava as its Sthāyin. According to him, this love is not Śṛṅgāra. He also records the view of some who hold Śṛṅgāra as the Rasa between Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa and says that, in that case, Preman will be the aṅga of that Śṛṅgāra. But, according to himself, Preman is the aṅgin; Śṛṅgāra, its aṅga. This Preman, Kavikarṇapūra considers as Love Supreme within which every other Rasa comes:

अथ प्रेमरसः . . . अत्र चित्तद्रवः स्थायी । प्रेमरसे सर्वे
रसा अन्तर्भवन्तीत्यत्र महीयानेव प्रपञ्चः । ग्रन्थगौरवभयाद्दिङ्मात्रमुक्तम् ।
केषांचिन्मते श्रीराधाकृष्णयोः शृङ्गार एव रसः । तन्मतेऽप्येतदुदाहरणं
नासङ्गतम् । शृङ्गारोऽङ्गी प्रेम अङ्गम्, अङ्गस्यापि कचिदुद्विक्तता । वयं तु
प्रेमाङ्गी, शृङ्गारोऽङ्गमिति विशेषः । तथा च—

उन्मज्जन्ति निमज्जन्ति प्रेम्ण्यखण्डरसत्वतः ।

सर्वे रसाश्च भावाश्च तरङ्गा इव वारिधौ ॥

Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, p. 148.

This view of Preman will make it the basic Love which, Bhoja also says, lies at the root, as Mūla-prakṛti, of Rati and Prīti.

The Vāghela king, Viśvanāthasimha, a great devotee of Rāma and the author of a number of works on Rāma (A.D.

1853-4), treats of Bhagavad-Bhakti as a Rasa at the end of his treatise Sarvasiddhānta (see Rajendralal Mitra, Notices of MSS., vol. VII, p. 100, No. 2329). It would be interesting to compare his elaboration of this subject with that of the Bengal Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s.

MADHUSŪDANA SARASVATĪ ON BHAKTI RASA

It is a well-known fact that Madhusūdana Sarasvatī, the Advaitic dialectician, was a great devotee of the personal God in the form of Kṛṣṇa. In this role, he has left to us a Stotra and a treatise on devotion called Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana,¹ a work in which the subject is approached from the point of view of the Ālaṃkārika and Bhakti is expounded as a Rasa. Though this Rasa is old and has been dealt with by others, as could be seen from the foregoing survey, the treatment by Madhusūdana Sarasvatī has its own peculiarities.

Generally, the Puruṣārtha-s are said to be four: Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa. Madhusūdana Sarasvatī says that Puruṣārtha is really that which is bliss untainted by misery, duḥkhhāsaṃsprṛṣṭasukha, and that, if one speaks of four Puruṣārtha-s, one calls the means the end, adopting the common upacāra (p. 5). Since devotion to God, Bhagavad-Bhakti, is one of the ways of attaining such unmixed bliss, Bhakti also is a Puruṣārtha:

अतो भगवद्भक्तियोगस्यापि दुःखासंभिन्नसुखत्वेनैव परमपुरुषार्थत्वमित्याह—‘निरुपमसुखसंविद्रूपमस्पृष्टदुःखम्’ इति । p. 5.

He separates Jñāna and Bhakti and consequently does not include Bhakti in the fourth Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. He bases himself on the difference in character in aspirants to spiritual salvation, which explains why some take to the path of knowledge, Jñāna, and some to the path of devotion, Bhakti. Firm minds seek the former through cultivated Nirveda, while softer minds tending to be emotional seek the latter:

ततश्च अद्रुतचित्तस्य निर्वेदपूर्वकं तत्त्वज्ञानम् । द्रुतचित्तस्य तु भगवत्कथाश्रवणादिभागवतधर्मश्रद्धापूर्विका भक्तिरिति अवधित्वेन द्वयमप्युपात्तम् । p. 2.

On the basis of certain texts in the Bhāgavata, he even says that Jñāna also becomes a means and not an end, a means to the attainment of citta-prasāda, which is necessary for Bhakti. This makes Jñāna a Saṃcārin of Bhakti.

अत्र 'मनो यावत् प्रसीदति' (भा. XI. 20. 22) इति भक्तियोग एव ज्ञानावधित्वेन उक्तः । p. 3.¹

He accepts two kinds of Bhakti, the means and the end, sādhana and phala. Even as Jñāna can be a means to Bhakti, Bhakti itself, i.e. different forms or stages of it, can be. The ¹ On p. 11 he points out the difference between Bhakti and Brahmayāyā or Jñāna. The two are there for two different kinds of adhikārin-s. The common man or anybody as such is a candidate for Bhakti; whereas, only he who has acquired the four sādhana-s is eligible for Brahmayāyā. In form also, the two differ: Bhakti is a savikalpaka-cittavṛtti and Brahmayāyā is a nirvikalpaka-cittavṛtti. In the former, the mind takes the form of God.

On p. 6, he points out to the critics who would not give Bhakti such a supreme and independent status of Puruṣārtha, that they should accept Bhakti as a Puruṣārtha, at least as forming part of the first or the fourth, Dharma or Mokṣa.

bhāgavata-dharma-s like śravaṇa and kīrtana, which produce citta-prasāda and sattva-suddhi, form Sādhana-bhakti (p. 8). Bhakti itself can serve to intensify Bhakti.¹

The word Bhakti itself is explained by him in a very original manner. All writers explain Bhakti as Rati for God. He does not say this at first. According to him, Bhakti is the citta taking the form of the Lord. The citta or antaḥkaraṇa takes the form of the object it comes into contact with; bhagavad-ākārātā is Bhakti:

भजनम् अन्तःकरणस्य भगवदाकारतारूपं भक्तिः ।

द्रुतस्य भगवद्धर्माद्वारावाहिकतां गता ।

सर्वेशे मनसो वृत्तिर्भक्तिरित्यभिधीयते ॥ I. 3.

. . . या सर्वेशविषया वृत्तिः भगवदाकारतेत्यर्थः, तदाकार-तैव हि सर्वत्र वृत्तिशब्दोऽस्माकं दर्शने; अतः सा भक्तिरित्यभिधीयते । p. 13.

By karāṇa-vyutpatti, Bhakti means the sādhana-s also:

‘भज्यते सेव्यते भगवदाकारम् अन्तःकरणं क्रियते अनया’ इति
करणव्युत्पत्त्या भक्तिशब्देन श्रवणकीर्तनादि साधनमभिधीयते । p. 8.

Thus the word Bhakti would apply to the Uddīpana-s and the Anubhāva-s also.

Madhusūdana Sarasvatī explains all details, Vibhāva-s, etc. according to his view. The Ālambana-vibhāva is of course the Lord (p. 6):

मुकुन्द इति भक्तियोगस्य विषयनिर्देशः, सर्वान्तर्यामी सर्वेश्वर एव
भक्तिरसालम्बनविभाव इति वक्ष्यते ।

¹ On this, see also Upaniṣad Brahmendra's Upēyanāmaivēka and my Introduction to it, ALB, vol. 29, 1965.

Tulasī, Candana, etc. are the Uddipana-vibhāva-s; Anubhāva-s are tears of joy or closing of eyes and the like. Regarding the Sthāyin, the older writers give Rati, but Madhusūdana holds the citta which has taken the form of the Lord, bhagavadākārātā, as the Sthāyin. This Cittavṛtti develops into the Rasa of ineffable bliss:

सकलविषयविमुखमनसः महाभागस्य कस्यचित् भगवद्गुणगरिमग्रन्थन-
रूपग्रन्थश्रवणजनितद्रुतिरूपायां मनोवृत्तौ सर्वसाधनफलभूतायां गृहीतभगवदा-
कारायां विभावानुभावव्यभिचारिसंयोगेन रसरूपतया विभावानुभावव्यभि-
चारिसंयोगाद्रसनिष्पत्तिः इति ।

विभावो द्विविधः—आलम्बनविभावः उद्दीपनविभावश्च । तत्र आलम्बन-
विभावो भगवान्, उद्दीपनविभावः तुलसीचन्दनादिः, अनुभावो नेत्रविक्रियादिः ।
व्यभिचारिणो भावाः निर्वेदादयः; व्यक्तीभवद्भगवदाकारतारूपरसाख्यः
स्थायी भावः परमानन्दसाक्षात्कारात्मकः प्रादुर्भवति; स एव भक्तियोग
इति; तं परमं निरतिशयं पुरुषार्थं वदन्ति रसज्ञाः । p. 4.

It must be noted here that, though Madhusūdana Sarasvatī distinguishes Śānta and Bhakti as essentially different, he still gives Nirveda or sakalaviṣayavimukhamanaskatā (Vairāgya) as a condition precedent even to the Uddipana-vibhāva. This would however make Śānta an aṅga. Though he gives his Sthāyin for Bhakti as bhagavadākāra-cittavṛtti, there does not seem to be any great difference between this and Bhagavad-Rati. For he holds that the result of this Cittavṛtti, its phala, is intense love for God: bhagavadviṣayaka-premaprakaśo bhaktiphalam, page 11. On page 16, he says that this molten state of the mind is called Praṇaya, Anurāga, Sneha, etc. which are all names of Rati.

इयमेव द्रवावस्था प्रणयानुरागस्नेहादिशब्दैरपि संकीर्त्यते । p. 16.

According to Madhusūdana Sarasvatī, the Ālambana of Bhakti is God; the Rasa realized, Paramānanda, is God; and the Sthāyin, the mind which has taken God's form, is also God. How is this to be explained? He says that God, the Ālambana, is independent and is the bimba (form) of which the Sthāyin in us is the pratibimba (reflection). The form of God is ineffable bliss:

भगवान् परमानन्दस्वरूपः स्वयमेव हि ।

मनोगतस्तदाकाररसतामेति पुष्कलम् ॥

I. 10, p. 18.

बिम्बमेव ह्युपाधिनिष्ठत्वेन प्रतीयमानं प्रतिबिम्बमित्युच्यते । परमानन्दश्च भगवान् मनसि प्रतिबिम्बितः स्थायिभावतामासाद्य रसतामापादयतीति भक्तिरसस्य परमानन्दरूपत्वं निर्विवादम् । नाप्यालम्बनविभावस्थाविभावयोरेक्यम्, बिम्बप्रतिबिम्बभावत्वेन भेदस्य व्यवहारसिद्धत्वात्, ईशजीवयोरिव । p. 18.

He then recognizes that the following Bhāva-s can become Sthāyin-s and Rasa-s: 1. Kāma becoming Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha; 2. Krodha becoming Dveṣa as in Śisupāla and Kaṁsa; 3. Bhaya; 4. Sneha (Dāsyā, Sakhya, Vātsalya, and Preyas); 5. Haṛṣa becoming love for Kṛṣṇa; 6. Hāsa; 7. Vismaya; 8. Utsāha (Dayā, Dāna and Dharma); 9. Śoka; 10. Jugupsā; and 11. Śama (II. 25-26). Of these, according to him, Dharma-vīra, Dayā-vīra, Bībhatsa and Śama are not part of Bhakti Rasa (II. 27-28). Similarly Dveṣa born of Īṣyā and Bhaya are not part of Bhakti (II. 29). So also Raudra and Bhayānaka are never āṅga-s of Bhakti (II. 30):

धर्मवीरो दयावीरो बीभत्सः शान्त इत्यमी ।

अतो न भक्तिरसतां यान्ति मित्रास्पदत्वतः ॥

ईर्ष्याजभयजद्वेषौ भगवद्विषयावपि ।

न भक्तिरसतां यातः साक्षाद् द्रुतिविरोधतः ॥ II. 28-9.

The feelings of the Lord's foes like Śiṣupāla and Kāṁsa, dveṣa and bhaya (Raudra and Bhayānaka), cannot become Bhakti; possibly, in the next birth, they may lead to the manifestation of Bhakti Rasa in them:

रजःप्रबलसत्त्वांशादीर्ष्याजद्वेषमिश्रिता ।

मनोवृत्तिः परानन्दे चैद्यस्य न सुखायते ॥

तमःप्रबलसत्त्वांशाद् भीतिजद्वेषमिश्रिता ।

मनोवृत्तिः परानन्दे कंसस्य न सुखायते ॥

तयोर्भाविशरीरे तु प्रतिबन्धक्षये सति ।

सैव चित्तद्रुतिः भक्तिरसतां प्रतिपद्यते ॥ II. 53-5.

The rest could mix with (vyāmiśra) and form part of Bhakti (II. 31-33) but Śṛṅgāra, Vātsalya and Preyaś can become pure Bhakti Rasa-s themselves (II. 35):

विशुद्धो वत्सलः प्रेयानिति भक्तिरसास्त्रयः ।

रसान्तरामिश्रितास्ते भवन्ति परिपुष्कलाः ॥

As pointed out already, he is of the opinion that Śānta Rasa and Mokṣa Puruṣārtha are for adruta-citta-s and that both differ from Bhakti which is a separate Puruṣārtha. Hence he excludes Śānta from Bhakti. But as can be seen in the earlier section, the Bhakti Rasa scheme of Bopadeva, Rūpa and others, admits Śānta in Bhakti. This, the author of the gloss on Madhusūdana Sarasvatī also points out. Madhusūdana Sarasvatī rules out from the scope of Bhakti, Dharma-vīra and Dayā-vīra because their Ālambana-s differ; Raudra and Bhaya are against love and dveṣa cannot produce any Druti. When Bopadeva accepts all the others as being subservient to Bhakti, he takes them however as figuring in the stories of the Lord, in the different characters that come into contact or conflict with the Lord, and not necessarily in the devotees of the Lord only:

विष्णोर्विष्णुभक्तानां वा चरित्रस्य नवरसात्मकस्य श्रवणादिना
जनितश्चमत्कारो भक्तिरसः ।
p. 167.

Thus Raudra is illustrated by Hiranyakaśipu, and Bhayānaka by Kāṁsa, following the statement in the Bhāgavata that kinsmen, friend or foe, everybody attained the Lord through the feeling and attitude through which he became engrossed with the thought of the Lord:

कामाद् द्वेषाद् भयात् स्नेहाद् यथा भक्त्येश्वरे मनः ।
आवेश्य तदघं हित्वा बहवस्तद्गतिं गताः ॥
गोप्यः कामाद्भयात् कंसो द्वेषाच्चैद्यादयो नृपाः ।
संबन्धाद्वृष्णयः स्नेहाद् यूयं भक्त्या वयं विभो ॥

VII. 1. 29-30.

But, as shown above, the approach of Madhusūdana Sarasvatī and his very conception of the main Bhakti Rasa and its subsidiary Rasa-s are different.

Those who did not accept Bhakti as a separate Rasa considered it as a Bhāva, a variety of Rati, the object of which was God: devādiviṣayā ratiḥ. To these writers, Madhusūdana Sarasvatī replies that this Bhāva-Rati described as devādiviṣayā refers to Rati for the lesser gods. Rati for the one Supreme Being is a Rasa:

रतिर्देवादिविषया व्यभिचारी तथोर्जितः ।

भावः प्रोक्तो रसो नेति यदुक्तं रसकोविदैः ॥

देवान्तरेषु जीवत्वात् परानन्दाप्रकाशनात् ।

तद्योज्यम् ; परमानन्दरूपे न परमात्मनि ॥

II. 75-6.

If Krodha, Śoka and Bhaya, which are not directly states of happiness could become Rasa-s, on the ground of experience, how can Bhakti which is directly and a thousandfold blissful, be denied the character of Rasa? (II. 79-80).

Bhakti Rasa is the real Rasa, since it is here that one has the ineffable bliss that is not tainted by even the least sorrow. Śṛṅgāra and other Rasa-s cannot mean this bliss and are therefore inferior; they are like glow-worms; Bhakti is the very sun:

कान्तादिविषया वा ये रसाद्यास्तत्र नेदृशम् ।

रसत्वं पुष्यते पूर्णसुखास्पर्शित्वकारणात् ॥

परिपूर्णरसा क्षुद्ररसेभ्यो भगवद्रतिः ।

स्वद्योतेभ्य इवादित्यप्रभेव बलवत्तरा ॥

II. 77-8.

THE MĀYĀ RASA

The acceptance of Śānta gave rise in later times to another controversial Rasa called Māyā. Just as there is the possibility of depicting the Śānta Rasa with psychological, religious and metaphysical concepts like Jñāna, Bhakti, Śama, Dama, Saṁtuṣṭi, etc. there is also the possibility of depicting the Māyā Rasa by showing the jīvātman enmeshed in saṁsāra as a result of mithyājñāna or avidyā, with characters such as Kāma, Krodha and Lobha. Even as Śānta is the Rasa of the state called nivṛtti, Māyā is the Rasa of the state called pravṛtti. In a philosophical drama, the Rasa from which the hero escapes into the Śānta, is Māyā. The Rasataranginī of Bhānudatta argues:

चित्तवृत्तिः द्विधा—प्रवृत्तिर्निवृत्तिश्च । निवृत्तौ यथा शान्तरसः, तथा
प्रवृत्तौ माया रस इति प्रतिभाति । ch. 7.

He points out how this Māyā cannot be identical with or included in Rati in its Bhāva form, as indeed it appears in the illustrative verse cited. If it is so, of what Rasa would that Rati-bhāva be a Vyabhicārin? Not of any one of the eight Rasa-s; it cannot be of Śṛṅgāra, for we see in it one of its opposite Rasa-s, Bibhatsa; all the mutually antagonistic Rasa-s are present in the case of Māyā. For this reason, it cannot be argued that Māyā Rasa is the common name of all the eight Rasa-s which are its various forms, because this would obviate the need for Śānta Rasa.¹ Rati and the seven

शान्तरसस्य तर्हि रसाभासत्वापत्तेः ।

But the reading available in the old lithographed ed. of Banaras of 1885 with Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi's commentary is:

शान्तरसस्य तर्हि रसाभावत्वापत्तेः । p. 83.

The view that Māyā may be a comprehensive Rasa common to all Rasa-s covers only the eight Rasa-s, and not Śānta which is its direct opposite, and will thus fall outside. In fact, Viśveśvara, who reproduces the passage from Bhānudatta and naturally felt difficulty in following the words here changes these words alone as follows: शान्तस्य बहिर्भावापत्तेः । Rasacandrikā, p. 68.

other Sthāyin-s become the Vyabhicārin-s of this Rasa of Māyā. The exact position however seems to be that instead of Śānta being obviated, Māyā Rasa will be rendered superfluous; for it is one established in Śānta who will see all these eight, Rati, etc., as Māyā, and that realization will be a Vibhāva of Śānta, forming part of Viveka:

किंतु विद्युदिव रतिहासशोकक्रोधोत्साहभयजुगुप्साविस्मयास्तत्र उत्पद्यन्ते
विलीयन्ते च । तेन तत्र व्यभिचारिभावा इति ।

The Sthāyin of this Rasa is Mithyājñāna:

लक्षणं च प्रबुद्धमिथ्याज्ञानवासना माया रसः । मिथ्याज्ञानमस्य
स्थायिभावः । विभावाः सांसारिकभोगार्जकधर्माधर्माः । अनुभावाः पुत्र-
कलत्रविजयसाम्राज्यादयः ।

The Rasadīrghikā of Vidyārāma, composed in A.D. 1650, describes the Māyā among the Rasa-s:

ततो हास्यादिमायान्तरसानां वर्णनं क्रमात् ।

—BORI MS., Descriptive Catalogue, XII. 210.

The Haṃsavilāsa, a Tāntric work by Haṃsamitṭhu, of the former half of the 18th century A.D., accepts Māyā as the tenth Rasa, with Mithyājñāna as its Sthāyin (GOS 81, p. 253).

The Mandāramaranda-campū follows the Rasatarāṅgiṇī and describes the Māyā Rasa of pravṛtti as well as the Śānta Rasa of nivṛtti (KM 52, p. 106).

Viśveśvara, in his Rasacandrikā, sets forth the arguments in the Rasatarāṅgiṇī as the pūrvapakṣa and refutes the possibility of Māyā being a Rasa. Mithyājñāna, mentioned as its Sthāyin, is always in a fully developed form and there is.

therefore no question of its developing into a state of Rasa. If this is conceded, anything read in poetry would be Rasa, and there would be no basis for distinguishing Vyabhicārin and Sthāyin:

मिथ्याज्ञानवासनायाश्च सर्वदापि प्रबुद्धत्वात् । काव्यादिभ्यो जायमानस्य विषयज्ञानमात्रस्य रसत्वापत्तेश्च । तत्र चमत्कारस्याननुभूयमानत्वात्, व्यभिचारिस्थायिभावानां व्यवस्थानुपपत्तेश्चेति दिक् । KSS 53, 1926, p. 69.

Cirañjīvibhaṭṭācārya also cites the Rasatarāṅgiṇī on Māyā Rasa and criticizes it:

अत्रेदं चिन्त्यं—मायाया अनादित्वेन अजन्यत्वात् रसत्वासंभवः । रसास्तु सर्वे जन्या एव । कथं वा कथयेत् मिथ्याज्ञानादिः मायायाः कारणमिति, शास्त्रविरुद्धत्वात् । वस्तुतस्तु आलङ्कारिकाणां मते रसो नित्यः आनन्दरूपः । अतोऽस्य ब्रह्मस्वरूपत्वेन मायाया रसत्वासंभवः । माया हि तुच्छा विनाशशालिनी ब्रह्मभिन्नैवेति दिक् । अत एव प्राचीनसांप्रदायिकैरपि नवैव रसाः कथिताः ।

Kāvyavilāsa, Princess of Wales Sarasvati Bhavana Texts,
16, p. 10.

This scholastic criticism, which goes into some of the features of the concept of Māyā as accepted in metaphysics, does not meet the question properly. If it is argued that Rasa is nitya, ānandarūpa and hence of the form of the Brahman, and consequently Māyā which is different from Brahman cannot be a Rasa, how does the author propose to explain Śṛṅgāra, etc. as Rasa-s? They all come under Māyā. If a portrayal of Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Raudra can be Rasa, why not Māyā? One argument mentioned by the advocate of the Māyā Rasa is this: As an opposite of the Śānta Rasa, a Māyā Rasa is possible; but let it not be a unitary Rasa; let it be the common name for all the eight Rasa-s. This can be countered by saying that as it is made up of Śṛṅgāra and the seven other Rasa-s, any given specimen presenting a mundane activity can be called by one of the eight names (Śṛṅgāra, etc.) and it is not necessary to have Māyā as a separate Rasa, it being only the common name of all the eight mundane Rasa-s of pravṛtti. Suppose, in a philosophical or religious play, pravṛtti and nivṛtti are portrayed; under the former, Kāma, Krodha, etc. will be portrayed as developing into Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and other Rasa-s. To us who see it with unenlightened minds, the several parts will appeal as Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and so on; we will never realize them as Māyā; if we do, we shall be sitting along with the chosen few, the jñānin-s who alone see Māyā in all those Rasa-s and to them, this Māyā will not produce citta-saṃvāda or rasāsvāda; only the opposite, Śānta, will produce response in them. Therefore, practically speaking, there is no necessity for a Māyā Rasa.

THE KĀRPAṆYA RASA

Along with the Lauhya, which Abhinavagupta had already mentioned, Bhānudatta examines if Kārpaṇya can be a Rasa. He mentions Spṛhā as its Sthāyin. The argument for rejecting this is the same as that used by Abhinavagupta for rejecting Lauhya. Even as a development of Lauhya can only become Hāsyā, development of Kārpaṇya also will become Hāsyā. (RT, ch. 5, p. 125.)

THE VRĪḌANAKA RASA

The Anuyogadvāra-sūtra of the Jains, which was mentioned previously in the section on the Śānta Rasa, gives nine

Kāvyarasa-s, in which list, Bhayānaka is omitted and in its place is found a new Rasa called Vṛīḍanaka, which can be rendered as 'modesty' (Āgamodaya Samiti Series ed. with Maladhāri Hemacandra's Sanskrit gloss, p. 134):

णव कवरसा पणत्ता, तं जहा—

वीरो सिंगारो अब्भुओ अ रोहो अ होइ बोद्धव्वो ।

वेलणओ बीमच्छो हासो कलुणो पसंतो अ ॥

The commentary of Maladhāri Hemacandra¹ explains that Vṛīḍanaka is the Rasa of Bashfulness, that some give in its place Bhayānaka as a Rasa and that this Bhayānaka is included in Raudra and hence not mentioned separately.

ब्रीडयति लज्जामुत्पादयति लज्जनीयवस्तुदर्शनादिप्रभवो मनोव्यलीकतादि-
स्वरूपो व्रीडनकः । अस्य स्थाने भयजनकसंग्रामादिवस्तुदर्शनादिप्रभवः भयानको
रसः पठ्यतेऽन्यत्र । स चेह रौद्ररसान्तर्भावविवक्षणात् पृथङ् नोक्तः ।

In defining it, however, the text includes a verse in which we find Bhayānaka described rather than Raudra, to explain which the commentator says that the text describes not Raudra as such, but describes it through its effect, Bhaya. The Lakṣaṇaśloka is:

भयजननरूपशब्दान्वकारचिन्ताकथासमुत्पन्नः ।

संमोहसंभ्रमविषादमरणलिङ्गो रसो रौद्रः ॥

(छाया)

¹ The commentator's date is the end of the 11th cent. and early part of the 12th. He wrote his Jīvasamāsa in A.D. 1107 and Bhāvabhāvanā in A.D. 1113 (Winternitz, History of Indian Literature, English translation, II, p. 589). He is different from the author of the Kāvyānuśāsana.

The illustration is however for Raudra proper:

भ्रुकुटीविडम्बितमुख संदष्टोष्ठ इत आकीर्णरुधिर ।
हंसि पशुं असुरनिभ भीमरसित अतिरौद्र रौद्रोऽसि ॥

The commentator explains that though the Lakṣaṇa-śloka means only the Bhayānaka Rasa, it has to be taken as referring to the cause of Bhayānaka, Raudra also:

ननु भयजनकरूपादिभ्यः समुत्पन्नः संमोहादिलिङ्गश्च भयानक एव भवति, कथमस्य रौद्रत्वम्; किंतु पिशाचादिरौद्रवस्तुभ्यो जातत्वात् रौद्रत्वमस्य विवक्षितमित्यदोषः । . . . रौद्रो रसः, सोऽप्युपलक्षणत्वादत्रैव द्रष्टव्यः, अन्यथा च निरास्पद एव स्यात् । अत एव रौद्रपरिणामवत्पुरुषचेष्टाप्रतिपादकमेव उदाहरणं दर्शयिष्यति । भीतचेष्टाप्रतिपादकं तु तत् स्वत एव अभ्यूह्यमित्यलं प्रसङ्गेन ।

If the number of Rasa-s is to be reduced by omitting the Rasa-s which are produced by other Rasa-s or the Rasa-s which are the causes of other Rasa-s, we shall arrive at four Rasa-s, proceeding on the basis of Bharata's indication of the kāraṇa-kārya-bhāva existing among the eight Rasa-s, śṛṅgārāddhi bhaveddhāsyah, etc. Such a process of reducing the number is illogical. There is no reason why the causal Rasa should be retained and the effected Rasa dismissed and why it should not be vice versa.

Coming to the Vṛīḍanaka Rasa, the definition and illustration are as follows:

विनयोपचारगुह्यगुरुदारमर्यादाव्यतिक्रमोत्पन्नः ।

व्रीडनको नाम रसो लज्जाशङ्काकरणलिङ्गः ॥

यथा—

किं लौकिककरणीयात् लज्जनीयतरमिति लज्जितास्मि ।

विवाहे गुरुजनो परिवन्दते वधूनिवसनम् ॥

(छाया)

According to the gloss, this is a verse addressed by a prospective bride to her maid. The reference in it is to a provincial marriage custom according to which, elderly men and women, including the father-in-law and the mother-in-law, pay their respects to the Sari and the person of the bride after the nuptial night. The bride is taken round and elders revere her for her chastity. The thought of the elders revering her produces a sense of shame in the bride's heart.¹

This, however, is a mere Vyabhicārin and hardly a Rasa. Vrīḍā of the same description is given by Bharata as one of the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s.

THE CITRA RASA

The question of the mutual compatability or otherwise among the Rasa-s has been discussed by Ānandavardhana in Dhva. Ā, III, and all later writers have followed him on this. Where mutually friendly Rasa-s are brought together, the principle of one being the main and the other or others

¹ Umāsvāti mentions Vrīḍā as Lajjā in his Prasamarati, v. 106 :

आदावत्यभ्युदया मध्ये शृङ्गारहास्यदीप्तरसाः ।

निकषे विषया बीभत्सकरुणलज्जभयप्रायाः ॥

Here Dīpta means Vīra; Bharata himself calls Vīra by that name. It is interesting to see in this verse the idea that eventually Śṛṅgāra ends in Bībhatsa, Hāsyā in Kar ṇa, and Lajjā and Vīra in Bhayānaka Rasa.

subsidiary and helpful to it—āṅgāṅgi-bhāva—and the interposing of a friendly Rasa to bring on an incompatible one, —all this has been accepted by writers. There was, however, a very late writer named Gaṅgādhara who propounded a novel view that where incompatible Rasa-s come together, it would be a case of Citra Rasa. The work where this writer propounded this view is not known; but Prabhākara (A.D. 1583) makes a reference in his Rasapradīpa,¹ to this peculiar view and to his having refuted it in his Alaṃkāraśāstra.

इति काव्ये नवेति विवेचितं मया अलंकाररहस्ये । एतेषां च
विरोधाविरोधचिन्ता, विरोधस्थले गङ्गाधरोक्तचित्ररसनिराकरणं च तत्रैव द्रष्टव्यम् ।
p. 39.

This Citra Rasa of Gaṅgādhara is thus different from a case like Śānta or Bhakti or Māyā of which other Rasa-s or Sthāyin-s become Vyabhicārin-s, and while discussing which Abhinavagupta and Madhusūdana Sarasvatī have used the analogy of pānaka drink to explain citra-rūpa:

अन्ये तु पानकरसवद्विभागं प्राप्ताः सर्वे एव रत्यादयः अत्र
(शान्ते) स्थायिन इत्याहुः । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 337.

रसान्तरविभावादिसंकीर्णा भगवद्भक्तिः ।

चित्ररूपवदन्यादृग्रसतां प्रतिपद्यते ॥

Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana, II. 73.

In the case of Śānta, Abhinavagupta refutes the possibility of a 'cocktail' in Rasa; in Bhakti, Madhusūdhana Sarasvatī accepts the composite form in cases where other Rasa-s like Hāsyā figure in a subsidiary manner, but mentions also the pure form of Bhakti as in great sages like Sanaka.

VII

THE VARIETIES OF THE SAME RASA

THE first Rasa, Śṛṅgāra, has two phases, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha, the two adhiṣṭhāna-s, as Bharata says, of Śṛṅgāra. There is a peculiar view in this connection propounded by the king Haripāladeva, who was mentioned above in the section on the Śānta Rasa, as holding two Rasa-s called the Śānta and the Brāhma. Haripāla accepts thirteen Rasa-s: the eight of Bharata, Śānta and Vātsalya and three new Rasa-s, Saṁbhoga, Vipralambha and Brāhma. The peculiarity of the Brāhma Rasa and its difference from the Śānta has already been explained:

शृङ्गारो हास्यनामा च बीभत्सः करुणस्तथा ।

वीरो भयानकाह्वानो रौद्राख्योऽद्भुतसंज्ञकः ॥

शान्तो ब्राह्माभिः पश्चाद् वात्सल्याख्यमतः परम् ।

संभोगो विप्रलम्भः स्यात् रसास्त्वेते त्रयोदश ॥

Mad. MS., p. 1

Haripāla has three different Rasa-s: Śṛṅgāra, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha. He considers them separate, since, according to him, their characters differ essentially. He thus argues his case against the ancients:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।

अतिरिक्ता उदीर्यन्ते हरिपालमहीभुजा ॥

तत्रेयं वासना (?) पूर्वैः संभोगो विप्रलम्भकः ।
 शृङ्गारस्यैव भेदौ द्वौ कथितौ—तदसांप्रतम् ॥
 अनित्यस्तत्र शृङ्गारः क(का)चित्को दृश्यते यतः ।
 पशुपक्षिमृगाद्येषु यतश्च न विलोक्यते ॥
 सर्वजन्तुषु दृश्यत्वात् संभोगस्यास्ति नित्यता ।
 अतोऽभ्यधायि संभोगो रसः शृङ्गारकः(तः) पृथक् ॥
 उज्ज्वलः शुचिरित्युक्तः शृङ्गारो हर्षवर्धनः ।
 मलिनो दुःखकारी च विप्रलम्भोऽप्रियावहः ॥
 अतः शृङ्गारतो भिन्नो विप्रलम्भ उदाहृतः ।
 भयानकस्य वीरस्य जन्यस्य जनकस्य च ।
 यो भेदो विप्रलम्भस्य संभोगस्य च स स्मृतः ॥ p. 18.

Śṛṅgāra has always been considered as ujjvala and śuci, a Rasa of men of cultivated taste and of sophisticated nature, the uttama-prakṛti-s. Therefore, in course of time, śuci and ujjvala became synonyms of Śṛṅgāra. In an unsophisticated rustic, there is Śṛṅgāra but only in a way. The ancients also consider that love in birds and beasts is not Rasa, but only its semblance, rasābhāsa. Therefore, love as understood by the word Śṛṅgāra is anityā and kvācītka, being present only in high class individuals. But love of a kind which is the joy a pair derives mutually is present in all living beings, rustics, birds and beasts. This love need not be called Śṛṅgārābhāsa; it may be separated into a distinct Rasa and called Sambhoga.

More striking is Haripāla's view regarding Vipralambha. Since both Śṛṅgāra and Sambhoga are of a pleasurable nature, and Vipralambha is essentially of a painful nature, the latter is a separate Rasa. If Śṛṅgāra is śuci and ujjvala,

Haripāla has three different Rasa-s: Śṛṅgāra, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha. He considers them separate, since, according to him, their characters differ essentially. He thus argues his case against the ancients:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।

भयानकस्य वीरस्य जन्यस्य जनकस्य च ।

यो भेदो विप्रलम्भस्य संभोगस्य च स स्मृतः ॥ p. 18.

Śṛṅgāra has always been considered as ujjvala and śuci, a Rasa of men of cultivated taste and of sophisticated nature, the uttama-prakṛti-s. Therefore, in course of time, śuci and ujjvala became synonyms of Śṛṅgāra. In an unsophisticated rustic, there is Śṛṅgāra but only in a way. The ancients also consider that love in birds and beasts is not Rasa, but only its semblance, rasābhāsa. Therefore, love as understood by the word Śṛṅgāra is anitya and kvācitka, being present only in high class individuals. But love of a kind which is the joy a pair derives mutually is present in all living beings, rustics, birds and beasts. This love need not be called Śṛṅgārābhāsa; it may be separated into a distinct Rasa and called Sambhoga.

More striking is Haripāla's view regarding Vipralambha. Since both Śṛṅgāra and Sambhoga are of a pleasurable nature, and Vipralambha is essentially of a painful nature, the latter is a separate Rasa. If Śṛṅgāra is śuci and ujjvala, Vipralambha is malina. Vipralambha may be due to Śṛṅgāra or Saṁbhoga. This cause-effect relationship between Śṛṅgāra and Vipralambha is no proof of their essential identity. The two differ as much as Vīra and Bhayānaka, of which the former produces the latter.

If love among higher classes is different from rustic love, and love among birds and animals, equally do the separations, Vipralambha-s, in the two cases differ. Strictly speaking, Haripāla should have two Rasa-s for love in separation.

Haripāla gives Āhlāda as the Sthāyin of Śṛṅgāra, Rati of Saṁbhoga and Arati of Vipralambha:

आह्लादः प्रथमं

. प्रीत्यरती तथा ।

प्रत्येकं स्थायिनो भावाः क्रमात् प्रत्येकमीरिताः ॥ p. 17.

The ancients were not unaware of the painfulness of Vipralambha, but they did not consider it, on that score, as a separate Rasa. Autsukya or longing is at the root of Vipralambha. This longing is only a kind of Rati. Arati can only be an intermediate state in the ten avasthā-s of love and it is not the basic state of mind that persists throughout Vipralambha. The slender line of Rati runs through the state of Vipralambha; and if this Rati is not accepted in Vipralambha, as its Sthāyin, there can be no difference between Vipralambha and Karuṇa. The Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa argues that Rati is not of the form of happiness, since Vipralambha is far from being pleasurable:

आनन्दात्मकत्वं रतेः कैश्चिदुक्तम्, तच्चिन्त्यम् । विप्रयोगादेः

आनन्दात्मकत्वस्य अयोगात् । p. 7.

The Rasakalikā does not however separate Vipralambha as a distinct Rasa, but takes it, as all do, as a phase of Śṛṅgāra only. It agrees with Haripāla in finding Vipralambha as standing in the way of accepting Rati to be of the nature of pleasure. Rati will thus be, according to the Rasakalikā, a state of pleasure as well as pain. Viprayoga, though apparently and immediately painful, is ultimately a state of pleasure. The very life of Rati is a certain longing; and this exists in Saṁbhoga as well as in Vipralambha. That it constitutes the life of Rati is seen from what Kālidāsa and Māyurāja say: ratim ubhayaprārthanā kurute (Śākuntala) and premāsamāptotsavam (Tāpasavatsarāja). Therefore, Vipralambha is an aspect of Śṛṅgāra only, and of Vipralambha also, Rati is the Sthāyin:

विप्रलम्भे रतिरेव स्थायी . . . विप्रकर्षेऽपि रतेः स्वतः सिद्धत्वात् ।

Alaṅkāra-kaustubha.

To match its opinion that Rati is not unmixed pleasure, the Rasakalikā says that Rasa itself is of the nature of both pleasure and pain; but of this more in a further section.

To return to Haripāla's Saṁbhoga Rasa, he postulated this for the love of those who are not uttama-prakṛti-s. The love of birds and beasts described so largely in the Kāvya-s, which was known by the term rasābhāsa, comes under Haripāla's Saṁbhoga Rasa. Vidyādhara, the author of the Ekāvalī, refuses to recognize that the love of birds and beasts is rasābhāsa. He says that their love also is Rasa. If it is said that the birds and beasts do not consciously enjoy or enjoy in such a manner as cultivated men and women do, such knowledge and cultivated taste, Vidyādhara says, is irrelevant. Why should the subject know what it is enjoying or how it enjoys, provided it enjoys? Kumārasvāmin cites this view of Vidyādhara in his commentary on the Pratāparudriya:

अत्र तिरश्चोः पारावतयोः कलाकौशलाभावेन तदीयशृङ्गारस्य विभा-
वादिपरिपूर्त्यभावात् आभासत्वं द्रष्टव्यम्¹ । रस एवायं नाभास इति केचित् ।
तदुक्तं विद्याधरेण—विभावादिसंभवो हि रसं प्रति प्रयोजकः, न विभावा-
दिज्ञानम् । ततश्च तिरश्चामस्त्येव रसः । Balamanorama ed., p. 21.

Earlier than Kumārasvāmin, Śiṅgabhūpāla noticed this view of Vidyādhara, and as a staunch follower of the accepted tradition, criticized it. The discussion in his Rasāṇavasudhā-kara is too long to be quoted in full. (TSS ed., pp. 206-9.) Vidyādhara's view is thus stated:

अपरे तु रसाभासं तिर्यक्षु प्रचक्षते । तत् न परीक्षाक्षमम् । तेष्वपि
भावादिसंभवात् । विभावादिज्ञानशून्यास्तिर्यञ्चः न भाजनं भवितुमर्हन्ति रमस्येति
चेत् न । मनुष्येष्वपि केषुचित् तथाभूतेषु रसविषयाभासप्रसङ्गात् । अत्र
विभावादिसंभवोऽपि रसं प्रति प्रयोजकः, न विभावादिज्ञानम् । ततश्च
तिरश्चामस्त्येव रसः ।

The criticism of Śiṅgabhūpāla is that Śṛṅgāra is essentially a Rasa of subjects, Ālambana-s, who are śuci and ujjvala; it is not enough if, according to their own conditions, birds and beasts do have a consciousness of their love and its art; it is a question of aucitya. How can a human being, who alone is Sāmājika for poetry and drama, have cittasamvāda in such cases? The terms Vibhāva, etc. do not apply in the case of love among birds and beasts; the emotional conditions there are called only kāraṇa, kārya, etc. Says Śiṅgabhūpāla:

¹ That love among birds and beasts has less of art and is less poetic may not be accepted at all by biologists.

अथ स्वजातियोग्यधर्मेः करिणां करिणीं प्रति विभावत्वमिति चेत् न ।
तस्यां कक्ष्यायां करिणां करिणीरागं प्रति कारणत्वम्, न पुनः विभावत्वम् ।

किंच जातियोग्यैर्धर्मेः वस्तुनो न विभावत्वम्, अपि तु भावक-
चित्तोल्लासहेतुभी रतिविशिष्टैरेव ।

किंच विभावादिज्ञानं नाम औचित्यविवेकः, तेन शून्याः तिर्यञ्चो न
विभावतां यान्ति । . . . विवेकरहितजनोपलक्षणग्लेच्छगतस्य रसस्य आभासत्वे
स्वेष्टावासे ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, pp. 206-7.

Consistent with this argument, Śingabhūpālā says that anaucitya is the only cause of a Rasa becoming its ābhāsa; that this anaucitya is of two kinds, asatyatva and ayogyatva, and that in trees and other aspects of nature which are described in love-images, the Rasa is ābhāsa by reason of asatyatva and in rustics, low people, and birds and beasts, the Rasa is ābhāsa by reason of ayogyatva.

आभासता भवेदेषामनौचित्यप्रवर्तिनाम् ।

असत्यत्वादयोग्यत्वात् अनौचित्यं द्विधा भवेत् ॥

असत्यत्वकृतं तत् स्याद् अचेतनगतं तु यत् ।

अयोग्यत्वकृतं प्रोक्तं नीचतिर्यङ्नराश्रयम् ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, pp. 141-2.

Kumārasvāmin does not refute Vidyādhara, and Rājacūḍāmaṇidīkṣita fully agrees with Vidyādhara. After reproducing the Ekāvalī, Rājacūḍāmaṇi says that if the Kāvya-prakāśa is not wrong in illustrating Bhayānaka Rasa with the verse grīvābhaṅgābhirāmam, etc. describing fear in a deer, it is Rasa in birds and animals, and not rasābhāsa:

अत एव काव्यप्रकाशिकायां 'ग्रीवाभङ्गाभिरामं मुहुरनुपतति स्यन्दने
बद्धदृष्टिः—' इति श्लोकेन भयानकरसः तिर्यग्विषयगततया उदाहृत इत्याहुः ।

Kāvyaadarpaṇa, Vani Vilas ed., ch. 4, pp. 211-12.

Possibly, Śiṅgabhūpāla would reply to Rājacūḍāmaṇi that the Rasa in question is only Śṛṅgāra, and aucitya-viveka was spoken of only regarding this Rasa and its ābhāsa. He might even add that Bhayānaka is, by its very definition, a Rasa of nīca-prakṛti-s, etc. But would he accept that other Rasa-s in birds and beasts are not ābhāsa and should a distinction be made among the Rasa-s?

Haripāla's contribution to this controversy is the creation of a Saṃbhoga Rasa for rustics, aborigines, birds, beasts, etc.

Of Vipralambha, according to the traditional conception, four forms are usually given: Pūrvānurāga or Ayoga, Māna, Pravāsa and Karuṇa. Regarding these four forms of love in separation, a peculiar view expounded by Bopadeva and Hemādri must be noted. They do not accept Karuṇa-vipralambha, which they say is just Karuṇa; also they do not consider Śāpa-vipralambha, mentioned by Mammaṭa as a separate form, and take it as part of Pravāsa, even as Bhoja and others do. But they present for the first time the fourth form of Vipralambha as Vaicitya, being completely absent-minded or oblivious of each other, even when the two are together, by reason of flurry, excess of love, etc:

विप्रलम्भमाह । विप्रलम्भेति । स चतुर्धा पूर्वानुराग-मान-प्रवास-वैचित्य-
भेदात् । . . . यत्र तु संनिकर्षेऽपि प्रियः प्रिया वा विभ्रमवशात् स्वरूपमपि
विस्मरति स वैचित्यविप्रलम्भः । स च प्राग्भ्यः त्रिभ्यो भिन्न एव, तल्लक्षणा-
भावात् । Bhāgavatamuktāphala with Kaivalyadīpikā, pp. 185-6.

Apart from the illustrations from the Bhāgavata given in the body of the Muktāphala, the commentary mentions also canto 9 of the Naiṣadhīyacarita (vv. 103-21) as depicting this Vaicitya-vipralambha. In the end of the chapter again the commentary says that this original idea of Bopadeva, the Vaicitya-vipralambha, must be accepted:

तस्माद्वैचित्यरूपं विप्रलम्भस्य भेदान्तरमवश्यमभ्युपेतव्यम् । अयमेवात्र
विदग्धबुद्धेराचार्यस्याभिप्रायः ॥ p. 217.

This is of course a unique idea of Bopadeva, as no regular Ālaṃkārika has followed it or even noticed it, but within the fold of the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal, Rūpa accepts this Vaicitya as one of the four forms of Vipralambha. See Ujjvalanīlamanī, KM. ed., pp. 416, 449-50, where he mentions also his source as Bopadeva. But, unlike Bopadeva, Rūpa includes Karuṇa-vipralambha under Pravāsa, not Karuṇa-Rasa (p. 458). For, as Jagannātha says, it is not the physical but mental contiguity or distance that is of the essence of Saṃyoga or Viyoga:

तस्माद् द्वाविमौ संयोगवियोगाख्यौ अन्तःकरणवृत्तिविशेषौ ।

RG, p. 34.

Hence Jagannātha does not attach any importance to the old classification of Vipralambha into five forms, Pravāsa, etc.

इमं (विप्रलम्भं) च पञ्चविधं प्राञ्चः प्रवासादिभिरुपाधिभिरामनन्ति ।
ते च प्रवासाभिरुषविरहेर्षाशापानां विशेषानुपलम्भान्नास्माभिः प्रपञ्चिताः ।
RG, p. 35.

Śāpa is generally included under Pravāsa by those who accept Karuṇa as the fourth form of Vipralambha. Even the authors of the Daśarūpaka and Avaloka, who do not accept Karuṇa-vipralambha, mention Śāpa only as a sub-variety of Pravāsa. The only noteworthy writer to mention Śāpa as a separate form of Vipralambha is Mammata who, unlike any other writer, gives five forms of Vipralambha, including Irṣyā, separation caused by jealousy.

अपरस्तु (विप्रलम्भस्तु) अभिलाष-विरह-ईर्ष्या-प्रवास-शाप-हेतुक इति पञ्चविधः । K. Pra. IV. 6 / 7.

It is this view that Allarāja follows in his Rasaratnapradīpikā. (Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, 1945, p. 28.) In the Nāṭyadarpaṇa, Rāmacandra and Guṇacandra accept five varieties including Śāpa, but excluding Karuṇa. (III. 10.)¹

It is Karuṇa-vipralambha that has had a long history and passed through much discussion for and against it. The seeds of the problem already existed in Bharata's text itself. In chapter 6, Bharata raised the question: 'If Śṛṅgāra is developed from Rati, how do feelings related to Karuṇa appear in it?', and answered: Śṛṅgāra has two phases, Saṃbhoga and Vipralambha; and the authors of the science of love have set forth ten stages of love, the last of them being death. Karuṇa as such produced by diverse causes, including the death of a dear person, is different as it is a nirapekṣabhāva, i.e. a state of suffering not having an undercurrent of hope or expectation that the dead person would come back to life; Vipralambha, on the other hand, is a sāpekṣa-bhāva, a state enlivened by hope of reunion, the longing and anxiety for the return of the separated partner being present in it all the time:

अत्राह—यद्ययं रतिप्रभवः शृङ्गारः कथमस्य करुणाश्रयिणो भावा भवन्ति । अत्रोच्यते—पूर्वमेवाभिहितं संभोगविप्रलम्भकृतः शृङ्गार इति । वैशिकशास्त्रकारैश्च दशावस्थोऽभिहितः ।

¹One of the later writers to criticize the above view of Mammaṭa is Citradhara of Mithilā, who accepts Karuṇa-vipralambha. See his Śṛṅgārasaṅgī (Darbhanga, 1965), p. 15.

करुणस्तु शापक्लेशविनिपतितेष्टजनविभवनाशवधबन्धसमुत्थो निरपेक्ष-
भावः । औत्सुक्यचिन्तासमुत्थः सापेक्षभावः विप्रलम्भकृतः ।

एवमन्यः करुणोऽन्यश्च विप्रलम्भ इति । NS, VI.

For as Abhinavagupta points out the essence of love is the mutual longing:

परस्पराशोपजीवनं चात्र जीवितमिति दर्शयितुमस्येत्यनुद्विन्नमेवेत्तम् ।¹

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, 2nd revised ed., pp. 306-7.

Earlier commentators thought that the more revolting manifestations of the Vyabhicārin-s, Unmāda, Apasmāra, Vyādhi—not to mention death—should not be shown in Vipralambha; but Abhinavagupta clarifies that the marāṇa meant as a Vyabhicārin is that in which there is soon to be a reunion² and illustrates the case of Indumatī and Aja from the Raghuvamśa, VIII. 95, where the great poet has mentioned in the same verse the greater union in the heavenly regions.

¹ Both the first and second GOS eds. read wrongly परस्परांशोप-जीवनम् for परस्पराशोप०

² The natural meaning of marāṇa enumerated among Vyabhicārin-s is the condition immediately preceding death and not the state of death itself. Citing the interpretation of others, Abhinavagupta says here:

अन्ये त्वाहुः मरणमिति न जीवितवियोगः, अपि तु चैतन्यावस्थैव प्राणत्याग-कर्तृतात्मिका ।

It is a state in which consciousness is present and would also apply to the attempt at suicide which is commonly introduced in plays.

Cf. also RG, p. 90:

तीर्थे तोय, . . . (खुवंशम्, ८. ९५).

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, 2nd ed., p. 307.²

Of the regular writers on poetics and dramaturgy, Rudraṭa and Rudra Bhaṭṭa are the earliest to speak of Vipralambha as having four forms, Prathamānurāga, Māna, Pravāsa and Karuṇa. KA, XIV. 1, 34; Śṛṅgāratilaka, II (KM Gucchaka 3, pp. 131, 141). Both of them apply Karuṇa-vipralambha to the situation when one of the pair dies or is very nearly dying.

करुणः स विप्रलम्भो यत्रान्यतरो म्रियेत नायकयोः ।

यदि वा मृतकल्पः स्यात् तत्रान्यः तद्गतं प्रलपेत् ॥ KA, XIV. 1.

यत्रैकस्मिन् विपन्नेऽन्यः मृतकल्पोऽपि तद्गतम् ।

नायकः प्रलपेत् प्रेम्णा करुणोऽसौ स्मृतो यथा ॥

Śṛṅgāratilaka, II. 60, KM Gucchaka, 3, p. 141.

¹ In the previous line in the Abhi. Bhā. here, रत्यात्मकावस्था-बन्धोऽपि should read रत्यात्मक-आस्थाबन्धोऽपि । Āsthā-bandha is the correct word here. In the well-known verse in the Meghadūta, where Kālidāsa refers to 'hope' as the prop of the flower-like hearts of the separated lovers, Abhinavagupta's reading is āsthā-bandhaḥ, not, āśā-bandhaḥ. See his Ghaṭākarparakulaka-vṛtti, v. 20, Kashmir Texts. Also संभव एव in the previous line in the Abhi. Bhā., should read असंभव एव ।

² See Hemacandra, KAH comm., pp. 71-2, where these lines of Abhi. Bhā. are reproduced with some mistakes.

Rudra Bhaṭṭa adds a reply to those who do not accept this variety of Vipralambha and would take death as just Karuṇa Rasa. It cannot be Karuṇa Rasa, as Rati persists and there is hope of reunion (sāpekṣa); a touch of Karuṇa increases the beauty of this form of Śṛṅgāra and there are indeed some rare portrayals of this Karuṇa-vipralambha by poets.

केषांचित् करुणभ्रान्तिः कारुण्यादत्र जायते ।

एतस्य मिथुनावस्थां विस्मृत्य रतिमूलजाम् ॥

स्त्रीपुंसयोर्भवेदेष सापेक्षः संगमे पुनः ।

तस्मात् शृङ्गार एवायं करुणेनानुमोदितः ।

सौन्दर्यं सुतरां धत्ते निबद्धो विरलं बुधैः ॥

ibid., p. 142, vv. 62-4.

Dhanamjaya accepts only three forms of Śṛṅgāra: Ayoga, i.e. Pūrvānurāga which is counted as the first form of Vipralambha according to others, Viprayoga or Vipralambha and Sambhoga (DR, IV. 50). Viprayoga is of only two kinds, Māna and Pravāsa, and there is no variety of it called Karuṇa (IV. 57-67). When one of the two dies and the other is wailing, it is only Karuṇa Rasa; it cannot be Śṛṅgāra because the basis of the sentiment, in one case, does not exist. If there is assurance of reunion and the bereaved one is waiting for it, it is then Pravāsa Śṛṅgāra.

मृते त्वेकत्र यत्रान्यः प्रलपेच्छोक एव सः ।

DRA.

In all such discussions the examples kept before them by the writers are Aja's lament in the Raghuvaṃśa on the demise of Indumatī, Rati's in Kumārasaṃbhava and the case of Mahāśvetā in the Kādambarī.

The most elaborate and beautiful treatment of Karuṇa Vipralambha is in Bhoja's Śṛṅgāraprakāśa. Bhoja not only accepts it as the fourth form but as the means of developing love to its utmost, rāgavardhanatamaḥ (vol. IV, p. 734). See my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa (1963), pp. 60, 61, 63-4. Bhoja raises the question as to how the great onset of grief following the death of one of the two could be differentiated from pure Śoka and answers that the two, Karuṇa-vipralambha and Karuṇa proper could be differentiated by four factors, hetu, phala, viśaya and svarūpa. While the former proceeds from Rati or love alone, the latter develops from any kind of attachment, compassion, etc.; in the former, the end is reunion, whereas it is not so in the latter; the objects of the former are man and woman, of the latter anybody, and lastly the former is of the form of hope, the latter is destitute of any hope.

After analysing then this state into twelve varieties and again into several stages ending in death, followed by divine interference, the hope, the waiting and the reunion (see my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa pp. 60-61), hoja concludes that Karuṇa-vipralambha is the life and pinnacle of love.

तदेतदाबन्धनमात्मजन्मनो निरीति शृङ्गारसस्य जीवनम् ।

परा च काष्ठा प्रणयस्य जीविता(जीवता ?)प्रियेण यत्प्रेत्य पुनः समागमः ॥

ibid., p. 782.

Bhoja's illustrations are mostly from the Raghuvamśa, Kumāra-sambhava and the Kādambarī.

For Hemacandra, there is only Karuṇa, no Karuṇa-vipralambha (p. 71). Śāradātanaya follows Dhanamjaya closely (Bhā. Pra., GOS, pp. 86-7). Viśvanātha accepts Karuṇa-vipralambha but presents also the view of Daśarūpaka and Avaloka (Sāhityadarpaṇa, III. 209/210). Śiṅgabdhūpāla accepts Karuṇa-vipralambha and answers its critics. He says that the criticism that love depends on two and the survival of one makes it impossible is not valid, as this can apply to Śāpa and Pravāsa too. Pravāsa and Karuṇa-vipralambha-s also differ because in the former, one is absent in body by distance and in the other, by departure of breath.

अत्र केचिदाहुः — करुणो नाम विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारो नास्ति । उभयालम्बनस्य तस्यैकत्रैवासंभवात् । यत्र त्वेकस्यापाये संति तदितरगताः प्रलापादयो भवन्ति, स शोकान्न मिद्यत इति । तदयुक्तम् । यत्र पुनरनुज्जीवनेन संभोगाभावः तत्र सत्यं शोक एव । यत्र सोऽस्ति तत्र विप्रलम्भ एव । अन्यथा संभोगशिरस्केऽन्यतरापायलक्षणे वैरूप्यशापप्रवासेऽपि शोकरूपत्वापत्तेः । नन्वेवं प्रवासकरुणयोः को भेद इति चेद्, उच्यते । शरीरेण देशान्तरगमने प्रवासः, प्राणैर्देशान्तरगमने करुण इति ।

Rasārṇavasudhākara, p. 189.

Of later writers, Bhānudatta is to be noted for the stand taken by him on this question. In his Rasatarāṅgiṇī (ch. 1) he says that in all the three well-known cases, the Vilāpa of Aja, Rati and Mahāśvetā, it is only Karuṇa Rasa. On the appearance of hope of reunion, the Rasa becomes Śṛṅgāra. He cites in his support, the Rasaratnadīpikā already referred to, which gives Rati-vilāpa as illustration of Karuṇa.

कुमारसंभवे रत्याः, कादम्बर्या महाश्चेतायाः, रघुकाव्येऽजस्य प्रलापे
करुण एव रसः । . . यत्र च मृते जीविताशा तत्र शृङ्गार एव रसः । . .

RT, Venk. Press ed., pp. 18-20.

Regarding the statement of old writers who give Vipralambha as having four forms including Karuṇa, Bhānudatta takes this as referring to cases where both are alive and the name Karuṇa-vipralambha is to be explained on the basis of the Karuṇa Rasa being an aṅga here.

ननु विप्रलम्भस्य पूर्वानुराग-मान-प्रवास-करुणात्मत्वाज्जीवितोरपि विप्र-
लम्भस्य करुणरसत्वमायातमिति चेत्, सत्यम्, तत्र करुणा(ण?)रस-
स्याङ्गत्वेन भासमानत्वात्तत्र करुणात्मकव्यपदेशः ।

ibid., p. 21.

Explaining this, Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi, in his commentary Naukā, says that just as there are forms of Vipralambha caused by Iṣyā, Pravāsa and Viraha, that caused by a strong cause other than these three could be called Karuṇa-vipralambha. The illustration given by Bhānudatta for this is again the case of Rati, on whose sight Karuṇa sprouted in the heart of Śiva.¹ Later, in chapter 6, Bhānudatta following

¹ But the explanation of this verse given by Bhānudatta and where exactly is the incompleteness of Karuṇa here are not clear; this calls forth the following observation from the commentator, Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi:

Mammaṭa, considers Vipralambha as having five forms, Pravāsa, Viraha, Abhilāṣa (Pūrvānūrāga), Īrṣyā and Śāpa (VI. 18-19). Lastly, there is the view of Jagannātha Paṇḍita who holds that after death, it is Karuṇa and after the promise of revival, it is just Vipralambha, as in the case of a long Pravāsa; but adds that, according to others, cases like that of Mahāśvetā, would be a new Rasa called Karuṇa-vipralambha.

RG, p. 32; also p. 91.

Of Hāsyā Rasa, Bharata gave six varieties, ranging from a smile to a roar, according to the nature of men who are gentle, boisterous and so on. Kavikarṇapūra reduced this number to three. (Alaṃkāraśāstra, p. 143.) Bharata himself speaks of a broad threefold classification of laughter according to the nature of men as uttama, madhyama or adhama,

अत्र यद्यपि विध्वस्तकामजन्यमश्रुपातगात्रविक्षेपाद्यनुभाव्यं रतिमनोवैक्लव्यं परिपुष्टं

कुङ्कुमलितपदादेवेत्याह । p. 10-b.

Here, as also later, while discussing Dayā-vīra and its possible inclusion under Karuṇa, Bhānudatta, strangely, confuses between Karuṇa Rasa and Karuṇā.

ननु दयावीरः कथं करुण एव नान्तर्भवति । निरुपाधिपरदुःखप्रहर(हा)णेच्छा दया ।

refined, moderately refined or unrefined. (NS, GOS, I, ch. 6, pp. 315-7.) Further, Bharata has recognized that laughter has two varieties, laughing with and laughing at, svagata and paragata or ātmastha and parastha. (NS, GOS, I, ch. 6, p. 314.)¹ Of these, I have spoken elsewhere.

Karuṇa varies according as its cause is a curse, death and so on (NS, GOS, I, pp. 310 and 332). On page 332, Karuṇa is considered to be of three kinds, Karuṇa born of peril to Dharma, Karuṇa due to peril to Artha and Karuṇa born of Śoka in general, i.e. Śoka at the loss of relations and the like. The uttama-s are chiefly sorry on issues of Dharma; the madhyama-s, on loss of wealth and other possessions (Artha), and perhaps, only adhama-s are supposed to sorrow excessively over the loss of those whom they love (Kāma). This however does not rule out Karuṇa on the loss of the beloved in an uttamaprakṛti. It appears that only the third variety is Śoka and Karuṇa proper, and that the first two varieties of Śoka, in Dharma and Artha, seem to be only Vyabhicārin-s. Three kinds of Bhayānaka are given: Vyājāt (feigned), Aparādhāt (at having made a mistake) and Vitrāsitaka, born of being timid by nature. The varieties of Bībhatsa—Kṣobhaṇa and Udvegin, or Kṣobhaṇa, Udvegin and Śuddha—have already been spoken of while considering the possibility of a kind of Jugupsā being the Sthāyin of the Śānta. Adbhuta is divya and ānandaja, wonder born of heavenly miracles and that produced by the joy one has when things are achieved. Raudra is also mentioned as having three varieties, manifesting through feeling, physical acts and dress (XII. 48-53).

¹ Bhānūdatta pursues this idea of a Rasa being in two forms Svaniṣṭha and Paraniṣṭha with reference to the other Rasa-s too, Vīra, Karuṇa, Adbhuta, Bhayānaka and Bībhatsa.

Such classifications of Rasa-s do not have any scientific basis or method in them.

Of the varieties of Rasa-s, those of Vīra have attracted the greatest notice, because an early school of opponents of the Śānta explained away Śānta as provided for by one of the varieties of the Vīra mentioned by Bharata. Bharata mentions three kinds of heroism: munificence, Dāna-vīra as in Karna; following the right at all costs, Dharma-vīra, as in Yudhiṣṭhira; and martial heroism, Yuddha-vīra:

दानवीरं धर्मवीरं युद्धवीरं तथैव च ।

रसं वीरमपि प्राह ब्रह्मा त्रिविधमेव हि ॥ NS, VI. 99.¹

Here again, the first two Vīra-s do not seem to be Rasa-s; they can only be Bhāva-s. If they are developed as main themes, they will become aṅga-s of Śānta; or, they will form the guṇa-s of the Nāyaka, as audārya and dhārmikatva.

A Dayā-vīra was then proposed and this Dayā-vīra, as already shown, sought to throw out Śānta for some time. Hemādri includes Dayā-vīra in Dāna-vīra or Karuṇa Rāsa (Bhāgavatamuktāphalaṭikā, p. 298). More interesting is the fact that in this commentary, Dāna-vīra is classified into two kinds, giving away what one already has and declining, in a high-minded manner, any gifts or boons given to one; and similarly, Dharma-vīra is classified into sakāma and niṣkāma, 'interested' and 'disinterested' (pp. 297-8).

तस्य (उत्साहस्य) स्थैर्य-धैर्य-त्याग-वैशारद्यादिभिरनुभावैरभिनयः प्रोक्तव्यः । ibid., VII, p. 354.

As pointed out by Abhinavagupta in the Locana, Dayā-vīra as a fourth variety was not mentioned by Bharata. See above, p. 84.

Jagannātha Paṇḍita gives first the traditional varieties of Vīra as four and not three, Yuddha, Dharma, Dāna and Dayā, and then points out other varieties of Vīra (RG, pp. 37, 41). The Mahābhārata gives a long list of Vīra-s. All this has been set forth already in the section on Śānta Rasa.

Bhānudatta who gives in his Rasatarāṅgiṇī the three varieties of Vīra as Yuddha, Dāna and Dayā,¹ takes pains to prove that Dayā-vīra cannot be included in Karuṇa Rasa; there is a confusion here between Karuṇā and Karuṇa (ch. II).

The Amyogadvāra-sūtra cited previously breaks the usual order in enumerating the Rasa-s and instead of opening with Śṛṅgāra, opens with Vīra. The gloss says here that Vīra is mentioned first, because it is the noblest and foremost of Rasa-s, and the Vīra meant here is that associated with Dāna and Tapas. Towards the end of this section, the text and the commentary divide the Rasa-s into two classes, those vitiated by what are called sūtra-doṣa-s such as falsehood and injury to others, and those which do not involve these sins. Here Yuddha-vīra is considered as vitiated by the sin or flaw of injury to another, paropaghāta. Similarly Adbhuta involves exaggeration which is a species of falsehood. But such Vīra as Tapo-vīra and Dāna-vīra is, like the Praśānta Rasa, free from such sūtra-doṣa-s:

अत्र तु त्यागतपोगुणो वीररसे वर्तते । त्यागतपसी च 'त्यागो
गुणो गुणशतादधिको मतो मे', 'परं लोकातिगं धाम तपः श्रुतमिति
द्वयम्' इत्यादिवचनात् समस्तगुणप्रधान(ने) इत्यनया विवक्षया वीररसस्य आदावुपन्यासः ।

p. 135.

¹ Viśveśvara, in Rasacandrikā (Chowkhamba ed., p. 64), accepts four Vīra-s, including Dayā. On p. 82, he records a strange view that Karuṇa, a new Vyabhicārin, is the Sthāyin of Dayā-vīra.

तथा कश्चिद्रसः उपघातलक्षणेन सूत्रदोषेण निर्वर्त्यते, यथा—

प्रशान्तादिरसानां क्वचिदनृतादिदोषान्तरेणापि निष्पत्तेरिति । p. 140.

The *Viratarāṅgiṇī*¹ of Citradhara, which is the only work written exclusively on a Rasa other than Śṛṅgāra, accepts four Vīra-s, Yuddha-, Dāna-, Dayā- and Dharma-, and refutes other Vīra-s proposed by Jagannātha.

Towards the end of chapter 6, Bharata says that Śṛṅgāra is of three forms, caused by speech (vāk), dress (nepathya), and physical action (kriyā), and Hāsyā and Raudra also have these three forms.² But why should he restrict these three forms to Śṛṅgāra, Hāsyā and Raudra only? These three, speech, dress and action, form the three Abhinaya-s, Vācika, Āhārya and Āṅgika. The Sāttvika comes under the last. All Rasa-s are roused by these three Abhinaya-s. So Mātr̥gupta says:

रसास्तु त्रिविधा वाचिक-नेपथ्य-स्वभावजाः ।

रसानुरूपैरालापैः श्लोकैर्वाक्यैः पदैस्तथा ।

नानालंकारसंयुक्तैः वाचिको रस इष्यते ॥

Quoted by Rāghavabhaṭṭa in his comm. on Śākuntala,
Kale's ed., 1925, p. 5.

In another connection, i.e. while describing the Sāmavakāra type of drama, Bharata speaks of three other kinds of Śṛṅgāra:—Dharma Śṛṅgāra, Artha Śṛṅgāra and Kāma Śṛṅgāra:

त्रिविधाकृतिश्चङ्गारः ज्ञेयो धर्मार्थकामकृतः ।

NS, Kasi ed., XX. 76-9; see also Nāṭyadarpaṇa, p. 125.

Bhoja postulates a Śṛṅgāra for each Puruṣārtha and relates the resulting four Śṛṅgāra-s with the four types of heroes, Dhīrodātta, Dhīroddhata, Dhīralalita and Dhīraśānta. Of this, I have spoken in the chapter on Rasa in my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa.²

¹ From this, it is a gradual and natural extension to any of the important aspects of a play being called a Rasa, as it happens in popular usage. In Assamese Añkiya Nat tradition, seven Rasa-s are mentioned: Gāyaṇ-Bāyan, Sūtra-nāṭya, Śloka, Song, Brajāvalī, Mask, and the name of Kṛṣṇa. See The Origin and Development of Assamese Drama, Harichandra Bhattacharya, Gauhati, 1964, pp. 14-15.

VIII

ARE ALL RASA-S PLEASURABLE OR ARE THERE SOME WHICH ARE PAINFUL?

THIS is a very important question into which it is not possible to go completely in this book. It relates to the very conception of Rasa which is, strictly speaking, outside the scope of this book. But, as shown above, some writers have tried to distinguish or add to the number of Rasa-s or refute a particular Rasa which has been proposed, on the basis of this question. Duḥkha itself has been proposed as a Rasa! Hence the question may be briefly dealt with here. While dealing with Haripāla's new and separate Rasa of Vipralambha, it was pointed out that the Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa also considered Vipralambha as standing in the way of accepting Rati as a purely pleasurable state and that as a matter of fact, Rasa was both, some Rasa-s being pleasurable and some painful:

करुणामयानामप्युपादेयत्वं सामाजिकानाम्, रसस्य सुखदुःखात्मकतया
तदुभयलक्षणत्वेन उपपद्यते । अत एव तदुभयजनकत्वम् ।

Rasakalikā, Mad. MS.,¹ pp. 51-2.

This question takes us straight into the greater one: Why do we see and how do we enjoy a tragedy? What is the relish in Karuṇa? This problem, which is still to be solved in Western literary criticism, cannot be taken up for discussion here. True, Bhoja also says:

रसा हि सुखदुःखावस्थारूपाः ।

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 369

but he evidently means here the laukika-bhāva-s to which the term Rasa is applied by extension. The Nāṭyadarpaṇa also says in v. 109 (p. 158) sukhaduḥkhātmaḥ rasaḥ and proceeds to prove elaborately in the Vṛtti that some Rasa-s are certainly painful and that our seeing them and enjoying them is really due to the excellence of the art of either the dramatist or of the art of the actors (p. 159). See also, same work, under the drama-type Ḍima (II. 21):

इह च करुण-रौद्र-भयानक-बीभत्साश्चत्वारो रसा दुःखात्मानः ।

शृङ्गार-हास्य-वीराद्भुत-शान्ताः पञ्च सुखात्मकाः ।

The majority of the writers do not accept at all this view which misses the distinction between laukika-bhāva and the Rasa. All the Rasa-s are considered, uniformly and to an equal extent, pleasurable. But it is noteworthy that a writer like Madhusūdana Sarasvatī should hold the view that among Rasa-s, there is a difference of bliss. He first adopts the Sāṃkhya scheme of three guṇa-s: sattva, rajas and tamas. Only sattva can make a Sthāyin and Rasa. In Krodha, which is rājasa and Śoka, which is tāmasa, only a shred of sattva exists, only so much as to make them Sthāyin-s and give them the blissfulness of Rasa, but this blissfulness or enjoyability is naturally meagre in Krodha and Śoka. Therefore all Rasa-s cannot be relished in the same measure. He says in his Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana:

—द्रवीभावस्य सत्त्वधर्मत्वात्, तं विना च स्थायिभावसंभवात्,
सत्त्वगुणस्य च सुखरूपत्वात्, सर्वेषां भावानां सुखमयत्वेऽपि रजस्तमोऽश-
मिश्रणात् तारतम्यमवगन्तव्यम् । अतो न सर्वेषु रसेषु तुल्यसुखानुभवः । p. 22.

क्रोधशोकभयादीनां साक्षात् सुखविरोधिनाम् ।

रसत्वमभ्युपगतं तथानुभवमात्रतः ॥

II. 79.

After saying this on the basis of the Sāṃkhya, Madhusūdana Sarasvatī discusses the question from the Vedāntic standpoint also. All bliss is of the form of Brahmanānanda, for bliss is the form of the Brahman. This however does not militate against mundane things also being blissful, for it is said in the Upaniṣad:

एतस्यैवानन्दस्य अन्यानि भूतानि मात्रामुपजीवन्ति¹ ।

Though literary enjoyment is superior to mundane enjoyment, it is still not on a par with brahmāsvāda (I. 10-14).
Compared to brahmāsvāda, kāvīyarasāsvāda is laukika. A similar view is propounded by Śāradātanaya also. (See Bhāvaṇṇaprakāśa, GOS ed., Introd., pp. 39-40; pp. 52-3.) But among literary Rasa-s also, the Śānta and Bhakti are on a par with brahmāsvāda, for it is the Paramātman and Bhagavān themselves that are the Sthāyin and Ālambana.²

¹ Brhadāranyakopaniṣad, IV. 3. 32.

² Cf. Nāṇḍilla Gopa's commentary on the Prabodhacandrodaya
(NSP ed., p. 5), where he says that in a philosophical play like that of Kṛṣṇamiśra, whose ultimate aim is to make one realize Brahman, we have in the earlier Saṃdhi-s the bliss of Rasa and in the final Saṃdhi the bliss of Brahman itself, i.e. first the bliss which is brahmāsvāda-sodara and then that which is brahmāsvāda itself.

अस्मिन्नाटके मुखप्रतिमुख(खादि?)संधिषु रामायणादिष्विव . . . रसास्वाद-
समुद्भूतो विगलितवेद्यान्तर आनन्द उदेति । निर्वहणसंधौ विगलितवेद्यान्तरः साक्षाद्
ब्रह्मानन्द एव ।

The Advaitic approach is seen in full in chapter 3, where Madhusūdana Sarasvatī discards his previous Sāṃkhya conclusion that Rasa varies in degree in its bliss and says expressly that though, in the world, the Bhāva-s are of the forms of sukha, duḥkha and moha, their counterparts in the Kāvya and in the hearts of the spectator, are all of the form of bliss only.

बोध्यनिष्ठा यथास्वं ते सुखदुःखादिहेतवः ।

बोद्धुनिष्ठास्तु सर्वेऽपि सुखमात्रैकहेतवः ॥

III. 5.

Sattva begins to spread and dominate as the sole vṛtti of the antahkaraṇa and Rasa is then manifested:

समूहालम्बनात्मैका जायते सात्त्विकी मतिः ।

सानन्तरक्षणेऽवश्यं व्यनक्ति सुखमुत्तमम् ॥

III. 12-13.

NEW VYABHICĀRIN-S AND SĀTTVIKA-S

WE have seen how freely later writers debated the question of adding newer Rasa-s to those that Bharata gave. But did not writers feel also that there was no finality about Bharata's list of Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s and their number, thirty-three and eight?

Bharatā gave the Bhāva-s in three sets as Sthāyin-s, Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s. We have already examined and found that all the eight Sthāyin-s become Vyabhicārin-s also. Therefore these eight, the Sthāyin-s, must be added to the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s. Rati, the first Sthāyin, has for long figured as a Vyabhicārin in discussions on Preyas, Bhakti and Vātsalya, and Jagannātha expressly adds it as the thirty-fourth Vyabhicārin:

गुरुदेवनृपपुत्रादिविषया रतिश्चेति चतुस्त्रिंशत् ।

RG, p. 76.

But when this addition is made, we have to reduce the thirty-three by removing a few which are redundant. Thus when Śoka becomes a Vyabhicārin, there is no need for Viṣāda; Bhaya in its Vyabhicārin grade eliminates Trāsa; Sāgarānandin actually gives Trāsa as the Sthāyin.¹ Krodha removes Amarṣa. This gives us eight and thirty Vyabhicārin-s.

¹ Nāṭakalakṣaṇaratnakośa, Myles Dillon, London, 1937, line 243. In Murāri's Anargharāghava, II. 64, Trāsa is the word used for the Sthāyin, though it may be due to metrical exigency.

Further reduction is possible. Among the thirty, we have two Bhāva-s, Glāni and Śrama, one of which will suffice. Not only do they seem akin at first sight but prove to be identical also when their descriptions are examined. Another case of repetition is Nidrā and Supta; the second is very delicately distinguished from the first. Bharata describes the latter as nidrābhibhava and nidrāsamuttha. If two are thus removed, we have eight and twenty-eight. Some writers did see the redundancy at least in the case of Nidrā and Supta and, instead of Supta, gave a new Vyabhicārin called Śauca, as for instance, those whom Sāgaranandin, author of the Nāṭakalakṣaṇaratnakośa (pp. 83-7) followed.

Why did Bharata classify the Bhāva-s into Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s? Among Bhāva-s, there are only two classes: Sthāyin-s and Vyabhicārin-s. The Anubhāva-s, the twenty Alamkāra-s of damsels, Bhāva, Hāva, etc.,¹ the eight Sāttvika-s, Ālāpa, etc. given as modes of Vācikābhinaya, the ten

¹ Rāhula added to this set Maugdhya, Mada, Bhāvikatva and Paritapana, according to Abhinavagupta. See JOR, vol. 6, pp. 208-10, my article on 'Writers Quoted in the Abhinavabhāratī'. See also Hemacandra, KAH, p. 316, where Abhinavagupta's sentence referring to Rāhula's additions is reproduced. See also Padmaśrī's Nāgarasauvasva following Rāhula's school, VII. 3-4, where Vikṣepa, Mada, Maugdhya and Tapanā are given in addition. (Tanusukharam Sarma's ed., Bombay, 1921, p. 29.) While defining Vikṣepa, Padmaśrī quotes a writer named Kapila. Among writers of the orthodox schools, Kavikarṇapūra gives Maugdhya and Tapanā. See his Alamkāra-kaustubha, Varendra Research Society, p. 198. Bhoja added Vihṛta, Kṛṇḍita and Keli which Śiṅgabhūpāla criticized. Viśvanātha accepts Rāhula's and Bhoja's additions and himself adds three more, Kutūhala, Hasita and Cakita. (JOR, vol. 6, pp. 209-10)

*kāma-avasthā-s*¹—all these are comprehended in the term Vyabhicārin. Says Mahima Bhaṭṭa:

ये चैते स्थायिव्यभिचारिसात्त्विकभेदादेकोनपञ्चाशद्भावा उक्तास्ते सर्वे
व्यभिचारिण एव । Vyaktiviveka, TSS ed., p. 13.

Bhoja calls the Sāttvika-s, Bāhya-vyabhicārin-s:

तत्र आभ्यन्तरा व्यभिचारिषु चिन्तौत्सुक्यावेगवितर्कादयः, बाह्याः
स्वेदरोमाञ्चाश्रुवैवर्ण्यादयः । Śr. Pra., ch. 11.

But out of these numberless subsidiary mental states and their physical manifestations, there are a few which are major ones, compared to others; not only are they major, but they are more definitely mental states than others which are physical manifestations. It may be asked if the major among these accessory mental states are only those given by Bharata and if there are not others. It has been pointed out that this list of Bharata can be reduced on one side; and as a matter of fact, it has been added to also on the other side. Bhoja, in his Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, omits Apasmāra and Maraṇa and gives in their place, Irṣyā (which Śiṅgabhūpāla refutes) and Śama which is needed for the Śānta Rasa (ch. 11). In his SKĀ, Bhoja counts among his thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s Sneha which Śiṅgabhūpāla refutes and, instead of adding Śama as in his Śr. Pra., takes Dhṛti itself, one of the old Vyabhicārin-s given by Bharata, as the Sthāyin of Śānta. Hemacandra points out how additional Vyabhicārin-s like Dambha, Udvega, Kṣut and Tṛṣṇā, which some may propose, could be included in some of the Bhāva-s already accepted:

संख्यावचनं नियमार्थं, तेनान्येषामत्रैवान्तर्भावः । तद्यथा—दम्भस्याव-
हित्ये, उद्वेगस्य निर्वेदे, क्षुत्तृष्णादेर्ग्लानौ । एवमन्यदप्यूहम् ।

KAH, p. 86.

Śiṅgabhūpāla raises the same point, mentions some more Vyabhicārin-s,—Udvega, Sneha, Dambha, Īrṣyā—but dismisses these as included in one or the other of the thirty-three,
with reasons which look strained. Bhānudatta proposes Chala:

अत्र प्रतिभाति छलमधिको व्यभिचारिभाव इति । (ch. 5.)

and shows its occurrence in Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and Hāsyā. But it could be included in Bharata's Avahittha. (See its description, MS, I, GOS, p. 373.) Rūpa Gosvāmin, in his scheme of Madhura Rasa, accepts at first the traditional thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s and adds afterwards thirteen more Vyabhi-cārin-s generally, as also a few more specially under some individual Rasa-s (See S. K. De, IHQ, vol. 8, 1932, p. 663).
Dr. De adds that the thirteen additional Vyabhicārin-s are brought by Rūpa under one or the other of the old thirty-three. Jagannātha in his *RG*¹ and Viśveśvara in his Rasa-
candrikā,² mention as possible additional Vyabhicārin-s
Mātsarya, Udvega, Dambha, Īrṣyā, Viveka, Nirṇaya,
Klaibya, Kṣamā, Kutuka, Utkanṭhā, Vinaya, Saṁśaya, Dhārṣṭya and Chala; and show that these could be brought under one or the other of the thirty-three of Bharata. Later, in the course of definition and illustration of the Vyabhicārin-s, Viśveśvara says that in the place of Mṛti, some propose Karuṇa as a Vyabhicārin, as it would also serve as a Sthāyin for Dayā-vira, and refutes the view:

² KSS 53, pp. 69-70.

केचित्त्र करुणं पठन्ति । तदयुक्तम् . . . दयावीरे स्थायित्वाच्च ।

Rasacandrikā, p. 82.

Bharata himself discusses the question of the separate naming and enumeration of the eight Sāttvika-s. He says: as a matter of fact all Bhāva-s enacted have to be 'entered into'; Sattva is 'entering into'; but this 'entering into the state' is all the more necessary in the case of the eight Sāttvika-s. For, tears have actually to be shed (see NS, I, GOS, pp. 379-81). Bhoja says that in truth all Bhāva-s are Sāttvika-s, because sattva means 'mind':

सात्त्विका अपि सर्वे एव, मनःप्रभवत्वात् । अनुपहतं हि मनः
सत्त्वमित्युच्यते । Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 354.

Śiṅgabhūpāla also says:

सर्वेऽपि सत्त्वमूलत्वाद् भावा यद्यपि सात्त्विकाः ।

तथाप्यमीषां सत्त्वैकमूलत्वात् सात्त्विकप्रथा ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, I. 310.

The only writer, now known, to propose a ninth Sāttvika, is Bhānudatta. He proposes Jṛmbhā in his Rasatarāṅgiṇī:

जृम्भा च नवमः सात्त्विको भाव इति प्रतिभाति । p. 66.¹

Bhānudatta would not base himself on the meaning 'entering into' and 'becoming one with' (tanmayibhavana), for the word sattva, and justify the separate enumeration of the Sāttvika-s. For, sattva so understood would apply to the Vyabhicārin-s also. So he interprets sattva as the 'body'—

jīva-sarīra. Tears, perspiration, etc. are physical states and as such are distinct from the Vyabhicārin-s which are mental states. The former are bāhya,¹ the latter āntara (Rasatarāṅgiṇī, pp. 57-8 and 70-1).² To accord with this, Bhānudatta defines a Bhāva not as a citta-vṛtti, but as a rasānukūla-vikāra, which is of two kinds, ābhyaṅtara (Sthāyin and Vyabhicārin) and bāhya (Sāttvika, etc.). But to exclude too palpably physical acts, he gives them a different name Ceṣṭā which, he says, is different from Vikāra. The difference between the two is that while a Vikāra like a tear cannot be made to

¹ Bharata uses sattva as meaning also the opposite of mind, namely the physical body, and calls Bhāva, Hāva, etc. by the name 'Sāttvikābhinaya'. See NS, Kasi ed., ch. XXIV. 1-7, 40.

देहात्मकं भवेत् सत्त्वं सत्त्वाद्भावः समुत्थितः ।

सत्त्वजोऽभिनयः पूर्वं मया प्रोक्तो द्विजोत्तमाः ।

Abhinavagupta also says बाह्याश्च बाष्पप्रभृतयः Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, ch. 7, p. 343. But in his commentary on the section on Sāttvikābhinaya and Bharata's verse देहात्मकं भवेत् सत्त्वम्, etc. (XXIV. 1-7), Abhinavagupta reconciles the two meanings of 'mind' and 'body':

इह चित्तवृत्तिरेव संवेदनभूमौ संक्रान्ता देहमपि व्याप्नोति । सेव च सत्त्वमित्युच्यते ।
... तस्य च ये गुणा देहपर्यन्तानां प्राप्ताः, etc., GOS, III, p. 152.

For a resumé of some other interpretations of Sattva, see Kumārasvāmin on the Pratāparudriya (Balamanaorama ed., p. 160): Sattva as prāṇamaya (from sīdaty asmin iti); as Bala (strength) whereby these eight make us realize forcefully the presence of the Rasa; usage through yogarūḍhi and convention.

² RT, V:

appear according to man's desire, a Ceṣṭā like aṅgākṛṣṭi and *akṣimardana*¹ is done by man of his own will:

न चाङ्गाकृष्टिनेत्रमर्दनादीनामपि भावत्वापत्तिः । तेषां भावलक्षणाभावात् ।

RT, p. 69.

Viśveśvara, author of the Rasacandrikā,² refutes Jṛmbhā or Jṛmbhita proposed as the ninth Sāttvika, and says that its acceptance would lead to other possible additional Sāttvika-s like Kaṭākṣa.

¹ For Rūpa aṅgākṛṣṭi and aṅgamardana would come under Gātramotaṇa, one of the six Udbhāsvara-s. Ujjvalanīlamani, KM ed., p. 263.

RASA-SYNTHESIS

KARUṆA

THE artistic mind has always shown a partiality for pathos. It is said that the sweetest songs are often songs of sorrow. The first Kāvya in Sanskrit rose out of the sense of pity. Raseṣu karuṇo rasaḥ is a well-known anonymous saying. Ānandavardhana says that the quality of sweetness which is the melting of the heart is found in the highest degree in Karuṇa:

माधुर्यमाद्रतां याति यतस्तत्राधिकं मनः । Dhva. Ā., II. 9.

But to point out the beauty and appeal of a Rasa is not the making of any synthesis. By Rasa-synthesis is meant a reducing of all Rasa-s to the nature of one, a formulation of one as prakṛti and the rest as its vikṛti-s.

No Ālaṃkārika ever attempted a Karuṇa-synthesis, but Bhavabhūti, in his drama, Uttararāmacarita, suggested such a synthesis in Karuṇa. Ānandavardhana explains that the Rāmāyaṇa is an epic of Karuṇa:

रामायणे हि करुणो रसः स्वयमादिकविना सूत्रितः 'शोकः श्लोक-
त्वमागतः' इत्येवंवादिना । निर्व्यूढश्च स एव सीतात्यन्तवियोगपर्यन्तमेव
स्वप्नबन्धमुपरचयता । Dhva. Ā., IV, p. 237.

Bhavabhūti gave the same opinion when he said :

भगवान् भूतार्थवादी प्राचेतसः . . . पावनं वचनामृतं करुणाद्भुतरसं
च किंचिदुपनिबद्धम् Uttararāmacarita, act VII.

Writing a masterpiece dominated by Karuṇa, Bhavabhūti, in a self-conscious mood, says through Śleṣa :

अहो संविधानकम्—

एको रसः करुण एव निमित्तभेदाद्
भिन्नः पृथक् पृथगिव श्रयते विवर्तान् ।
आवर्तबुद्बुदतरङ्गमयान् विकारान्
अम्भो यथा सलिलमेव हि तत् समस्तम् ॥

ibid., III. 47.

‘O! what a great play I have written!’ he seems to exclaim to himself. By context, the passage refers to Tamasā observing the pathos that existed in everybody, though in different forms :

एक एव सन्नपि निमित्तभेदात् सखित्वपतित्वपत्नीत्वाद्युपाधिभेदाद्
भिन्नः विलक्षण इव पृथक् पृथग् विवर्तान् श्रयते । वासन्तीसीतारामप्रभृतिषु
परस्परविलक्षणावस्थाविशेषान् भजति ।

Vīrarāghava's comm., NSP ed., 1915, p. 99.

A general import bearing on our present subject of Rasa-synthesis can also be seen in this verse. Bhavabhūti seems to say that there is only one Rasa, Karuṇa, and that it assumes different forms called Śṛṅgāra, etc. even as the same water assumes the forms of whirl, bubble, etc. Karuṇa is the prakṛti; the other Rasa-s are its vikṛti-s. Vīrarāghava, a commentator, also saw such a meaning in this verse which shows that the interpretation is authenticated by tradition :

एक इति । रस्यते स्वाद्यत इति रसः काव्यानुशीलनाभ्यासवश-
 विशदीभूतवर्णनीयतन्मयीभवनयोग्यसामाजिकमनोमुकुरभाव्यमानतया निर्भरानन्द-
 संविद्रूपः । करुण इष्टजनवियोगजन्यदुःखातिशयः । एक एव सन्नपि
 निमित्तभेदात् व्यञ्जकविभावादिविच्छित्तिविशेषाद् भिन्नः विलक्षणः । पृथक्
 पृथग् विवर्तान् परस्परविलक्षणशृङ्गाराद्यात्मना परिणामान् । ‘व्यत्यस्तपरिणामः
 स्याद्विवर्तः’ इति कपिलः । श्रयते भजते . . . इदमत्र
 कवेर्मतम्—यद्यपि शृङ्गार एक एव रस इति शृङ्गारप्रकाशकारादि-
 मतम्, तथापि प्राचुर्याद् रागिविरागिसाधारण्यात् करुण एक एव रसः ।
 अन्ये तु तद्विकृतय इति ।

Vīrarāghava's comm., p. 99.

To the Karuṇa-synthesis suggested by Bhavabhūti, this commentator added two arguments: one, that Karuṇa is present to the largest extent in life; and the other, that it is found not only in men with mundane attachments but in the Yogin-s also. These, however, do not make for the prakṛti-vikṛti-bhāva in Bhavabhūti's verse, and that alone forms the meaning of 'synthesis'. In English, the word 'sympathy' meaning 'response to another's feeling of sorrow', has come to be used in an enlarged sense to mean all forms of aesthetic response and attunement of heart, citta-saṃvāda; and here is an argument in favour of a Karuṇa-synthesis. For it seems, the model and the supreme example of a complete attunement of heart, which poetry and drama effect, is certainly the attunement of hearts in Karuṇa.

ŚĀNTA

A regular attempt at synthesis in the field of Rasa-s by a theorist is however to be seen earliest only in the Abhi. Bhā. of Abhinavagupta. He sponsored the Śānta-synthesis by considering the Śānta as the one fundamental Rasa of which the other Rasa-s are modifications. He called Śānta the greatest Rasa, firstly because of its relation to the last and the greatest Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. Next, poetic delight called Rasa is always of a non-worldly (alaukika) character, shorn as it is of all mundane associations, a limitless, unbounded and ineffable bliss, and hence is of the form of Śānta:

तत्र सर्वरसानां शान्तप्राय एवास्वादः, विषयेभ्यो विपरिवृत्त्या— । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 340.

Further, the Sthāyin of Śānta, the Ātman, is the very substratum of all mental activities; it is the one basic citta illumined by this Ātman that takes the form of the vr̥tti-s of Śṛṅgāra, etc. Thus it is Sthāyi-tama; it is the Sthāyin of the Sthāyin-s, the prakṛti of which Rati, Hāsa and the rest are vikṛti-s. Says Abhinavagupta:

अत्र सर्वप्रकृतित्वाभिधानाय पूर्वमभिधानम् । ibid., p. 340.

And according to some MSS. known to Abhinavagupta, the Śānta Rasa section is found at the very beginning, even before the Śṛṅgāra section:

तथा च चिरंतनपुस्तकेषु 'स्थायिभावान् रसत्वमुपनेष्यामः' इत्यनन्तरम् 'शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावः' इत्यादि लक्षणं पठ्यते । ibid., p. 340.

The Śānta text found in Bharata, according to some, definitely states this Śānta-synthesis in two verses:

भावा विकारा रत्याद्याः शान्तस्तु प्रकृतिर्मतः ।

विकारः प्रकृतेर्जातः पुनस्तत्रैव लीयते ॥

स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्ताद्भावः प्रवर्तते ।

पुनर्निमित्तापाये च शान्त एवोपलीयते ॥

NS, GOS, I, pp. 335-6.

This has already been shown above in the Śānta Rasa section.

AHAṆKĀRA-ŚṚṆGĀRA

When Abhinavagupta was synthesizing the Rasa-s in Śānta, a similar synthetic spirit was working in Bhoja who merged every Rasa and Bhāva in a new Śṛṅgāra he formulated. He said that at the root of all Bhāva-s lay the germ of Ahaṇkāra, otherwise called Śṛṅgāra and Abhimāna. It is a guṇa of the Ātman and is the result of past good acts. By Ahaṇkāra is meant a self-consciousness or the sense of 'I' which marks off the cultured from the uncultured. It is that by which not only for himself but for others and other objects also does man have any love. In this sense it is called Ātma-rati. It is this 'ego' or 'self-love' that is the one Rasa. Its manifestations are Rati, Hāsa, etc. Thus this basic Śṛṅgāra is different from the first derivative of that name, the Śṛṅgāra developed from Rati. So this Śṛṅgāra-synthesis is not a synthesis of the first of the eight old Rasa-s of Bharata and others. This theory finds a brief statement in the fifth chapter of Bhoja's SKĀ and an elaborate exposition in his Śr. Pra. I have set this forth at great length in my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa and here I give only a brief account. The SKĀ says:

रसोऽभिमानोऽहंकारः शृङ्गार इति गीयते ।

योऽर्थस्तस्यान्वयात् काव्यं कमनीयत्वमश्नुते ॥

विशिष्टादृष्टजन्मायं जन्मिनामन्तरात्मसु ।

आत्मसम्यग्गुणोद्भूतेरेको हेतुः प्रकाशते ॥

KM ed., ch. V. 1-2, p. 474.

(See also vr̥tti on p. 613 where Bhoja quotes Daṇḍin and draws out his own theory from Daṇḍin's verse.) The Śr. Pra. says:

आत्मस्थितं गुणविशेषमहंकृतस्य शृङ्गारमाहुरिह जीवितमात्मयोनेः ।
तस्यात्मशक्तिरसनीयतया रसत्वं युक्तस्य येन रसिकोऽयमिति प्रवादः ॥

अप्रातिकूलिकतया मनसो मुदादेः यः संविदोऽनुभवहेतुरिहाभिमानः ।
ज्ञेयो रसः स रसनीयतया आत्मरक्तेः . . .

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. I, pp. 1-3.

While Abhinavagupta in his Śānta-synthesis took his stand on that ultimate rippleless state of the Ātman, Bhoja, adopting the Sāṃkhya and Nyāya schools, took his stand on the Ātman with its first shoot of Ahaṃkāra. To Bhoja, even Śānta would appear only within the world of Ahaṃkāra; for to him, any Bhāva or Rasa can be experienced only through Ahaṃkāra. Śama as much as Rati is the product of Ahaṃkāra:

. . . तच्च आत्मनोऽहंकारगुणविशेषं ब्रूमः । स शृङ्गारः सोऽभिमानः
स रसः । तत एते रत्यादयो जायन्ते । तैश्चायं प्रकर्षप्राप्तैः सप्ताचिरचिश्चयैरिव
प्रकाशमानः शृङ्गारिणामेव स्वदत इति ।

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 356.

What is called Rasa is an experience of bliss unconditioned by any name. So long as there is the knowledge of the state being Rati or Hāsa or anything else, the spectator is only in the state of Bhāvanā and Bhāva; beyond this is the state of Rasa. Says Bhoja:

आभावनोदयमनन्यधिया जनेन

यो भाव्यते मनसि भावनया स भावः ।

यो भावनापथमतीत्य विवर्तमानः

साहंकृतौ हृदि परं स्वदते रसोऽसौ ॥ Śr. Pra., loc. cit.

Thus Śrīṅgāra, Hāsyā and Vīra are but Bhāva-states in reality. The truth of Rasa is that it is only one and has no more name than Rasa.

PREMAN

Side by side with or rather within this Ahaṁkāra-Śrīṅgāra synthesis, Bhoja formulates a synthesis in Preman also. Preman to him is a fundamental love lying at the root of Rati, Sneha, Bhakti, why, at the root of all Bhāva-s in much the same manner as Ahaṁkāra itself. If a person laughs, it is because he loves to laugh; if he fights, he loves to do so. Thus all activities go to fulfil a certain love which is innate in man and which explains all his activities; it is this love which makes all his activities a self-fulfilment. Bhoja has three stages of his Rasa: the Pūrvā Koṭi, the Madhyamā Avasthā and the Uttarā Koṭi. In the first, it is the one Ahaṁkāra; in the second, the one Ahaṁkāra has become the forty-nine Bhāva-s, each growing to its relative climax through its Vibhāva-s, Anubhāva-s, etc.; in the third, all these several Bhāva-s become aspects of Preman, or rather ripen into Preman, from which stage again, experience passes into the primary stage of the one Rasa of Ahaṁkāra:

प्रेयः प्रियतराख्यानमित्यनेन समस्तभावमूर्धाभिषिक्ताया रतेः परप्रकर्षा-
धिगमाद् भावनाधि(तिः)गमे भावरूपतामुल्लङ्घ्य प्रेमरूपेण परिणतायाः
उपादानात् भावान्तराणामपि परप्रकर्षाधिगमे रसरूपेण परिणतिरिति
ज्ञापयन्नहंकारस्य उत्तरां कोटिमुपलक्षयति । सर्वेषामपि हि रत्यादिप्रकर्षाणां

रतिप्रियो रणप्रियः परिहासप्रियः अमर्षप्रिय इति प्रेम्ण्येव पर्यवसानं
भवति । SKA, p. 613.

In the Śr. Pra. he adds:

रसं त्विह प्रेमाणमेवामनन्ति ।

Mad. MS., vol. II, ch. 11, pp. 352-3.

This Preman-synthesis finds an advocate in Kavikarṇa-pūra, the author of the Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, where he says:

प्रेमरसे सर्वे रसा अन्तर्भवन्तीत्यत्र महीयानेव प्रपञ्चः । ग्रन्थगौरव-
भयाद् दिङ्मात्रमुक्तम् । . . . तथा च—

‘ उन्मज्जन्ति निमज्जन्ति प्रेम्ण्यखण्डरसत्वतः ।

सर्वे रसाश्च भावाश्च तरङ्गा इव वारिधौ ॥ ’

Varendra ed., pp. 147-8.

RATI-ŚRĠGĀRA

The Agnipurāṇa took Bhoja's Ahaṃkāra, but instead of saying that Rati and all other Bhāva-s emanated from it, it said that Rati was the first-born of Abhimāna which was itself a product of Ahaṃkāra and this Rati modified itself into Hāsa, etc. It further went behind Ahaṃkāra and said that Ahaṃkāra is the first manifestation of Rasa or Camat-kāra which is the manifestation of the ānanda, the innate nature of the Supreme Being called Para Brahman:

अक्षरं परमं ब्रह्म सनातनमजं विभु ।

वेदान्तेषु वदन्येकं चैतन्यं ज्योतिरीश्वरम् ॥

आनन्दः सहजस्तस्य व्यज्यते स कदाचन ।
 व्यक्तिः सा तस्य चैतन्यचमत्काररसाह्वया ॥

An almost similar Rati-synthesis, which makes all the nine Rasa-s manifestations of Rati is seen in the Svālmayogapradīpa, quoted by Kumārasvāmin in his commentary on the Pratāparudriya:

या स्थायिभावरतिरेव निमित्तभेदाच्छृङ्गारमुख्यनवनाट्यरसीभवन्ती ।

ADBHUTA

Wonder is an invariable element in all enjoyment, mundane or artistic. In art and literature, the element of surprise, extraordinariness, wonder, is present everywhere. The very theme has to be striking; for, when we see an extraordinary situation, do we not describe it as being dramatic? Wonder helps love. Hāsya is only reversed wonder. The part Adbhuta has in Vīra is too patent; Bharata describes Adbhuta as born of Vīra. The hold of Adbhuta on the minds of the audience is fully realized by Bharata who says that the dramatist must so work out his story, so weave it, hide some and reveal some, that the audience may get at each step a surprise and a thrill. One of the ends which the means to developing the plot called the Samdhyāṅga-s serve is the presentation of the story in a wondrous manner, āścaryavad abhikhyānam (NS, Kasi ed., XXI. 54). There is again the need to complicate intricately the problems of the story and give out a series of revelations in the end, thus carrying away the heart in the end with thrill after thrill. This can be realized, for instance, when the closing scene of the Mṛcchakatika or the Mālavikāgnimitra is read. The story has to be, says Bharata, in the form of a cow's tail, bushy at the end, with a crowd of surprises. There must be Adbhuta in the end:

कार्यं गोपुच्छाग्रं कर्तव्यं काव्यबन्धमासाद्य ।

ये चोदात्ता भावास्ते सर्वे पृष्ठतः कार्याः ॥

सर्वेषां काव्यानां नानारसमावयुक्तियुक्तानाम् ।

निर्वहणे कर्तव्यो नित्यं हि रसोऽद्भुतस्तज्ज्ञैः ॥ NS, XX. 46-7.

Similarly, on the side of verbal expression, the Vācya-vācaka, or the Vācikābhinaya in drama, Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin made a synthesis in Adbhuta when they praised Atiśayokti as the one great figure of which the rest are but several forms:

इत्येवमादिरुदिता गुणातिशययोगतः ।

सर्वैवातिशयोक्तिस्तु तर्कयेतां यथागमम् ॥

सैषा सर्वैव वक्रोक्तिरनयार्थो विभाव्यते ।

यत्नोऽस्यां कविना कार्यः कोऽलंकारोऽनया विना ॥

Kāvya-lamkāra of Bhāmaha, II. 84-5.

असावतिशयोक्तिः स्याद् अलंकारोत्तमा यथा ।

अलंकारान्तराणामप्येकमाहुः परायणम् ।

वागीशमहितामुक्तिमिमामतिशयाह्वयाम् ॥ KĀ, II. 214-20.

This point has been explained at some length by Ānandavardhana and Abhinavagupta in the Dhvā. Ā. and the Locana, III, pp. 206-9. The striking quality of poetic expression is Atiśaya and Adbhuta:

लोकोत्तीर्णेन रूपेण अवस्थानम्
लोकोत्तरेण चैवातिशयः । तेन अतिशयोक्तिः सर्वालंकारसामान्यम् ।

Locana, p. 208.¹

This Adbhuta or element of surprise characterizes the climax-condition of all the Rasa-s. Adbhuta thus permeates a composition, its Alaṃkāra, Vastu and Rasa.

The regular theory of a synthesis of Rasa-s in Adbhuta was however made by an ancestor of the author of the Sāhityadarpaṇa. He was known as Nārāyaṇa. In chapter 3 of his Sāhityadarpaṇa, Viśvanātha speaks of this Adbhuta-synthesis in his Vṛtti on verse three, in the name of his ancestor, Nārāyaṇa, and quotes a verse and a half to that effect from the writing of one Dharmadatta. This Dharmadatta is cited as reviewing Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra-theory in the Rasasudhānidhi of Soṇṭhi Māra Bhaṭṭāraka, available in a manuscript in the Madras Govt. Oriental MSS. Library (MT 3210). This

अत्युक्ति-भ्रमोक्ति-चित्रोक्ति-विरोधाभासप्रभृतयोऽद्भुता एव ।

Under Citrokti mentioned here, he brings all expressions turning on Lakṣaṇā: लक्षणिकमखिलं चित्रोक्तिरेव ।

Dharmadatta evidently wrote an Alaṃkāra treatise in which he stated the theory of Adbhuta-synthesis first propounded by Nārāyaṇa. The text of this synthesis in the Sāhityadarpaṇa runs as follows:

चमत्कारश्चित्तविस्ताररूपः विस्मयापरपर्यायः । तत्प्राणत्वं च अस्म-
त्पितामहसहृदयगोष्ठीगारिष्ठकविपण्डितमुख्यश्रीमन्नारायणपादैरुक्तम् । तदाह
धर्मदत्तः स्वग्रन्थे—

‘रसे सारश्चमत्कारः सर्वत्राप्यनुभूयते ।

तच्चमत्कारसारत्वे सर्वत्राप्यद्भुतो रसः ॥

तस्मादद्भुतमेवाह कृती नारायणो रसम् ।’ इति । ch. III.

It is accepted that Camatkāra is rasāsvāda. This Camatkāra is a fillip to the mind which is in essence a wonder. The lokottaratva of all rasāsvāda, accepted on all hands, again points to Adbhuta.

Kavikarṇapūra subscribes to this idea and incorporating it in his description of rasāsvāda says:

तथा हि नटेनानुक्रियमाणानुकार्यचरितदर्शनश्रवणजनितचमत्काराति-
शयेन विगलितवेद्यान्तरतया तदेकस्फूर्तिसनाथेन अद्भुतमिदं रामसीतयो रति-
कलाकौशलम्, अद्भुतमिदं रामरावणयोर्युद्धम्, अद्भुतमिदं प्रेतरङ्गादिविचेष्टितम्
इत्यादिना सर्वेष्वेव रसेषु—

रसे सारश्चमत्कारो यं विना न रसो रसः ।

तच्चमत्कारसारत्वे सर्वत्रैवाद्भुतो रसः ॥

इत्यादिदिशा चमत्कारपूर्वकमद्भुतत्वातिशयस्फूर्तो . . . ।

Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, p. 137.

Bhānudatta too accepts that in Śṛṅgāra and other cases there is an element of Adbhuta as aniga; where it is anigin, the Rasa becomes Adbhuta proper:

शृङ्गारादौ चमत्कारदर्शनाद्यत्र मनोविकृ(स्तृ?)तिरङ्गतया भासते तत्र
शृङ्गारादय एव रसाः । प्राधान्येन यत्र भासते तत्राद्भुत एव रसः ।

RT, ch. 1.

Prabhākara, author of the *Rasapradīpa*¹ refutes this Adbhuta-synthesis:

—इति नारायणेन अद्भुत एव रस इत्यभिहितम् । धर्मदत्ता- दिभिश्च तदेवानुसृतम् । तन्न साधु । वैलक्षण्यस्य अनुभवसिद्धत्वात् । प्रकृति-
भेदाच्च । नापि व्यभिचारिषु स्थायिन इव रत्यादिषु विस्मयानुगमः । शोकादिषु
तथाननुगमात् ।

Prabhākara points out that the relish in each Rasa is distinct (vilakṣaṇa) and proceeds from a distinct Sthāyin. Adbhuta cannot also be said to be the continuing factor, like a Sthāyin in and through all its Vyabhicārin-s, in all Rasa-s or their Sthāyin-s; clearly, Adbhuta does not exist in Śoka.

He says further that to have a Rasa, its Vibhāva-s, etc. must have been presented; no poet includes in his presentation the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Adbhuta when presenting other Rasa-s. If, however, it is held that the Camatkāra relished in all Rasa-s is Adbhuta and it is the latter that we call Rati, etc. because of the Vibhāva-s of Rati, etc. that are presented, we might call these cases of Adbhuta, and not Rati, because of the continuing Vismaya; if Vismaya is not present, then its relish is ruled out. If it is contended that all the Rasa-s produce additionally a separate Adbhuta, let them; but it cannot be called Rasa; it has been given the name Camatkāra; nothing is gained or lost by calling this Camatkāra, Adbhuta Rasa:

... लौकिके रसे नियमतः तद्विभावादेः अनुपनिपातात्, काव्यादौ च तथानुपनिबन्धात् ।

अथ प्रतीयते तावत् सर्वत्र चमत्कारः स चाद्भुत एव; तस्यैव रत्यादि-विभावानुरोधेन व्यपदेशान्तरमिति । तत्र तर्हि विसयानुरोधेन अद्भुतव्यपदेश इत्यपि सुवचत्वात् । अन्यथा तद्विरहिणामपि तदास्वादप्रसङ्गात् ।

अथ पृथगेवायमद्भुतः सर्वैरेव रसभेदाभिमतैर्जन्येत, जन्यतां स तु न रसः । किंतु तद्धेतुः स्थायी अलौकिकचमत्कारोत्पत्तिरित्यभियुक्तव्यवहारात् । तस्य तथा परिभाषणे तु नास्माकमपचयो न युष्माकमुपचय इति संक्षेपः । विस्तरस्तु मदुच्चीतालंकाररहस्येऽध्येयः । p. 40; see also p. 10.

He adds in the end that he has refuted this theory of 'Adbhuta in all Rasa-s' in his earlier Alamkāra work, the Alamkārahasya, also, which is not available to us now.

On the practical side, Śaktibhadra's Āścaryacūḍāmaṇi illustrates the dominating Rasa of Adbhuta, and this has been explained in detail by Professor Mahamahopadhyaya S. Kuppuswami Sastriar in his Introduction (pp. 12-15) to the Bala-manorama edition of this play. The now lost *Kṛtyārāvaṇa*¹ also seems to be a play which specialized in Adbhuta. Towards the end of the 17th century, young Mahādeva wrote his Adbhutadarpaṇa, where Rāma is made to say:

यत् सत्यममितः स्तब्धैः इन्द्रियैरिन्द्रजालवत् ।

अद्भुतैकरसावृत्तिः अन्तर्मील्यतीव माम् ॥ KM 55, IV. 8.

RASA ONLY ONE

It may be granted that an element of wonder, the Bhāva of Vismaya as a Saṃcārin, enters many Sthāyin-s and Rasa-s, but it is absent at least in Śoka and Karuṇa as Prabhākara effectively points out. Though rasāsvāda is citta-saṃvāda and is called Camatkāra, the citta-saṃvāda is not, in all cases, of the form of an 'enlargement', visṭāra. There is Vikṣobha as in Bībhatsa, and there is Druti as in Śṛṅgāra and Karuṇa. This Druti of Śṛṅgāra and Karuṇa is totally absent in Raudra, Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Adbhuta, and in this way the Karuṇa-synthesis is defective. Abhinavagupta's Śānta and Bhoja's Ahaṃkāra-Śṛṅgāra, going to the very substratum of the emotions, may be conceded some validity; so also the synthesis in Preman, Vīra meaning Preman for Utsāha, and so on.

But though it might be difficult to prove and accept that all the Rasa-s are but forms of some one of them, it has been recognized by all writers that Rasa as such, the ineffable bliss, is one. Rasa is Rasa. It has no other name. It is one. It is like the Brahman or the Sphoṭa. The names Śṛṅgāra, Vīra, etc. and the consequent plurality and difference are ultimately unreal; or they are at best like parts or aspects of a whole. Hence it is that Bharata also, says Abhinavagupta, uses the singular number when speaking of Rasa :

NS, GOS, I, pp. 273-4.

—तत एव निर्विघ्नस्वसंवेदनात्मकविश्रान्तिलक्षणेन रसनापरपर्यायेण व्यापारेण गृह्यमाणत्वाद् रसशब्देनाभिधीयते । तेन रस एव नाट्यम्, यस्य व्युत्पत्तिः फलमित्युच्यते । तथा च 'रसादृते' (६-३३)

इत्यत्र एकवचनोपपत्तिः । ततश्च मुख्यभूतात् महारसात् स्फोटदृशीव असत्यानि वा, अन्विताभिधानदृशीव उभयात्मकानि सत्यानि वा, अभिहितान्वयदृशीव तत्समुदायिरूपाणि वा, रसान्तराणि भागाभिनिवेशदृष्टानि रूप्यन्ते (?) ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 269.

Again, commenting on the sūtra of Bharata, na hi rasād rte, etc. Abhinavagupta says that though names are given to it differently according to its evoking conditions, Rasa is fundamentally one, and hence it is that Bharata refers to it in the singular number:

पूर्वत्र बहुवचनमत्र चैकवचनं प्रयुञ्जानस्यायमाशयः । एक एव तावत् परमार्थतो रसः सूत्रस्थानत्वेन रूपके प्रतिभाति । तस्यैव पुनर्भागदृष्टा विभागः ।

ibid., p. 273.

Abhinavagupta says that therefore Rasa and Nāṭya mean the same thing.¹ In experience also we find that our relish is one undefined state of the form of a repose of the mind, Viśrānti. Bhaṭṭa Narasiṃha, a later commentator on Bhoja's SKĀ, in his exposition of Bhoja's Rasa theory, points out that Rasa as relish, svāda, is one:

अष्टावेव स्थायिन इति कुतः ? तावतामेव स्वादात्मकत्वादिति चेत्, क्रिमेतेष्वनुस्यूत एकः स्वादात्मा ? तर्ह्यनक्षरमिदमुक्तम्—एतेषां कूटस्थ एक एव स्वादात्मा ; एते च तद्विशेषा इति—

‘अत्रे (अतः) सर्वेषां कूटस्था(स्थ) एक एव स्वादात्मा ।’

Mad. MS., MT, 2499, p. 150.

SR, VII. 17.

Kavikarnapūra states the point more elaborately and clearly. He considers a certain blissful state of the mind, which is a quality (guṇa) of the mind established in the sattva-guṇa and completely devoid of any touch of either rajas or tamas, as the one eternal Sthāyin and the one eternal Rasa. This Sthāyin called Ānanda or āsvādāṅkurakanda, 'the root of the sprout of relish', is separately and diversely named according to the different causal conditions, the Vibhāva-s. The difference between this writer and Abhinavagupta and others is that he expressly postulates a Sthāyin also for this one Rasa which they do not in so many words, for, according to them, the question of the Sthāyin does not arise in this state of relish, the two being identical. In fact, even according to Kavikarnapūra, the Rasa is Āsvāda and the Sthāyin also is the same, the only difference being that in the latter, it is still in an undeveloped dormant condition, āṅkura and kanda:

Before the Rājataranṅiṇī of Kalhaṇa is to be mentioned the Antarātmacarita which Bhoja cites in his Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa as a Kāvya inculcating the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa. See my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa (1963), p. 810.

p. 45. To the forty philosophical and religious allegorical plays mentioned here, the Dharmoddharaṇa by Durgeśvara, son of Dharmēśvara Moḍha, recently published in GOS (no. 151, 1966) may be added. Probably extending to five acts, this play presents the Dvāpara age as the hero contending against the Kali, the anti-hero; Dharma, Dāna and other virtues are on the side of the former, and several vices on the side of the latter.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

BEFORE The Number of Rasa-s was published in book-form by the Adyar Library, in 1940, it had appeared serially in the pages of the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras, in the years 1936-37. It was then the first detailed study of the subject and of the Śānta Rasa in particular.

In this, as in my other studies, as Prof. M. Hiriyanna mentioned in the Foreword which he kindly wrote to the first edition, I had drawn my data from unpublished manuscripts as much as from published works, bringing to light and also bringing together all the crucial textual material bearing on the subject and required for its exposition. In the years that had passed, during which the book has been in wide use, not only have some texts been newly published, but I myself have been continuously noting additional data and portions of the book where the treatment could be elaborated.

The present second edition of the book is thus a revised and enlarged one. Besides effecting some improvements in the presentation, I have dealt with some additional ideas like the identity of Ālambana and Sthāyin in the Śānta, have devoted greater attention to some topics like the treatment of Bhakti by Bopadeva and Hemādri, the Māyā and Citra Rasa-s, the varieties of Vipralambha, particularly Śāpa and Karuṇa Vipralambha-s, the Dayā Vīra and the additional Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s, and have also taken into consideration certain additional texts not available formerly.

I am thankful to the Adyar Library and Research Centre and its authorities for bringing out this second edition, and to its staff and to Dr. K. Kunjunni Raja, for assistance in the course of the printing of this work. Dr. S. S. Janaki has also helped in the reading of the proofs.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

RASA, Aucitya and Dhvani form the three great contributions of Sanskrit Alamkāra Śāstra to the subject of literary criticism. Rasa is the very 'soul' (ātman) of poetry and drama. Of this concept of Rasa, one aspect, namely the number of the Rasa-s—whether they are only the eight mentioned by Bharata or are more—is studied in the following pages. The study now and then does necessarily touch more fundamental aspects of the concept of Rasa also.

This study was originally published in the form of articles in the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras. It was suggested to me that I might bring them out in book-form. That they have appeared now in book-form is due to the kindness of Dr. Srinivasa Murti, Director, Adyar Library, to whom my thanks are due for the inclusion of this publication in the Adyar Library Series. I must thank also Dr. C. Kunhan Raja, D. Phil., Reader in Sanskrit, University of Madras, and Curator, Adyar Library.

Thanks are also due to the authorities of the Journal of Oriental Research, Madras, and to the authorities of the University of Madras for permitting this publication.

FOREWORD

I GLADLY respond to the desire of Dr. Raghavan that I should contribute a Foreword to this book. He has been carrying on researches in the field of Sanskrit literary criticism for several years past, and the material which he has brought together here shows how extensive is his acquaintance with the literature on the subject. He draws his data, it will be seen, from unpublished manuscripts as readily as he does from published works. The opinion formed on any aspect of the subject by one who has devoted so much time to its study and whose knowledge of it is so wide is of special value and deserves the careful attention of all scholars.

The particular problem considered here is that of the number of Rasa-s, and its consideration necessarily involves the discussion of many important points relating to their nature and scope. As in the case of other problems investigated by the ancient Indians, we find here also an astounding variety of solutions. While some thinkers have held that there is but one Rasa, others have maintained that the Rasa-s are many, there being a wide divergence of opinion respecting their exact number. The usual view, however, is that there are eight Rasa-s or nine, with the addition of what is termed Śānta:

 बीभत्साद्भुतशान्ताश्च रसाः पूर्वैरुदाहृताः ॥

Although Dr. Raghavan considers all these views more or less in detail, the main part of his discussion is concerned with the admissibility of Śānta as the ninth Rasa. His treatment of the question is quite comprehensive, and he examines it both from the historical and the aesthetic sides. A brief reference to each of them may not be out of place.

Owing to the uncertainty of our knowledge of the early phases of Indian classical literature, it is not possible to say when poets began to portray this Rasa. The ascetic and mystic elements, however, which form its distinctive basis, are very old features of Indian life; and they were highly valued by those who followed the teaching of the Veda as well as by those who did not. So we may assume that the Śānta attitude found expression in literature quite early; and this is corroborated by the works of Āśvaghoṣa even if, on account of its chronological indefiniteness, we leave out of consideration the Mahābhārata, the usual example given of the Śānta Rasa. As regards writers on Poetics, the earliest to recognize it definitely, so far as our knowledge at present goes, was Udbhaṭa. Possibly its recognition by them was even earlier. Bharata's view in the matter is somewhat doubtful, by reason of the unsatisfactory character of the text of the Nāṭyaśāstra as it has come down to us. Some manuscripts of it mention only eight Rasa-s, but others nine. The weight of evidence bearing on the point seems, on the whole, to be on the former side; and Dr. Raghavan adduces several convincing arguments to show that the references to this Rasa in Bharata are all spurious. But it should be added that the Nāṭyaśāstra contains nearly all the essential points necessary for a theoretical formulation of it.

Before we pass on to the aesthetic aspect of the question, it is desirable to distinguish the emotive content or theme of a literary work from the aesthetic sentiment which, according to the prevalent Indian view, its idealized representation evokes in the reader or the spectator. Thus in the case of the Śākuntalam, Duṣyanta's love for Śakuntalā forms the chief theme while the emotion which it awakens in us as we witness the drama enacted is Śṛṅgāra. When we ask whether Śānta can be a Rasa, we mean whether situations in life involving the quietistic sentiment lend themselves to be similarly dealt with in literature. If they do, then Śānta is a Rasa: otherwise, it is not. The practice of great poets like Kālidāsa, which is after all the true touchstone in such matters, shows that Śānta situations can certainly be thus delineated in literary works. In the last act of his play, just alluded to, Kālidāsa describes the tranquillity and holiness of Mārīca's hermitage in a manner which affects us most profoundly. But, however splendidly depicted, the Śānta Rasa occupies only a subordinate place there; and a doubt may therefore arise whether it can be the leading sentiment in a work, i.e. whether it can be portrayed in such a manner that it will impress us at the end as the predominant element in the unity of Rasa-s which, according to the Indian view, every work of art is expected to achieve. Some of the works of Āśvaghoṣa, to whom I have already referred, show that it can be so represented. The Mahābhārata also, at any rate in its present form, illustrates the same truth, as set forth by Ānandavardhana in his masterly way in the last section of his Dhvanyāloka.

Yet there were theorists who denied that the Śānta could be an art emotion. It is hardly necessary to examine their arguments when we have the practice of great poets and the opinion of great art critics to the contrary. But a reference should be made to one of them which appears, at first sight, to possess some force. This argument is that the attitude of mind for which Śānta stands is altogether a rare one, and that its representation in art cannot therefore appeal to more than a very few. The objection, it is obvious, is based on the supposition that the test of true art is in the wideness of its appeal. The advocates of Śānta brush this argument aside usually by saying that such questions are not to be decided by a plebiscite; but, by thus admitting the narrowness of its appeal, they seem to give up their position. Their conclusion that Śānta is a Rasa is irresistible. Indeed, it would have been a strange irony of circumstance if Indians, of all, had excluded it from the sphere of art. The way in which this particular objection is met, however, is not satisfactory. May it be that the contention that the appeal of Śānta is only to a very few is wrong? No unwonted occasion in life—whether it be one of joy or one of sorrow—passes without bringing home to man the supreme desirability of spiritual peace. It means that the need for such peace is fundamental to the human heart; and this conclusion is confirmed by the pure satisfaction which the contemplation, for example, of the images of Buddha in meditative repose brings to so many. If so, the Śānta mood is by no means uncommon; and the Śānta Rasa need not be an exception to the rule that the appeal of art is general. What is uncommon is the capacity in man to capture that mood and cultivate it, so that it may come to prevail over all other moods; but this deficiency does not matter so far as art is concerned for it has the power, of itself, to enable him to attain, albeit only for a while, the peace of spirit which, as an old Indian critic has observed, even a Yogin has to strain himself long to win.

Dr. Raghavan makes a valuable contribution to the study not merely of Sanskrit literary criticism but of Indian Aesthetics as a whole, for the conception of Rasa, though it is here dealt with chiefly in its relation to poetry, is general and furnishes the criterion by which the worth of all forms of fine art may be judged. I have no doubt that the book will be read and appreciated very widely.

SYNOPSIS

I

THE ADVENT OF ŚĀNTA

BHARATA mentions only eight Rasa-s and Kālidāsa knows only eight Rasa-s. Daṇḍin describes and illustrates only eight Rasa-s (p. 1). Bharata says that Śṛṅgāra, etc. are the eight Rasa-s mentioned by Brahman; the significance of the mention of Brahman here (p. 2). The names Brahmā, Sadāśiva, Bharata and Taṇḍu in the history of Nāṭya literature (pp. 2-5). The question whether Taṇḍu and Nandikeśvara are identical (pp. 5-8). Rājaśekhara's reference to Nandikeśvara as the first exponent of Rasa-s and its explanation (pp. 8-9). Vāsuki, the first to speak of the Śānta Rasa according to Śāradātanaya (pp. 11-12). Kohala and Śānta (p. 12). The questions which arise regarding the Śānta Rasa (pp. 13-14).

II

THE CONTROVERSY OVER ŚĀNTA

Bharata does not mention the Śānta Rasa; textual evidences of this; the Śānta texts in Bharata are interpolations (pp. 15-16). But ideas related to Śānta are present in Bharata's accepted text; passages in Bharata recognizing the quietistic element (pp. 16-20). The real nature of drama according to Bharata is secular as Abhinavagupta also explains in his commentary (p. 21). The advent of Śānta stage by stage; the view of the Candrikā on the Dhvanyāloka that Śānta can only be a subsidiary motif (pp. 21-2).

Probably the Buddhists and the Jains were responsible for making Śānta the ninth Rasa. The Saundara-nanda-kāvya, the Śāriputraprakaraṇa and the fragment of an allegorical drama of Aśvaghoṣa. The Jain Anuyoga-dvāra-sūtra of the fifth cent. A.D. mentions the Śānta Rasa. The probable theorist who may have introduced the Śānta Rasa: Rāhula? Śrīharṣa, the Vārttikakāra? It is likely that it was the play Nāgānanda which was responsible for starting the discussion on Śānta (pp. 23-5).

The objections to Śānta becoming a Rasa and the replies to those objections (pp. 25-32). Literature depicting Śānta, Kāvya-s and Nāṭaka-s (pp. 32-46).

The writers who accept Śānta and those who reject it (pp. 47-54). The view that it is admissible in Kāvya but not in drama (p. 54). The view that Śānta is a Rasa but can be included in one of the eight old Rasa-s—the Antarbhāva-vāda (pp. 54-6).

The Ālambana-vibhāva, the Uddīpana-vibhāva, Daivata, Varṇa, Vṛtti and Guṇa of Śānta. Haripāla's Brāhmī-vṛtti for his Brāhma Rasa, the counterpart of the Śānta Rasa (pp. 56-60).

III

SOME PECULIAR AND ORIGINAL VIEWS ON ŚĀNTA

The peculiar and original view on Śānta in the (1) Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa, (2) Samgītasudhākara of Haripāladeva, (3) Prapañcahṛdaya and (4) Anuyogadvāra-sūtra (Jain) (pp. 61-7).

IV

THE STHĀYIN OF ŚĀNTA

Discussion of the several Sthāyi-bhāva-s proposed for the Śānta Rasa: Śama, Samyagjñāna, Tṛṣṇākṣaya-sukha, Sarva-cittavṛtti-prasāma, Nirviśeṣa-cittavṛtti, Dhṛti, Nirveda, Utsāha, Jugupsā, Rati; any one of the remaining Sthāyin-s; all the eight Sthāyin-s together; and Ātman or Ātmajñāna or Tattvajñāna.

The question of Ālambana and Sthāyin being the same in Śānta.

Śānta, the basis of all Rasa-s (pp. 68-102).

V

The text of the Abhinavabhāratī on the Śānta Rasa (corrected) (pp. 103-17).

VI

OTHER RASA-S

Preyas and Vātsalya; their Sthāyin-s; controversy over these Rasa-s (pp. 118-22).

Sneha, Śraddhā, Laulya, Mṛgayā, Akṣa and other Rasa-s (pp. 122-5). Lollaṭa's view as cited in the Abhinavabhāratī that Rasa-s are innumerable, Rasatva for all Vyabhicārin-s and even Sāttvika-s—the view of Rudraṭa and Namisādhū. Pratihārendurāja's acceptance of this view. The restriction of Rasatva to eight or nine is almost 'conventional'. The mention of the possibility of additional Rasa-s—Laulya, Sneha, Vyāsana, Duḥkha and Sukha, in the Nāṭyadarpaṇa. Vyabhicāritva and Sthāyitva are names of stages, rather than of a fixed set of Bhāva-s (pp. 125-31).

Bhoja's view of Rasa in the Sarasvatikanṭhābharaṇa and the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa. His Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s; his acceptance of Śānta and Preyas. These four Rasa-s are accepted for the four types of hero: Udātta, Uddhata, Lalita and Śānta. His acceptance of Rudraṭa's position; not only Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s, but many other states like Svātantrya and Pāravaśya are considered as Rasa-s by Bhoja. The largest number of Rasa-s to be seen in Bhoja. The accommodation of this view in his main theory of one Ahaṃkāra Rasa. Bhoja's critique of the old view that only a few, Rati, etc. are Sthāyin-s (pp. 131-7).

A state of chaos in the world of Rasa, recorded by Abhinavagupta in his Locana (pp. 137-8).

Criticism of the above view; clear statement of the theory of Sthāyibhāva and Rasa, according to Bharata and Abhinavagupta (pp. 138-40). Jagannātha Paṇḍita proposing to adhere to Bharata to avoid a complete overhauling of the system (pp. 140-1).

Bhakti and Madhura Rasa-s; Bopadeva and Hemādri on Bhakti; the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal (pp. 141-6); Madhusūdana Sarasvatī on Bhakti Rasa (pp. 146-53).

THE NUMBER OF RASA-S

I

For long, the Rasa-s were only eight in number. The text of the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata originally spoke only of eight Rasa-s. For a long time, the poets also were speaking only of eight Rasa-s. Kālidāsa says in his Vikramorvaśīya:

मुनिना भरतेन यः प्रयोगो भवतीष्टष्टरसाश्रयो नियुक्तः ।

ललिताभिनयं तमद्य भर्ता मरुतां द्रष्टुमनाः सलोकपालः ॥ II. 18.

Vararuci's Ubhayābhisārikā has occasion to mention Rasa-s and their number. The context is a dramatic contest. The Viṭa praises one of the courtesans who is going to enact 'Purandaravijaya' in the temple of Indra at Kusumapura. The Rasa-s are here mentioned as eight in number:

यस्यास्तावत् प्रथमं रूपश्रीनवयौवनद्युतिकान्त्यादीनां गुणानां संपत्,
चतुर्विधाभिनयसिद्धिः, द्वात्रिंशद्विधो हस्तप्रचारः, अष्टादशविधं निरीक्षणम्,
षट् स्थानानि, गतिद्वयम् (-त्रयम्), अष्टौ रसाः, त्रयो गीतवादित्रादिलयाः,
इत्येवमादीनि नृत्ताङ्गानि त्वदाश्रयेणालंकृतानि ।

Caturbhāṇī, Madras, 1922, p. 13.

On the side of the theorists, the writers on Poetics, the Rasa-s were only eight up to the time of Daṇḍin who briefly describes and illustrates only the eight Rasa-s. Naturally, we suppose that Bhāmaha also knew only eight Rasa-s. These eight Rasa-s are thus given by Bharata:

शृङ्गार-हास्य-करुण-रौद्र-वीर-भयानकाः ।
 बीभत्साद्भुतसंज्ञौ चेत्यष्टौ नाट्ये रसाः स्मृताः ।
 एते ह्यष्टौ रसाः प्रोक्ता द्रुहिणेन महात्मना ॥

NS., KM ed., VI. 15-16.

And their Sthāyin-s are thus given:

रतिर्हासश्च शोकश्च क्रोधोत्साहौ भयं तथा ।

जुगुप्सा विस्मयश्चेति स्थायिभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ ibid., VI. 17.

We are unable to fix the exact significance of the record here made by Bharata that these are the eight Rasa-s expounded by the great Brahman. The mention of Brahman may after all refer only to the legendary background of the Nāṭya-śāstra. The very first verse says that almost the first exponent of the Nāṭya-śāstra is Brahman:

नाट्यशास्त्रं प्रवक्ष्यामि ब्रह्मणा यदुदाहृतम् । I. 1.

And this, Brahman himself learnt from Śiva. This legend is settled in later times and is mentioned by all writers. How far is this based on evidences within the Nāṭya-śāstra itself?

To begin with, sage Bharata says that Brahman himself contemplated and created out of the four Veda-s, the fifth Veda called the Nāṭya-veda (I. 16-19). Śiva is mentioned in the first chapter, for the first time, with reference to the Kaiśikī Vṛtti. Brahman says that the beautiful, graceful and delicate Kaiśikī cannot be properly presented by male actors, that it can be properly interpreted only by actresses and that he has seen it depicted by only one of the male sex, namely God Śiva (I. 45). We hear of Śiva again only in chapter 4. The first drama 'Asuravijaya' or 'Amṛtamathana' ¹ was enacted before an audience of Deva-s and Asura-s in Deva-loka during the Indradhvaja festival (I. 54-7).

तदन्तेऽनुकृतिर्वद्धा यथा दैत्याः सुरैर्जिताः ।

After this 'Samavakāra', the first drama to be staged, was finished, Brahman one day took Bharata and his troupe to Kailāsa to give a performance before God Śiva. This 'Samavakāra', and a Dima called 'Tripuradāha', one of Śiva's own exploits, were staged there (IV. 5-10). At the conclusion of the staging of the plays, Śiva praised Brahman and the actors and told them that the beautiful and varied Karaṇa-s and Aṅgahāra-s of the Tāṇḍava dance which He himself did every evening might be introduced into the Pūrvaraṅga of their drama, so that their plain (Śuddha) Pūrvaraṅga might become a Citra-pūrvaraṅga (IV. 11-15). He called upon one of his Gaṇa-s, Taṇḍu, to teach Bharata the Aṅgahāra-s and Karaṇa-s of Tāṇḍava (IV. 17-18). Thus Śiva is seen as the God of dance proper, while Brahman himself created drama and won Śiva's appreciation for his creation of this art. Bharata is the first artist whom Brahman chose for the exposition of the art that he created. Brahman's creation of the art of drama referred to all parts of it—the text of the drama, the acting of it, the music that supported the performance and finally the Rasa which the above three evoked in the hearts of the audience. This is the meaning of the verse:

जग्राह पाठ्यमृग्वेदात् सामभ्यो गीतमेव च ।

यजुर्वेदादभिनयान् रसानाथर्वणादपि ॥

The story given above points to the historical fact that dance existed first and that drama was then created. Taṇḍu signifies the link between the two. The gods of the two, dance and drama, are Śiva and Brahman. So it is that Bharata, who represents the composite art of dance-drama, says at the beginning:

प्रणम्य शिरसा देवौ पितामहमहेश्वरौ ।

and Abhinavagupta adds here, in his commentary:

एको (ब्रह्मा) विजिगीषुर्नाट्यप्रवर्तयितेति देवः । भगवांस्तु
आनन्दनिर्भरतया क्रीडाशीलः संध्यादौ नृत्यतीति नाट्ये तदुपस्कारिणि
च नृत्ते तदुपज्ञं प्रवृत्तिरिति तावेवान्न अधिदैवतं गुरु चेति नमस्कार्यौ ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, 1st ed., vol. I, p. 2.

Thus Śiva's contribution is dance which served to beautify drama—tadupaskāriṇi ca nṛtte. Brahman's contribution itself was self-sufficient for drama. He spoke of Text, Action, Music and Rasa. It is to this part of the drama of Brahman that Bharata refers in chapter 6, when he says that these are the eight Rasa-s spoken of by Brahman.

एते ह्यष्टौ रसाः प्रोक्ता द्रुहिणेन महात्मना ।

It is on this text that Śārādātanaya bases himself when he says that, according to Brahman, the Rasa-s are only eight, and the ninth, the Śānta, is impossible.

..... तस्माच्छान्तस्य नोद्भवः ।

तस्मान्नाट्यरसा अष्टाविति पद्मश्रुवो मतम् ॥

Bhā. Pra., GOS, ch. II, pp. 46-7.

These bits of legend have to be connected with some facts available to us, namely that there were really large texts on Nāṭya known as works of Śiva or Sadāśiva and Brahman. Abhinavagupta himself refers to the three authorities, Sadāśiva, Brahman and Bharata.

एतेन सदाशिव-ब्रह्म-भरतमतत्रयविवेचनेन ब्रह्मतसारताप्रतिपाद-नाय etc. Abhi. Bhā., GOS, vol. I, p. 8.

The upshot of the discussion here gives the noteworthy fact that, of the three works the Sadāśiva-bharata, the Brahma-bharata and Bharata's Nāṭya-śāstra, the Brahma-bharata is the best and most important, according to some. The Daśarūpakākārikā-s, IV. 38 and 39, proving Rasa to be Sāmājikāśraya, i.e. as something existing in the hearts of the spectators, are quoted and attributed to Sadāśiva by Śāradātanaya (Bhā. Pra., VI, p. 152). This ascription does not seem to be reliable. The argumentative style of the Kārikā-s points to a later author. Whether this particular ascription be true or not, it can be accepted that old works in the name of Sadāśiva and Brahman existed. Though from the internal evidence of the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata we know of Śiva as having contributed dance only, there may be a Sadāśiva-bharata dealing with all departments of Nāṭya. It is also likely that this Sadāśiva-bharata is of special importance for its chapters on dance, on Tāṇḍava, its Karaṇa-s and Aṅgahāra-s.

Similarly Tāṇḍu, who, in the Nāṭya-śāstra, simply passes the Tāṇḍava from Śiva to Bharata, may have some old Nāṭya work to his credit. There is some difficulty in understanding the name Tāṇḍu. In chapter 1 of the Nāṭya-śāstra, we hear of a Tāṇḍu who is one of the hundred sons of Bharata (I. 26). From chapter 6, we know him as belonging to Śiva's retinue. In chapter I. 26, the text has a variant (GOS, I, p. 18, fn.) Tāṇḍya, and in chapter IV. 17 and 18, we have the variant Tāṇḍin (GOS, I, p. 19, fn.). Abhinavagupta says that the reading tāṇḍu is appropriate, in view of that word's suitability to the derivation of the word tāṇḍava.

सर्वत्र पाठे तण्डुशब्द एव युक्तः, ताण्डवशब्दव्युत्पत्तिवशात् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, vol. I, p. 90.

It looks as if 'Taṇḍu' was created out of the word tāṇḍava. Surely, this Tāṇḍava was performed by Śiva before Taṇḍu who, on Śiva's bidding, taught it to Bharata. Therefore, the name Tāṇḍava could not have been the name given to the dance subsequent to Taṇḍu imparting it to Bharata.¹ In this connection, the text of Abhinavagupta's commentary seems to say that this Taṇḍu is none else than Nandin, the chief attendant of Śiva. We find in M. R. Kavi's ed., vol. I, p. 90:

तण्डुमुनिशब्दौ (नन्दिभर)तयोरपरनामनी ।

But in the MS. of the Abhinavabhāratī in the Madras Government Oriental MSS. Library, we find the passage running thus:

तण्डुमुनिशब्दौ तस्योरेव (?) नामनि (नी) । Vol. I, p. 68.

and it is rather difficult to reconstruct or understand this text. There does not seem to be unanimity among writers regarding the identity of Taṇḍu and Nandin. The Śabdakalpadruma says that, according to Halāyudha, Taṇḍu is a door-keeper of Śiva, śivadvārapālaviśeṣa. The Vācaspatya says the same thing and adds that it is a name of Nandikeśvara:

शिवद्वारपालविशेषे नन्दिकेश्वरे । नन्दी भृङ्गिरितिस्तण्डुः ।

¹ The explanation of Tāṇḍava by Taṇḍu is not the only explanation. Bhānujī and Kṣīrasvāmin, in their commentaries on the Amarakośa (Nāṭyavarga, v. 10) give Tāṇḍava as being so called after its exponent, Taṇḍu. Bharatamallika (comm. on Amarā) says that the sage Tāṇḍa (not Nandikeśvara, a Śivagaṇa) promulgated the Śāstra which came to be called after him 'Tāṇḍi' (neuter); and

In the Śabdakalpadruma, we find that according to the Trikāṇḍaśeṣa, the other names of Nandikeśvara are Nandin, Śālaṅkāyana and Tāṇḍavatālika, and that according to Hemacandra, the other names are Nandin and Taṇḍu. Keśava's Kalpādrukośa (GOS ed., p. 392, vv. 117-18) gives Nandin, Śālaṅkāyana, Tāṇḍavatālika, Taṇḍu, Kelikila and Kūṣmāṇḍaka as the other names of Nandikeśvara. If Taṇḍu is a name of Nandikeśvara, he would be both the time-keeper for Śiva's Tāṇḍava (tāṇḍava-tālika) and the promulgator of the Tāṇḍava (taṇḍunā proktaṃ tāṇḍavam). But, according to Sarvānanda and Bharatamallika, the person who is responsible for the Śāstra through which Tāṇḍava got its name, is a sage (muni) named Tāṇḍa or Tāṇḍya. And Taṇḍu whom Śiva asked to teach the Tāṇḍava to Bharata may not be Nandikeśvara but may be some other Gaṇa of Śiva. Ratnākara's Haraviṇjaya, which is a storehouse of information for the Nāṭya-researcher, mentions Nandīśa and Taṇḍu as two different persons and the commentator, Rājānaka Alaka, adds that Taṇḍu is one of the Pramatha-gaṇa-s of Śiva.

नन्दीशनिर्दयकराहतपुष्करेषु मन्द्रं ध्वनत्सु मुरजेषु विभज्य तण्डुः ।

आसारितेषु परिकल्पितसप्तभेदपर्याप्तशोभमथ तण्डवमभ्यगायत् ॥

NSP ed., II. 20.

from this Tāṇḍi is Tāṇḍava derived. 'तण्डेन कृतं तण्डि, नृत्यशास्त्रम्, तदस्यास्तीति भरतः (अमरटीकायाम्) ।' See the Śabdakalpadruma and the Vācaspathya on Tāṇḍava. Sarvānanda's Tikāsarvasva, TSS ed., pt. 1, p. 41. तण्डयेन मुनिना प्रोक्तं . . . तण्डि नृत्यशास्त्रम् । तदस्यास्तीति तण्डवम् । To these derivations, Subhūticandra adds 'तण्डते (तण्ड्यते) भूरनेनेति तण्डवम् ।' Tāṇḍava is so called because, being a forceful dance (Uddhata), the ground is heavily stamped upon (from the root taḍ). Vidyāvinoda Nārāyaṇa gives all these explanations. Rāyamukuṭa gives Sarvānanda's and Svāmin's explanation and adds: तडिधातोः तण्डवमिति तु कौमुदी ।

From this it would appear that Nandin is the drummer and Taṇḍu the singer of the libretto for Śiva's dance. Abhinavagupta gives an extract from Kohala also on p. 182 (GOS, vol. I) having some bearing on Taṇḍu and Tāṇḍava.

The name Nandin is found twice in the Nāṭya-śāstra (IV. 260 and 261) in connection with the Piṇḍi-bandha-s. More than one work on Nāṭya has come down to us as the work of Nandikeśvara. Rājaśekhara ascribes the first treatment of Rasa to Nandikeśvara and the first treatment of drama to Bharata.

रूपकरूपणीयं भरतः, रसाधिकारिकं नन्दिकेश्वरः ।

The chief ground on which Rājaśekhara ascribes the first treatment of Rasa to Nandikeśvara is the record made by Vātsyāyana in his Kāma-sūtra-s, I. 1-8, that Nandikeśvara is the first author on Kāma. Love may be taken to be indicative of the other Rasa-s and further, it is the most important of the emotions which form the material for literature. Śāradātanaya relates a Rasa-legend in chapter 3 of his Bhāvaṇṇakāśa, in which Nandin figures, and which legend he ascribes to Vyāsa—vyāsaṃproktena mārgeṇa kathayāmi yathārthataḥ. We do not yet know of a work of Vyāsa on Nāṭya. The legend given in the Bhāvaprakāśa is this: Brahman created the worlds at Śiva's bidding and then contemplated upon the past and saw with his mind's eye the doings of Śiva. Nandikeśvara appeared before Brahman at that time and taught him Nāṭya and asked him to teach the art to the Bharata-s, i.e. actors. Brahman created the art of representation, drama, with a past story of Śiva called Tripuradāha, a Ḍima. The Bharata-s staged this Tripuradāha and while Brahman was witnessing it, there came forth from his four faces four Vṛtti-s with the four Rasa-s : Śṛṅgāra, Vīra, Raudra and Bībhatsa. Concluding this story of the origin of Rasa, Śāradātanaya says:

व्यक्ता मुखेभ्यश्चोत्पन्ना इत्युचुः शंकरादयः ।

The Śaṃkara mentioned here is another puzzle.¹ Śāradātanaya brings Nārada also into the story and says that Nārada expounded this account of the origin of Rasa to Bharata, the sage (ch. 3, p. 58). The two Guru-paramparā-s found here are 'Śiva—Nandin—Brahman—the Bharata-s' and 'Nārada—Bharata, the sage'. In chapter 10, Śāradātanaya relates another story of how Nāṭya came to earth from heaven, in which also the former Guru-paramparā is given. The actors, the Bharata-s, are sent to this world and they write treatises on the art.

¹ Śaṃkara may mean Śiva himself and this would mean then that the Sadāśiva-bharata is the source of this story. A Śaṃkara is cited in Pārśvadeva's Samgītasamayāsāra, TSS ed., p. 42:

सकलं निष्कलं चेति वाद्यमेतत् द्विधा भवेत् ।
कथितं शंकरेणैव एकतन्त्रीसमाश्रयम् ॥

नाट्यवेदाच्च भरताः सारमुद्धृत्य सर्वतः ।
 संग्रहं सुप्रयोगार्हं मनुना प्रार्थिता व्यधुः ॥
 एकं द्वादशसाहस्रैः श्लोकैरेकं तदर्धतः ।
 षड्भिः श्लोकसहस्रैर्यो नाट्यवेदस्य संग्रहः ॥

Bhā. Pra., GOS, p. 287.

The Bharata-s wrote two works, one in 12,000 verses and another in 6,000 verses. The basis of these two is the Nāṭya-veda which is perhaps double the extent of the first of these two. The second work in 6,000 verses is the present Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata and the Daśarūpakāvaloka quotes it by the name Ṣaṭsahasrī:

षट्सहस्रीकृताप्युक्तम्—‘एभ्यश्च सामान्यगुणयोगेन रसा निष्पद्यन्ते’
 इति ।¹

Bahurūpamiśra has quoted the former work in 12,000 verses, the Dvādaśasāhasrī, in his gloss on the Daśarūpaka.² M. R. Kavi quotes the Yāmalāṣṭakatantra in the preface to his edition of the Nāṭya-śāstra (vol. I, p. 6, fn. 1), according to which the Nāṭya-veda, which Śārādātanaya mentions as the basis of the two abridgements, is a work in 36,000 verses. Which of these two, the Nāṭya-veda and the Dvādaśasāhasrī, is the work of Śiva and which of Brahman, cannot be said easily. The latter may be the Brahma-bharata referred to by Abhinavagupta. What these works say on Rasa, we are not in a position to know.

The only work we have is the Ṣaṭsahasrī of Bharata, the Nāṭya-śāstra which says that, according to Brahman, the Rasa-s are eight. Śāradātanaya recasts the passage in this text into the form of a later controversial text, and makes Padmabhū (Brahman) refute the Śānta and accept only eight Rasa-s. We can conjecture safely that both the Sadāśiva-bharata and the Brahma-bharata knew only eight Rasa-s.

Was there any old work which expounded nine Rasa-s? When did the Śānta first make its appearance? Just after giving the above-noticed view of Padmabhū (Brahman) that the Rasa-s are only eight, Śāradātanaya gives another account which he attributes to Vāsuki. There seems to be, from the following verse, an old work in which Vāsuki imparts the Nāṭya-śāstra to Nārada.

उत्पत्तिस्तु रसानां या पुरा वासुकिनोदिता ।

नारदस्योच्यते सैषा प्रकारान्तरकल्पिता ॥ Bhā. Pra., II, p. 47.

The Śānta Rasa is accepted in this account.

रजस्तमोविहीनात्तु सत्त्वावस्थात् सचित्ततः ।

मनागस्पृष्टबाह्यार्थात् शान्तो रस इतीरितः ॥ ibid., II, p. 48.

Who is this Vāsuki? We already know of two serpents among the teachers of music (Samgītācārya-s), Kambala and Aśvatara, and we must add to them this teacher of dance (Nāṭyācārya), Vāsuki. Śāradātanaya quotes Vāsuki earlier also (pp. 36-7) regarding the rise of Rasa from Bhāva-s.

नानाद्रव्यौषधैः पाकैः व्यञ्जनं भाव्यते यथा ।

एवं भावा भावयन्ति रसानभिनयैः सह ।

इति वासुकिनाप्युक्तो भावेभ्यो रससंभवः ॥

This verse is, as pointed out by the editor of the Bhāvaprakāśa, found in the Nāṭya-śāstra of Bharata, quoted along with four other verses, with the words: bhavanti cātra ślokāḥ.¹ If we are to rely on Śāradātanaya, we have to suppose that the Rasa chapters in Bharata are based on the texts of Vāsuki and others and that this Vāsuki accepted a ninth Rasa, namely the Śānta. Why then does Bharata's text not mention the Śānta? If Bharata did not approve of Śānta being a Rasa, he should have refuted it, citing Vāsuki's position. When no such discussion is seen in Bharata's Nāṭya-sāstra, we have to conclude that Śāradātanaya has only increased the confusion here, as on other topics also.

If we are to attach any weight to the statement of another late writer Dharmasūri, author of the Sāhityaratnākara, we have to suppose that Kohala is, like Vāsuki, another old writer who accepted the Śānta Rasa. He says regarding the Sthāyin of Śānta:

कोहलस्तु उस्ताहो वा निर्वेदो वा शमो वा अस्य स्थायीत्युवाच ।²

If Kohala had accepted Śānta, Abhinavagupta and other champions of Śānta would have quoted him. But it is also likely that a late work falsely ascribed to Kohala speaks of the Śānta, and Dharmasūri bases his statement on such a pseudo-Kohala work.

The Nāṭya-sāstra of Bharata itself recognized only eight Rasa-s. Subsequently, when the Śānta was accepted by

¹ Thus, there are Anuṣṭubh and Āryā verses quoted by Bharata. These are called Ānuvaṃśya verses, handed down as basic and authoritative texts on Nāṭya written by other writers. The definite authorship of these Anuṣṭubh-s and Āryā-s is not known. Abhinavagupta says while commenting on one set of such Ānuvaṃśya Āryā-s, on p. 328: ता एता ह्यार्याः एकप्रघट्टकतया पूर्वाचार्यैः लक्षणत्वेन पठिताः । मुनिना तु सुखसंग्रहाय यथास्थानं निवेशिताः ।

² See JOR, Madras, vol. 5, p. 29.

writers, the text of the NS underwent some change and was read thus as indicated by Abhinavagupta:

शृङ्गारहास्यकरुणाः रौद्रवीरभयानकाः ।

बीभत्साद्भुतशान्ताश्च नव नाट्ये रसाः स्मृताः ॥ VI. 16.

रतिर्हासश्च शोकश्च क्रोधोत्साहौ भयं तथा ।

जुगुप्साविस्मयशमाः स्थायिभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ IV. 18.

शान्तापलापिनस्त्वत्र अष्टाविति पठन्ति । ibid.

तत्र शान्तस्य स्थायी 'विस्मयशमाः' इति कैश्चित् पठितः । ibid.

Udbhata recognizes the Śānta as can be seen from his Kāvyalāmṛkāsārasaṃgraha. He is thus the first commentator on the NS and the first Ālāmṛkārika now known to have definitely begun to speak of Rasa-s as nine in number. He may therefore have made the necessary alteration in the text of the Nāṭyaśāstra as shown above and as pointed out by Abhinavagupta.

Regarding this subject of Śānta Rasa then, the following questions arise:

(i) Did Bharata recognize it? What are the arguments of those who hold that Bharata recognized it? What is the real position of Bharata in respect of Śānta?

(ii) Who is the first writer to introduce the Śānta Rasa? What was that condition in the world of letters that led to the postulation of Śānta?

(iii) Independent of Bharata accepting it or not, what is Śānta? Can it be a Rasa? What are the arguments of the opponents of Śānta?

(iv) What is the argument of those who not only accept but praise the Śānta as the greatest Rasa? Who are these writers? What are the literary compositions that have proved the possibility of the Śānta Rasa?

(v) Who are those that unable to find fault with Śānta, make a compromise, deny it in Nāṭya and accept it in Kāvya only? What are their arguments and how are they met?

(vi) Who are the writers that do not accept the Śānta anywhere?

(vii) What is the Sthāyin of Śānta?

These questions will be dealt with now.

BHARATA certainly mentions only eight Rasa-s.¹ He does not give Śānta as the ninth Rasa. The texts on Śānta in certain recensions of Bharata's Nāṭya-śāstra must have been interpolated by advocates of Śānta. Abhinavagupta once argues the cause of Śānta on the basis of these Śānta texts available in certain recensions but he advocates its cause more vigorously earlier, quite independent of these Śānta texts in Bharata. Abhinavagupta even gives various arguments to show why Bharata did not speak of it at all. Further, the advocates of Śānta who point out Nirveda or Dhṛti or one of the other Vyabhicārin-s already mentioned by Bharata as the Sthāyin of Śānta do so only because they feel that Śānta, its Sthāyin, etc. are not given in Bharata; hence they resort to the Dehalīdīpa-nyāya, Māṅgalya-amāṅgalya, etc. to read the Śānta Rasa into the text of Bharata. How they do this is discussed in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta below. Again, if Ānandavardhana who speaks of Śānta had known the Śānta texts of Bharata and had believed in them as genuine parts of Bharata, he would have quoted them in his advocacy of Śānta in the third chapter of his Dhvanyāloka. Ānandavardhana advocates Śānta on his own grounds and holds as its Sthāyin neither Nirveda with all its trifling supports, nor Śama which is given as its Sthāyin in the interpolated Śānta text in Bharata; Ānandavardhana holds as its Sthāyin 'that happiness which is the annihilation of all desires', tr̥ṣṇākṣayasukha.

तृष्णानां विषयाणां यः क्षयः सर्वतोनिवृत्तिरूपो निरोधः, तदेव सुखम् ।
Abhinavagupta's Locana, KM ed., 1928, pp. 176-7.

All the writers who refute Śānta are of the opinion that Bharata's text does not know the Śānta Rasa. Further, Bharata gives Laya, Svāra, Guṇa, Alāṃkāra, Vṛtti, Vṛtta, etc. for the eight Rasa-s only in the several sections of his work; Śānta is not mentioned here anywhere. This is part of the objection raised against Śānta by its critics. They say, Bharata has related music and Rasa-s and has mentioned the Jātyaṃśa-s suggestive of the several Rasa-s but does not mention the Śānta here (See NS, XXIX. 1-4.). We find in the Abhinavabhāratī:

अनेनैव चाशयेन न शान्ते ऋश्चन मुनिना जात्यंशको विनियोक्ष्यते ।
तेन जात्यंशकविनियोगाभावात् असत्त्वमिति प्रत्युक्तम् । GOS, I, p. 339.

Later in NS, XVIII. 83-5 (GOS. ed., II, 1934, p. 443) in the description of the type of drama called Ḍima, Bharata's text says that with the exception of Śṛṅgāra and Hāsyā, a Ḍima shall have six Rasa-s: ṣaḍ-rasalakṣaṇayuktaḥ . . . śṛṅgārahāsyavarjam. Taking the obvious meaning of this, the critics of Śānta say that this is another express evidence of Bharata having in mind only eight Rasa-s. Abhinavagupta first argues for Śānta not on the basis of Bharata's mention of it, but on the basis of his silence on the subject which Abhinavagupta makes out as more eloquent. This will be explained later. Suffice to point out here that express mention of Śānta is not found in Bharata.

If this is accepted, we can trace the way by which Śānta slowly came to be accepted as a Rasa. We can even explore the possibilities of finding some aspects of Śānta in Bharata's accepted text. Bharata, it must be borne in mind, handles the whole world and analyses human psychology to a great extent and it will be strange if he is to be entirely innocent of that part of human activity which is the sphere of the Śānta Rasa. The absence of Śānta in theory does not, however, mean the absence of poetry or drama with the quietistic motif. To suppose so would be as foolish as to think that before Rasa-dhvani was formulated as the soul of poetry, no great poetry existed. As Ānandavardhana points out, the Rasa of the great epic, the Mahābhārata, is Śānta. The Ṛṣi, the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa, the third and the fourth Āśrama-s of Vānaprastha and the Saṁnyāsa—these were already parts and sublime parts of Kāvya-s such as the Raghuvamśa and Nāṭaka-s such as the Śākuntala. In the more ancient scheme, Dharma itself, classified as Pravṛtti and Nivṛtti, comprehended all spiritual and religious activity. Bharata, himself a sage, gave the Nāṭya-śāstra to an assemblage of sages. Bharata, therefore, could hardly have lost sight of the Ṛṣi-s, the forests, tapas, etc. As a matter of fact, as will be shown below, Bharata does mention aspects of this Śānta Rasa and its attendant conditions.

An emotion is recognized as Rasa if it is a sufficiently permanent major instinct of man, if it is capable of being delineated and developed to its climax with its attendant and accessory feelings and if there are men of that temperament to feel imaginative emotional sympathy at the presentation of that Rasa. Thus are Śṛṅgāra and the other seven Rasa-s. So, if Bharata says that drama is of varied nature in accordance with the varied nature of the world on the one hand and of the spectators on the other, if he says that one drama predominantly develops one Rasa whose appeal is only to those whose hearts are attuned to it and if he says that a certain drama may have its theme or purpose in Śānta, it certainly means that Bharata has landed, though unconsciously, on the Śānta Rasa. Bharata says—and these are surely genuine parts of the text:

कचिद्धर्मः कचित् क्रीडा कचिदर्थः क्वचिच्छमः । I. 106.

दुःखार्तानां श्रमार्तानां शोकार्तानां तपस्विनाम् ।

विश्रान्तिजननं काले नाट्यमेतद्विष्यति ॥ I. 115.

ब्रह्मर्षीणां च विज्ञेयं नाट्यं वृत्तान्तदर्शनम् । I. 121.

The first given passage is referred to by Abhinavagupta also in connection with the discussion on the admissibility of Śānta as a Rasa and by drawing attention to this bit, kvacic chamaḥ, Abhinavagupta asks whether Bharata did not recognize the quietistic element also as part of dramatic presentation:

प्रतीयत एवेति मुनिनाप्यङ्गीक्रियत एव 'क्वचिच्छमः' इत्यादि
चदता । Abhinavagupta, Locana, p. 177.

Another instance of Bharata's awareness of the element of Śānta is pointed out by Abhinavagupta. It is similar to the second passage extracted above. It refers to such spectators as are bereft of life's passions—Vītarāga-s—to whom only dramas of a nature in harmony with theirs and dramas depicting the Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa can have any appeal. While pointing out in chapter 27 that the very life of drama is its fusion with the audience and that certain hearts can respond only to certain themes, Bharata says:

तुष्यन्ति तरुणाः कामे विदग्धाः समयाश्रिते ।

अर्थेऽर्थपराश्चैव मोक्षेष्वथ विरागिणः ॥

XXVII. 59, Kasi ed.

Says Abhinavagupta in regard to this passage:

हृदयसंवादोऽपि तथाविधतत्त्वज्ञानबीजसंस्कारभावितानां भवत्येव,
यद्वक्ष्यति 'मोक्षे चापि विरागिणः' इति । GOS, I, p. 340.

Further, Bharata speaks of a kāma or desire for each Puru-ṣārtha in chapter 24 and mentions here the variety called Mokṣa-kāma. What does this mean?

धर्मकामोऽर्थकामश्च मोक्षकामस्तथैव च ।

स्त्रीपुंसयोस्तु संयोगो यः, कामः स तु संस्मृतः ॥ XXIV. 91.

The Śānta only is the Rasa of Mokṣa-kāma. Compare the Mahābhārata, Āśvamedhikaparvan, chapter XIII. 16, where
Kāma says of himself:

यो मां प्रयतते हन्तुं मोक्षमास्थाय पण्डितः ।

तस्य मोक्षरतिस्थस्य नृत्यामि च हसामि च ॥

Again, what does Bharata mean by giving great scope for Dharma as an important theme handled in drama, by saying that drama is dharmya, by mentioning Dharma as the purpose of some dramas, kvacid dharmah, by speaking of Dharma-Śṛṅgāra and by pointing out that the old, the learned and the experienced respond to such dramas as are based on the Dharmākhyānapurāṇa which comes under the vibhāvānubhāva,
the causal and ensuant conditions, of the Śānta?

धर्माख्यानपुराणेषु वृद्धास्तुप्यन्ति नित्यशः । XXVII. 61.

While describing Nirveda ¹ or despondency, Bharata speaks of one kind of it which is born of Tattvajñāna, awareness of truth; giving the causes of Glāni or languor, he speaks of Tapo-niyama, penance and austerity; defining Dhṛti ² or fortitude, Bharata gives Vijñāna, Śruti, Śaucācāra and Guru-bhakti—wisdom, learning, purity and clean conduct, and devotion to the teacher—as some of its Vibhāva-s and these pertain to Śānta; Mati, clarity of mind, is given as born of nānāśāstra-vicintana, reflection on diverse branches of learning and philosophy. If the quietistic element is not recognized in some aspect, at least, by him, Bharata cannot say of Nāṭya that it is trailokyānukaraṇa, a representation of all the three worlds, that there is no jñāna or knowledge which is not part of drama and no vidyā or branch of learning which does not come within it: na tat jñānam, etc. NŚ, I. 117.

The instances shown above point however only to the recognition of Śama as an element and they do not mean Bharata's acceptance of the Śānta as a Rasa. To be precise, Śama is not mentioned as one of the forty-nine Bhāva-s. Bharata did not have before him any specimen of drama written only for Mokṣa or salvation and the Virāgin-s, the dispassionate souls. It may be that there cannot also be dramas depicting only Bhayānaka, Adbhuta, etc. as their Rasa. They too can appear only as Aṅga or Saṃcāri Rasa-s. But the reason for the acceptance of Bhayānaka, Adbhuta, Bībhatsa, etc. as Rasa-s is that humanity is more prone and responsive to these than to Śama, the hearts attuned to which must necessarily be very small in number. Śama is almost impossible. For, the opponents of Śānta say, Ignorance, avidyā, producing attachment and aversion, rāga and dveṣa, which result in a network of psychology covered by the eight Sthāyin-s, is inborn in man ever since he began his migration in saṃsāra and practically speaking, this avidyā cannot be rooted out. That is, Śānta which is their absence cannot be obtained. The Avaloka on the Daśarūpaka says:

अन्ये तु वस्तुतस्तस्याभावं वर्णयन्ति । अनादिकालप्रवाहायात्-
रागद्वेषयोरुच्छेत्तुमशक्यत्वात् । NSP ed., 1897, p. 117.

This, however, is not wholly true for there is not any lack of persons who take to Śānta and strive to root out rāga and dveṣa. But this criticism of Śānta is pertinent to some extent in regard to drama generally which is for pleasure and which deals with worldly things. Drama arose as an entertainment: kṛīḍanīyakam icchāmo dṛśyaṃ śṛavyaṃ ca yad bhavet. Bharata often says that Nāṭya is for diversion, vinoda-janana. Bhāmaha also says that though the Mahākāvya depicts all the four Puruṣārtha-s, it shall predominantly inculcate Artha.

चतुर्वर्गभिधानेऽपि भूयसार्थोपदेशकृत् ॥ Kāvya-lamkāra, I. 20-1.

Abhinavagupta draws our attention in this connection to Bharata's definition of Nāṭaka which emphasizes the fact that it shall depict chiefly worldly prosperity, gaiety, etc. From this point of view, Abhinavagupta even says that Śānta is after all only apradhāna, not the leading motif.

Therefore it is that the Candrikākāra, the earlier commentator on the Dhva. Ā., says that the Śānta spoken of by Ānanda-vardhana is certainly admissible as a Rasa, but that it can appear only as an Aṅga Rasa in the Prāsaṅgika Itivṛtta, the subsidiary episodes, and never as the chief Rasa figuring in the Ādhikārika Itivṛtta, the main theme. Evidently, the Candrikākāra also held the view that Vīra and Śṛṅgāra are the Rasa-s in the Nāgānanda in accordance with the ending in the attainment of vidyādhara-cakravartitva, the overlordship of the kingdom of Vidyādhara-s, and the sustained love-theme, and that the Śānta came in there as a subsidiary idea to give a new variety of Vīra called Dayā-vīra. Abhinavagupta, however, rejects this view of the Candrikā in his Locana.

आधिकारिकत्वेन तु शान्तो रसो (रसो न) निबद्धव्य इति चन्द्रिका-
 कारः । तच्चेहास्माभिर्न पर्यालोचितम् । Locana, p. 178.

But the above-given extract from the Abhi. Bhā. seems to grant what Abhinavagupta has criticized in his own Locana. He seems to grant that it is literature of Trivarga interest, that is of wide appeal in the world. Early dramas likewise dealt with Trivarga and the eight Rasa-s only.

But soon drama was to be made the noble vehicle of spiritual and religious instruction to the masses. Leaving the Brāhmaṇic Mahābhārata, we find, in the Buddhistic field, Aśvaghōṣa's Buddhacarita and Saundarananda starting the religious Kāvya, and his Śāriputraprakaraṇa and the allegorical dramatic fragment discovered by Dr. Lüders, the religious drama. The Buddhist and Jain poets and dramatists might have been responsible for the introduction of religious and philosophical poems¹ and plays, for making ¹ (a) The Saundarananda has two verses in the end in which Aśvaghōṣa says that he wrote a Mahākāvya for Upaśānti and Mokṣa, mixing a bitter-medicine with honey.

(b) The Jain work, the Vastuvijñānaratnakośa, is a handbook of knowledge of miscellaneous things enumerated in sets of one, two, etc. (Peterson, III, p. 267; Oxford, 352a; IO, 7583-4; Asiatic Soc., Beng., 4703 A.) Of uncertain date, this work mentions Turuṣka-s in the 36 Rājavaṃśa-s given by it. Albeit its Jain authorship, it gives only eight Rasa-s, aṣṭau rasāḥ (Peterson, III, p. 268a).

(c) The Jain work named Adhyātmakalpadruma by Muni-sundarasūri (end of the 14th and early part of the 15th cent. A.D.), is otherwise called Śāntarasabhāvanā. (NSP ed., 1906, with extracts from Dharmavijayagaṇi's gloss.) The work says in the Pratijñāśloka that Śānta is proposed to be treated in the work and in the next verse which is entitled, 'Śāntarasamāhātmya', the author describes the Śānta as rasendra. The commentary describes the Śānta as śrīmān śāntanāmā rasādhirājaḥ and sarva-rasa-sāra. Compare also the names of some other Jain works, the Śāntasudhārāsa-

Śānta the Āṅgin or leading Rasa of the Ādhikārika-iti-vṛtta or main theme. We know that there were Buddhist writers on Nāṭya like Rāhula, who, as citations of his views in the Abhi. Bhā. show, had his own differences from Bharata. Further, the Jain Anuyogadvāra-sūtra, placed in the fifth century, mentions nine Rasa-s, adding the Praśānta Rasa to the eight old Rasa-s (see below). Dr. S. K. De says in his Studies in the History of Sanskrit Poetics (vol. I, p. 36 fn.): ‘The Jaina Anuyogadvārasutta (ed. NSP, 1915, fol. 134-145, also quoted in Weber II. 2, pp. 701-2) which, Winternitz thinks, was probably put together by the middle of the fifth century, mentions nine rasas, which, however, have hardly any reference to poetic or dramatic rasas; but the enumeration is interesting from the inclusion of praśānta [not mentioned by Bharata] apparently from religious motives.’ It is not known why Dr. De considers these nine Rasa-s mentioned in the Anuyogadvāra-sūtra as having hardly any reference to poetic or dramatic Rasa-s. They are definitely mentioned in the work as ṇava-kavva-rasā, the nine Rasa-s of Kāvya. This is further dealt with below.

The Nāgānanda, the first and only specimen to which the early advocates of Śānta cling, is a Buddhist story. Śrīharṣa had leanings towards Buddhism and if this king Śrīharṣa is the same as the Vārttikakāra of the Nāṭya-śāstra quoted in the Abhi. Bhā. (which, however, is yet quite unproven), it is likely that his Nāṭya-vārttika, which must have made, according to the avowed objective of a vārttika, additions and alterations, ukta-anukta-durukta-cintana, introduced the Śānta as a Rasa. It seems very likely that it is the appearance of the kāvya of Vinayavijayagaṇi and the Praśamaratī of Umāsvāti (see esp. v. 106 in the latter).

Nāgānanda in the world of drama that created a stir and set the discussion on Śānta on its feet in works on Nāṭya and Alankāra.¹

What are the objections raised by the critics of Śānta to recognizing it as a Rasa? The first objection is that Bharata did not speak of it. This is really no serious objection. The greater objection is that pertaining to the real nature of Śama itself. Śama, its critics say, is the cessation or total absence of all feelings and activities. Such a state of non-action cannot be presented on the stage.

कामाद्यभावोऽपि नानुभावः . . . प्रयोगासमवायित्वाच्च ।

न हि चेष्टाव्युपरमः प्रयोगयोग्यः । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 334.

This argument proceeds on a wrong assumption. The state of absolute cessation of action is only the climax, the paryanta-bhūmi, and this certainly cannot be shown. But the paryanta-bhūmi-s of all other Rasa-s also sail in the same boat. Śṛṅgāra is not denied as a Rasa because saṁprayoga or actual sexual union is unfit to be shown on the stage. So also murder and Raudra. So, the acceptance of Śānta does not mean the attempt to present the impossible cessation of action but means only the portrayal of an ardent spirit in search of Truth and tranquillity. The manifold efforts of the yatamāna, the aspirant, his trials, his victories over passions—all these can be portrayed with great interest. Even one who has attained Truth can be shown and there will be no lack of action in him. A Siddha like Janaka will be doing loka-saṃgraha, humanitarian work and helping others on the spiritual path. The Bhagavad-gītā says:

कुर्याद्विद्वांस्तथासक्तः चिकीर्षुर्लोकसंग्रहम् । III. 25.

The Bhagavad-gītā speaks of many a thing which a sthitaprajña, one who is stable-minded, does.

Cf. The Locana (p. 177): चित्राकारा यमनियमादिचेष्टा वा राज्य-
धुरोद्धहनादिरक्षणा वा शान्तस्यापि जनकादेः इष्टैवेति अनुभावसद्भावाद्
यमनियमादिमध्यसंभाव्यमानभूयोऽप्यभिचारिसद्भावाच्च प्रतीयत एव ।

Similar to the above-noticed objection is the explanation which another writer offers for the omission of the Śānta. The Saundaryalaharī, ascribed to Śaṃkara, has three occasions to speak of the Rasa-s. In two verses, 41 and 50, the hymn expressly mentions 'the nine Rasa-s', 'nava-rasa'; in verse 41 with reference to Nāṭya and in verse 50 with reference to Kāvya. But in verse 51, the hymn refers only to eight Rasa-s which are described there as being expressed by the look of the Goddess. In the commentary on this verse, the 51st, Lolla Lakṣmīdhara offers an explanation for the omission of the Śānta here. He says that according to Bharata's school, the Rasa-s are only eight, for Rasa means a certain modification or state of the citta, mind, and Śānta being really the absence of any state or modification, some do not consider it a Rasa.

विक्रियाजनका एव रसा इति अष्टौ रसा भरतमते । 'शान्तस्य
निर्विकारत्वात् न शान्तं मेनिरे रसम्' इति शान्तस्य रसत्वाभावात् अष्टावेव
रसाः संगृहीताः ।

Mysore ed., pp. 154-5.

It is clear from Lakṣmīdhara's remarks here and on the two verses mentioning the nine Rasa-s that personally he would accept the Śānta. But any definite and detailed idea of Lakṣmīdhara's views on the Śānta could be had only when we recover his Sāhitya-work, the Lakṣmīdhara, mentioned by him among his works in the colophon at the end of his commentary on the Saundaryalaharī.

That Bharata has not given the Vibhāva-s, Anubhāva-s and Vyabhicārin-s of Śānta, nor its appropriate Vṛtti, musical Jāti, etc. is another trifling objection. These can be easily made out. Abhinavagupta gives them. The interpolated Śānta text in Bharata gives the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Śānta. The Sthāyin of Śānta is elaborately discussed in a special section below. Its Vibhāva-s are given in the text as tattvajñāna, vairāgya, āśayaśuddhi, etc. Its Anubhāva-s are yama, niyama, the practice of virtues, penance, etc. Almost all Bhāva-s can be its Vyabhicārin-s. Abhinavagupta adds the Vibhāva-s, meeting pious souls (sādhūsamāgama), contact with good men (satsaṃparka), the good done in the past births, God's grace, study of philosophy, etc. Abhinavagupta further remarks that in Śānta one can see and enjoy the Anubhāva-s, namely the slow disappearance of Kāma, Krodha and other evils and that though the whole world of Bhāva-s becomes Vyabhicārin for the Śānta, such Bhāva-s like Nirveda and Jugupsā for worldly objects, Dhṛti, Mati, Utsāha of the type in Dayāvira, Rati for God in the form of Bhakti and Śraddhā will stand out prominently as more intimate accessories, Ābhyañtara Aṅga-s¹. The text of the Abhinavabhāratī bearing on these is edited in a further section of this book.

The next objection to Śānta is the impossibility of Śānta becoming a general feature of humanity in the same measure and to the same extent as Rati, etc. for, the whole world is wrapped in avidyā and is eternally slave to rāga and dveṣa. We know of the eight Sthāyin-s only, as instinctive in man. Dhṛti, Mati, etc. are given as Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta but we do not know of Dhṛti or Mati helping Śānta. All the Dhṛti and Mati known to us is mingled with rāga and dveṣa and other mundane associations:

धृतिप्रभृतिरपि प्राप्तविषयोपरागः कथं शान्ते स्यात् ।

Abhi. Bhā., p. 334.

Nor is the portrayal of non-action any good for vyutpatti, the education of man. The mere presentation of non-action does not educate anybody in the means to attain knowledge of Truth.

न च अकिंचित्करत्वमात्रेण तत्त्वज्ञानोपाये व्युत्पाद्यन्ते विनेयाः ।

ibid., p. 334.

The quietistic element is not a dominant factor in man's life. If a poet develops it, it would seem strange and unbelievable that there should be such impossible men who have spurned the pleasures of the world, women, position, wealth, etc. The general mass of the audience consists mostly of ordinary men who hardly respond to such a drama or have any cittasamvāda or rapport with it. The Avaloka on the Daśarūpaka says:

gives Mokṣa and sets forth its Vibhāva-s, etc. Then he says that it does not have Vibhāva-s, etc. to a full extent, is vikalāṅga; but concludes that despite its imperfections, it is prakṛṣṭa because of its relation with the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa.

अन्ये तु वस्तुतस्तस्य अभावं वर्णयन्ति । अनादिकालप्रवाहायात-रागद्वेषयोरुच्छेत्तुमशक्यत्वात् । DR. A., p. 117.

न च तथाभूतस्य शान्तरसस्य सहृदयाः स्वादयितारः सन्ति ।
ibid., p. 124.

All these objections are raised and answered by Ānandā-
vardhana:

यदि नाम सर्वजनानुभवगोचरता तस्य नास्ति, नैतावतासौ अलोक-
सामान्यमहानुभावचित्तवृत्तिवत् प्रतिक्षेप्तुं शक्यः । Dhva. Ā., p. 177.

That the major part of humanity is wallowing in mundane pleasures does not disprove the existence of saints and sages. There are persons of spiritualistic bent and to them the Śānta play is bound to appeal. To them, the Śṛṅgāra and Vīra plays will have little appeal. Surely, on that ground, Śṛṅgāra and Vīra are not dismissed from the fold of Rasa-s.

ननु तत्र हृदयसंवादाभावाद्रस्यमानतैव नोपपन्ना । क एवमाह
नास्तीति? यतः प्रतीयत एवेत्युक्तम् । ननु प्रतीयते, सर्वस्य श्लाघास्पदं
न भवति । तर्हि वीतरागाणां शृङ्गारो न श्लाघ्य इति सोऽपि रसाच्च्यव-
तामिति तदाह—यदि नामेति । Locana, p. 177.

The argument of the impossibility of non-action being shown has already been refuted.

An extension of the argument that Śānta is not relishable is the argument that drama which is essentially for entertainment and trivarga-vyutpatti, inculcation of the three positive aspirations of man, must depict ṛddhi, prosperity, vilāsa, enjoyment, etc. So have all dramas done. There are no plays which have developed Śānta. The Nāgānanda, which some hold as a Śānta play, is plainly not so. For the end here is not Mokṣa, but the attaining of lordship over the Vidyādhara-s; and all through, the love-theme exists and this is the first thing antagonistic to Śānta. Therefore Vīra and Śṛṅgāra, the former as Dayā-vīra, stand out prominently in the Nāgānanda.

यत्तु कैश्चिन्नागानन्दादौ शमस्य स्थायित्वमुपवर्णितम्, तत्तु मलयवत्यनुरागेण आप्रबन्धप्रवृत्तेन विद्याधरचक्रवर्तित्वप्राप्त्या विरुद्धम् । न ह्येकानुकार्यविभावालम्बनौ विषयानुरागापरागावुपलब्धौ । अतो दया-वीरोत्साहस्यात्र स्थायित्वम् । तत्रैव शृङ्गारस्य अङ्गत्वेन चक्रवर्तित्वादेश्च फलत्वेन अविरोधात् ईप्सितमेव च सर्वत्र कर्तव्यमिति परोपकारप्रवृत्तस्य विजिगीषोः नान्तरीयकत्वेन फलं संपद्यत इति आवेदितमेव प्राक् ।

DR. A., p. 117.

All the arguments given above cannot disprove the possibility of Śānta as a Rasa capable of being relished by spectators. It is bound to be uncommon; all the same, it is as true as the inner experience and the higher life of the mystic which has nothing in common with the life of ordinary worldly men. If Śama is not only a part of the world but a glorious part of it also, it should be so of the drama also. Abhinavagupta says that literature, poetry and drama, cannot restrict themselves to the trivarga only, but must become ennobled by embracing the fourth and the greatest Puruṣārtha also, Mokṣa. The attitude to Mokṣa is Śama and Śānta is the Rasa of the drama which depicts the endeavour to attain that.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 344.

To say that it is impossible to exterminate rāga and dveṣa is to insult humanity, its heritage of philosophy and the long succession of its spiritual leaders. Surely there are men of such bent of mind as can respond to a Śānta drama. That hedonists are not able to sit through it cannot disprove Śānta. It would be a pity if literature, and drama in particular, cannot rise beyond the level of mere entertainment and gaiety. It has been accepted that all cannot respond to all Rasa-s.¹ Surely Bhayānaka will not raise sympathy in a heroic spirit. Bharata himself gives the respective characters—prakṛti-s—who respond to the different Rasa-s. Bhaya and Jugupsā are emotions appropriate to nīca-prakṛti-s or less evolved minds; the highly evolved ones, uttama-sāmājika-s, do not feel a rapport on seeing them. If Viṭa-s, sensualists, delight in Śṛṅgāra, Vītarāga-s, those who are free of attachments, delight in Śānta.

¹ Cf. The Kaivalyadīpikā on the Bhāgavatamuktāphala (Calcutta Oriental Series 5, Calcutta, 1944, pp. 167-8) with reference to the same argument against Bhakti:

NS, XXVII. 56-62.

There is a continuous chain of literature that depicts the supreme Rasa of Śānta. In Kāvya, Ānandavardhana argues in Dhvā. Ā., Uddyota IV, that the Mahābhārata leads as the great epic of Śānta. All the vicissitudes of the Kaurava-s and the Pāṇḍava-s are only the vācya-vācaka, the pūrvapakṣa, prima facie meaning, of which the purpose is the suggestion of the fact that Śānta is the greatest objective for which man should strive.¹ The utter uselessness of even the great victory at Kurukṣetra, not to mention other worldly victories, is very well brought out by the epic. By the annihilation of even the race of Kṛṣṇa and by postulating Kṛṣṇa as the central personality, as the pivot of the plot, by calling the epic 'Nārāyaṇa-kathā', sage Vyāsa has made his message plain. The genius of Vyāsa would not have attempted anything lower than this.² If one finds relish and importance in the subsidiary themes of marriage,

² The following ideas and passages in the epic may be considered in this connection:

(a) In the first Adhyāya of the Anukramaṇikāparvan, the epic salutes Dharma and Kṛṣṇa, its promulgator and sustainer, and says that it shall speak of the eternal Dharma-s. If a work is a Dharma-śāstra in vācya-vācaka, it is a Mokṣa-śāstra in dhvani.

नमो धर्माय महते नमः कृष्णाय वेधसे ।

ब्राह्मणेभ्यो नमस्कृत्य धर्मान् वक्ष्यामि शाश्वतान् ॥ v. 3.

(b) In v. 32 of the same chapter Sauti says that the Bhārata is the story of the Lord Himself: यस्य प्रसादाद्वक्ष्यामि नारायणकथामिमाम् ।

(c) While giving the essential ideas of the great epic, it is said that the epic depicts the greatness of the Lord: वासुदेवस्य माहात्म्यम् . . . उक्तवान् भगवानृषिः ।

(d) युधिष्ठिरो धर्ममयो महाद्वमः मूलं कृष्णो ब्रह्म च ब्राह्मणाश्च ॥

(e) In vv. 104-8 the epic is described as a tree and it is said in v. 106 that the great fruit of this tree is the Śāntiparvan, शान्तिपर्वमहाफलः ।

(f) At the end of the Anukramaṇikāparvan, Dhṛtarāṣṭra who is grieved at the loss of his sons is consoled by Saṃjaya who recited a hymn on Kāla, the all-devouring Time, on hearing which the old king obtained Dhṛti:

dice, suffering, fight, etc. it does not prevent another reader of nobler instincts and mystic disposition seeing through these, and deducing the greatness of the Lord, of Dharma, Śama and Mokṣa. To write in such a perfect manner as to

धृतराष्ट्रोऽपि तच्छ्रुत्वा धृतिमेव समाश्रयत् ।

दिष्टयेदमागतमिति मत्वा स प्राज्ञसत्तमः ॥ 278.

Immediately after this, the Mahābhārata is described as an Upaniṣad:

अत्रोपनिषदं पुण्यां कृष्णद्वैपायनोऽब्रवीत् ॥ 279.

(g) In v. 291, the Mahābhārata is likened to the Āraṇyaka-s among the Veda-s.

(h) In vv. 35-6, in the Parvasaṃgrahaparvan it is said that the wise seek the Mahābhārata, even as Vairāgya is sought by those who desire liberation; and that it is like Ātman among things one must realize:

विचित्रार्थपदाख्यानमनेकसमयान्वितम् ।

प्रतिपन्नं नरैः प्राज्ञैर्वैराग्यमिव मोक्षिभिः ॥

आत्मेव वेदितव्येषु . . . श्रेष्ठः सर्वागमेष्वयम् ॥ 35-6.

(i) At the end of the Parvasaṃgrahaparvan and at the end of the Mahāprasthānikaparvan, Dharma is sung of as the supreme good, not either Artha or Kāma. (I. 2. 392 and XVIII. 5. 76-7.)

(j) Chapter 62, Ādiparvan: It inculcates supreme wisdom and is a Mokṣa-śāstra:

अस्मिन्नर्थश्च कामश्च निखिलेनोपदेक्ष्यते ।

इतिहासे महापुण्ये बुद्धिश्च परिनैष्ठिकी ॥ 19.

धर्मशास्त्रमिदं पुण्यमर्थशास्त्रमिदं परम् ।

धर्मे चार्थे च कामे च मोक्षे च भरतर्षभ ।

यदिहास्ति तदन्यत्र यन्नेहास्ति न कुत्रचित् ॥ 26.

(k) Both in the beginning and end, all-devouring Kāla is sung of (I. 1. 272-5 and XVI. 9. 36-40.). This is for Vairāgya.

give Viśrānti for the readers in the Saṃcāri Rāsa-s and Saṃcāri themes also is not only not incompatible but is in

(l) The triumph of Time, the vanity of earthly glories and the inevitable Nirveda are described in a masterly manner when the great archer, Arjuna, tried again and again, but could not use his bow when before his very eyes the Yādava women were lifted by the Dasyu-s and Ābhīra-s:

ददर्शापदि कष्टायां गाण्डीवस्य परामवम् ।
सर्वेषां चैव दिव्यानामस्त्राणामप्रसन्नताम् ॥
नाशं वृष्णि कलत्राणां प्रभावाणामनित्यताम् ।
दृष्ट्वा निर्वेदमपान्नो व्यासवाक्यप्रचोदितः ॥
धर्मराजं समासाद्य संन्यासं समरोचयत् ॥ I. 2. 361-3.

In the second of his introductory verses in his commentary on the Bhagavad-gītā, Abhinavagupta says that the chief fruit of the epic of Vyāsa is Mokṣa, and that Dharma, etc. are for its development:

द्वैपायनेन मुनिना यदिदं व्यधायि
शास्त्रं सहस्रशतसंमितमत्र मोक्षः ।
प्राधान्यतः फलतया प्रथितस्तदन्य-
धर्मादि तस्य परिपोषयितुं प्रणीतम् ॥

Abhinavagupta's pupil, Kṣemendra, holds Śānta as the teaching of the Mahābhārata. He says at the end of his Bhāratamañjarī:

रत्नोदारचतुःसमुद्रशनां भुक्त्वा भुवं कौरवो
भग्नोरुः पतितः स निष्परिजनो जीवन् वृकैर्मक्षितः ।
गोपैर्विश्वजयी जितः स विजयः कक्षैः क्षिता वृष्णयः
तस्मात् सर्वमिदं विचार्य सुचिरं शान्त्यै मनो दीयतात् ॥

In fact, Kṣemendra would see ultimate Śānta even in the Rāmāyaṇa in which Ānandavardhana sees Karuṇa; Kṣemendra says at the end of his Rāmāyaṇamañjarī:

भोगार्हे नवयौवनेऽपि विपिने चीराम्बरो राघवः
तत्राप्यस्य परेण दारहरणं क्लेशस्तदन्वेषणे ।
संप्राप्तापि जनापवादरजसा त्यक्ता पुनर्जीनक्री
सर्वं दुःखमयं तदस्तु भवतां श्लाघ्यो विवेकोदयः ॥

perfect harmony with the chief Rasa and chief idea. Vide Dhva. Ā., Uddyota IV, p. 238. Also Abhinavagupta in his Abhi. Bhā.:

दृष्टः अङ्गेष्वपि विश्रान्तिलाभः, स्वभावौचित्यात्, यथा रामस्य
वीराङ्गे पितुराज्ञां पालयतः । GOS, I, p. 339.¹

Next in importance to the Mahābhārata are the two Śānta Rasa poems of Aśvaghoṣa, the Buddhacarita and the Saundarananda. The following is a list of other Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s:

1. The Rājatarāṅgiṇī of Kalhaṇa mentions Śānta as its Rasa (I. 23):

क्षणमङ्गिनि जन्तूनां स्फुरिते परिचिन्तिते ।

मूर्धाभिषेकः शान्तस्य रसस्यात्र विचार्यताम् ॥

No great history can escape the ultimate suggestion of the noble Rasa of Śānta.²

His Avadānakalpalatā is naturally a Śānta Rasa composition; Kṣemendra's son Somendra, who supplemented the work says in its introduction:

संतोषाय प्रशमसुखिनां निर्मितोऽयं प्रबन्धः ।

¹ The author of the Bhāgavata, in speaking of the Mahābhārata, says that in the great Epic, Vyāsa had described pravṛtti (as pūrvapakṣa) so much and so well, that man who is by nature attached to it, has mistaken the pūrvapakṣa itself for the siddhānta.

जुगुप्सितं धर्मकृतेऽनुशासतः

स्वभावरक्तस्य महान् व्यतिक्रमः ।

यद्वाक्यतो धर्म इतीतरः स्थितो

17. Jñānavilāsakāvya by Jagannātha. 'This is an allegorical Kāvya explaining the greatness of Vedānta.' TD, 3792.

18. Vijñānataraṅgiṇī by Mahārudrasimha. A Kāvya on the life of Śaṃkaradāsa, a great devotee. TD, 3736.

19. Gītavītarāga by Abhinava Cārukīrtipaṇḍitācārya. This work is called Bāhubalīsvāmi-aṣṭapadī in a MS. in the Jain Mutt at Sravanabelagola. This is a Jain Śānta Rasa imitation of the Gītagovinda of Jayadeva. 2 MSS., Mysore, I, p. 246.

20. Ātmavilāsa, also called Gītadāmodara, is another imitation of the Gītagovinda, but has the purpose of dealing with different religious schools and extolling Bhakti-rasa. See Descriptive Catalogue of MSS., BORI, Poona, vol. IX, 1, 149, 150; each of its seven cantos is devoted to a school—Dvaita, Viśiṣṭādvaita, Kevalādvaita, Śuddhādvaita and finally Bhakti.

21. Kalikalmaṣakautuka is an allegorical Campū in which the author Kṛṣṇakānta Vidyāvāgīśa of Navadvīpa (c. A.D. 1868) deals with the good and bad of the Kali age. Hpr., Report on search for Skt. MSS., 1901-6, p. 9.

22. Madanaparājaya by Nāgadeva (c. 14th cent. A.D.) is another allegorical Campū. Ptd. Bhāratiya Jñānapīṭha Granthamālā, Skt. Series 1, 2nd ed., 1964.

The Mahākāvya-s or Campū-s describing the lives of the saints and religious teachers are Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s. We have thus several Śaṅkaravijaya-s on the Advaita teacher, Yatirājavijaya, Vedāntācāryavijaya and Divyasūricarita on the Śrīvaiṣṇava teachers, the Madhvavijaya on the Dvaita teacher and so on. Mahākāvya-s on the stories of Rāma and Kṛṣṇa will also fall in this category so far as their ultimate devotional motive is concerned. So also those composed on themes derived from the Purāṇa-s, on the stories of Śiva and on the greatness (Māhātmya-s) of kṣetra-s or sacred places. There are also pilgrimage Kāvya-s like Vādirāja's Tīrthaprabandha and Samarapūṅgava's *Yātrāprabandha*¹ which too are Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s. The Citra-campū of Bāṇeśvara (A.D. 1744) is based on Vaiṣṇavite Vedāntism, the soul's pilgrimage to Vṛndāvana. A large number of Jain Campū-s on the lives of the Śalākāpuruṣa-s would also come under the Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s.²

Among dramas, Aśvaghōṣa's seem to be the earliest to have Śānta as their dominant Rasa. His Śāriputraprakaraṇa deals with the conversion of the hero to the Buddhist faith and another of his dramatic fragments discovered by Dr. Lüders shows an allegorical philosophical play. Long after this, without any memory of Aśvaghōṣa's play, Jayanta Bhaṭṭa, the great logician of Kashmir, conceived on his own, in the tenth century A.D., a novel type of play as he himself remarks in the prologue, in his Āgamaḍambara or Śaṅmatanātaka, which is relevant to our tracing the history of the Śānta Rasa plays.

² Somadeva in his Yaśastilakacampū (III. 274) describes Kāvya as navacchāya, having nine Rasa-s, i.e. including Śānta.

In four acts, Jayanta presents here the heretical sects of Buddhism, Jainism, the depraved sects of Nīlāmbara-s, Kāpālika-s and Kālamukha-s, and then the Vaiṣṇava Pāñcārātra, not based on the authority of the Veda. Exponents of these are defeated in debate or otherwise dealt with by the protagonist of Nyāya philosophy coupled with Śaiva religion and in the end the Nyāya-Śaiva teacher makes the pronouncement that all paths, rightly followed, lead to the same goal, and exhorts adherents of all schools to eschew corrupt practices. Written earlier than the play of Kṛṣṇamiśra, Jayanta's play, which had remained in oblivion so far, supplies a significant link in the chain of Śānta Rasa plays.¹ After Jayanta and about the time of Abhinavagupta, Kṛṣṇamiśra (c. A.D. 1098) wrote his Advaita allegory, the Prabodhacandrodaya,² which, if we leave out the Āgamaḍambara of Jayanta, may be taken to have inaugurated a regular category of philosophical and allegorical plays. The following plays of this class were produced, in different parts of the country, to propagate the several schools of philosophical and religious thought:

1. Moharājaparājaya by Yaśaḥpāla. Jain. (c. A.D. 1229-32) Ptd. GOS 9.

¹ See my account of this play in Saṃskṛta Raṅga Annual, III, Madras, 1963, pp. 57-70. An edition of this on the basis of the two available MSS. is to appear through the Mithila Institute of Sanskrit Studies, Darbhanga.

² There seems to be an abridged version of the Prabodhacandrodaya of Kṛṣṇamiśra, Laghu-prabodhacandrodaya-nāṭaka, BORI, 239 of Viś. I. There seems to be a Prabodhacandrodaya-kāvya also in four Ullāsa-s. A MS. of this work is noticed in the private diary of R. A. 3. Samkalpasūryodaya by Veṅkaṭanātha. Viśiṣṭādvaita. (14th cent. A.D.) Ptd. Adyar Library Series 65, 1948.

4. Caitanyacandrodaya by Kavikarṇapūra. Caitanya. (c. A.D. 1550) Ptd. KM 87.

5. Dharmaviṇaya by Śuklabhūdeva. Ptd. Grantha-ratnamālā, Bombay; Sarasvati Bhavana Texts No. 35. MSS. in many catalogues. There is also a commentary on this by the author's pupil Bhavānīśaṅkara. IO, 4183.

6. Bhāvanāpuruṣottama by Ratnakheṭa Śrīnivāsadiṣita, father of Rājacūḍāmaṇidiṣita. Advaita. TD, 4427-4429; Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts, V, Adyar, No. 1431.

7. Muktipariṇaya by Sundaradeva. TD, 4460. N.W. Provinces Cat., pt. VII, p. 46.

8. Vidyāpariṇayana by Ānandarāyamakhin. Advaita. (c. A.D. 1684-1728) Ptd. KM 39.¹

9. Jīvanmuktikalyāṇa by Nallādiṣita. Advaita. Mysore, I, pp. 276, 637; Adyar, II, p. 27b; IO, Keith, pp. 1224-5. Serially published in the Samkaragurukulapatrikā, Srirangam, vol. 3, April-June, 1941 ff.

10. Cittavṛttikalyāṇa by Nallādiṣita.² Mentioned by him in his Jīvanmuktikalyāṇa. IO, Keith, p. 1225a; Rice, p. 256; Auf., I, 207b.

p. 34 of part I, as existing in the Pyara Candra Jain Big Mandir, Sailana State (Malwa, C.I.).

¹ This author wrote an Āyurveda allegory called Jīvānandana, (KM 27; ALS 59) in which religion also figures; the real author of both is Veda Kavi.

² Mallāsomayājīn is the same author (Rice, p. 256). Keith's remark on p. 1225a of his IO catalogue and on p. 1695b, Index, that Mallādiṣita is the correct name and 'Nallā' is incorrect, is wrong. The name of this well-known South Indian author is Nallādiṣita.

11. Pracaṇḍarāhūdaya by Ghanaśyāma.¹ TD, 4388.
12. Siddhāntabherināṭaka by Sudarśanācārya. Viśiṣṭā-dvaita (?). Mysore, I, p. 286.
13. Anumiti-pariṇaya by Nṛsiṃhakavi of Triplicane., Madras. Marriage between Anumiti, daughter of Parāmarśa., with Nyāyarasika. This play is of little philosophical interest; it is on the subject of logic. MD, 12463.
14. Vivekaviṇaya by Rāmānuja Kavi, son of Pūrṇaguru and grandson of Rāmānujaguru, of Sriperumbudur near Madras. The triumph of Viveka over passions. MD. 12683-4; Adyar, Descriptive Catalogue, vol. V, no. 1557.
15. Bhaktivaibhavanāṭaka by Rājaguru Vāhinīpati Mm.. Jivadeva, son of Trilocanācārya of Puri, patronized by King Pratāparudradeva. On Kṛṣṇabhakti. MT, 3752.
16. Mithyājñānakhaṇḍana by Ravidāsa. A short allegorical play in one act. IO, 4200; Bombay Br. R.A.S. 1289-90 and many other catalogues also.
17. Mudritakumudacandra by Yaśaścandra. A dramatization of a philosophical debate. Bom. Br. R.A.S. 1292.. Ptd. Yaśovijaya Jaina Granthamālā 8.
18. Pūrṇapurūṣārthacandrodaya by Jātavedas of Viśvāmitra-gotra. The author later became an ascetic. On the union of Ānandapakvavallī and King Daśāśva, lord of the ten senses, i.e. Ātman. MD, 12540-1. MD, 14602 is a metrical resumé of the story of this play. There are two copies of a commentary on this drama. Descriptive Catalogue of Skt. ¹ A strange dramatic composition of his is the Navagrahacarita, TD, 4689. TD, vol. XIX, p. 55, Kalitāṇḍavanāṭaka may be a philosophical or religious drama.

19. Prabodhodayanātaka by Śukleśvaranātha. The several systems of philosophy dispute here in a debate in the court of King Bhagavantarāya. Hpr., Notices, IInd series, vol. III, No. 190, pp. 122-4.

20. Śivanārāyaṇabhañjamahodayanāṭikā by Narasiṃhamiśra who lived under the patronage of Śiva Nārāyaṇa Bhañja, Rāja of Keonjhar. An allegorical play from Orissa. The work ends with Jīvanmukti. Hpr., Report on search for Skt. MSS., 1895-1900, published by the Asiatic Soc., Bengal, Calcutta, 1901, p. 18. (Hpr. Notices, IInd Series, vol. IV, 1911, No. 196.)

21. Śrīnivāsaratnavijayanāṭikā on the same plan as the above by the same author Narasiṃha, this time on another worthy personality of Orissa, and ending in Jīvanmukti in the last act, as in the previous play. MT, 3705.

22. Jñānasūryodayanātaka by Vādicandra. Jain. Hiralal, Central Provinces Catalogue, p. 646, No. 7252; Granthānāmāvali, Ailak Pannalal Digambar Jain Sarasvati Bhavan, Jhalrapatan, p. 30; Peterson, II, 198; III, 401. See Pathak, JBRAS, 18, p. 223.¹

23. Tārābhaktitarāṅgiṇī contains two allegorical dramatic sequences in which Kali, Dharma, Viveka, etc. figure as characters. The work as a whole, however, is not a drama. Mitra, Notices, 1607.

24. Satsaṅgavijayanātaka by Vaijanātha. Cat. of Skt. MSS. in the Private Libs. of Gujarat, Kathiawad, Kacch, Sindh and Khandesh by Bühler, II, p. 124, No. 54.

36. Svātmaprakāśanāṭaka by Sundaraśāstrin of Polaham village (Tanjore Dt.). Advaita. Ptd. Chidambaram, 1913; ibid. 1037-8.

37. Kṛṣṇabhakticandrikānāṭaka, by Anantadeva, son of Āpadeva. Numerous MSS. Ptd. Grantharatnamālā, Bombay, 1887-92.¹

38. Śivaliṅgasūryodaya in five acts, by Mallanārādhyā; written for Basaleśvara of the Kandallari family. On the superiority of Vīraśaivism. MT, 2282.

39. Līṅgadurbhedanāṭaka. An allegorical representation of various doctrines and the superiority of Advaita over them. Lahore 4. Auf, I, 544a.

40. Cerukūri Yajñanārāyaṇa, son of Koṇḍu Bhaṭṭa, wrote a play based on the Śāstra-s, Nāṭakīkṛtasacchāstra. TD, 3772.

Besides these, there are many late dramas on the lives of the religious leaders, saints and devotees of Śiva and Viṣṇu. Rāmānujācārya's career is dramatized in the Yatirājaviṅṇaya or Vedāntavilāsa by Varadācārya of Kāñcī (MD, 12696-12700; TD, 4486; Mysore I, p. 281; Adyar II, p. 30a). Śivabhaktā- nandanāṭaka (MT, 5092 and 5520) is on the life of one of the Śaivite saints. Such dramas are more truly spiritual; for their portrayal of the religious and spiritual career of such personalities is more effective than the presentation of abstract spiritual ideas as characters on the stage. A love-story evokes love and, for this purpose, one does not write a play in which Śṛṅgāra figures as a character with Madhu, Viraha, etc. as other characters. Thus dramas on the life of saints and devotees are Śānta Rasa plays. The Bhartyāharinirvedanāṭaka of Harihara (Kāvya-mālā 29) is a Śānta play of a conception far superior to other specimens though the author is somewhat unequal to the theme. The prastāvanā says that it is a Śānta play and that the Śānta Rasa is the only lasting Rasa.

Even in dramas on Rāma, Kṛṣṇa and Śiva, which are very large in number, there is Bhakti and through it Śānta is depicted as the ultimate Rasa, though the drama by itself has a different and definite Rasa in its theme. For, it is devotion to these forms of God that prompteth the poets to write and it is devotion that is the result in the hearts of the spectators. The actual Rasa of the play in such cases will thus be a Rasavat, subordinated to Bhakti and Śānta which form the Rasa-s ultimately suggested, Parama-dhvani.

The Śānta Rasa is accepted by a majority of writers. The earliest writer now known to mention it is Udbhṭa. He simply mentions it in his KASS but must have dealt with it at greater length, perhaps refuting the opposition to it also, in his now lost commentary on the Nāṭya-sāstra. Lollaṭa certainly recognized it, for as will be seen in a further section of this book, Lollaṭa recognizes numerous Rasa-s. If he had admitted many minor Bhāva-s as capable of becoming Rasa-s, he must certainly have admitted Śānta, which his predecessor had accepted.

तेन आनन्त्येऽपि रसानां पार्षदप्रसिद्ध्या एतावतामेव प्रयोज्यत्वमिति
यद् भट्टल्लोटेन निरूपितम्, तदवलेपेनापरामृश्येत्यलम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 299 (also on p. 341).

But Lollaṭa seems to have made a compromise with the conservatives as regards the number of Rasa-s by appealing to pārṣadaprasiddhi as certifying only a few as Rasa-s. This 'vogue in circles of connoisseurs', Lollaṭa says, speaks only of these as Rasa-s, as capable of portrayal on the stage (prayojya). The words 'these only' (etāvatām eva) in Lollaṭa perhaps refer only to the old eight. That Śānta also is included and the word 'these' refers to nine has to be confirmed by a more definite evidence. We have no clue to know Śaṅkuka's attitude towards Śānta. From the number of views on the Sthāyin of Śānta which Abhinavagupta reviews and which must have been the views of the previous commentators of Bharata, we can guess that Śaṅkuka also accepted Śānta. Rudraṭa recognizes Śānta and gives Samyagjñāna or Tattvajñāna as its Prakṛti or Sthāyin, ch. VII, 3. He describes it in ch. XV, 15-16:

सम्यग्ज्ञानप्रकृतिः शान्तो विगतेच्छनायको भवति ।

सम्यग्ज्ञानं विषये तमसो रागस्य चापगमात् ॥

जन्मजरामरणादित्रासो वैराग्यवासना विषये ।

सुखदुःखयोरनिच्छाद्वेषाविति तत्र जायन्ते ॥

सम्यग्ज्ञानं स्थायिभावः । विभावस्तु शब्दादिविषयस्वरूपम् । अनुभावो जन्मादित्रासादयः ।

Comm. on above by Namisādhū, KM 2, p. 166.

Namisādhū adds that it is improper to deny the existence of Śānta as a Rasa:

Ānandavardhana not only recognizes the Śānta but also argues for its acceptance, illustrating it from the Nāgānanda—

यथा शान्तशृङ्गारौ नागानन्दे निवेशितौ ।

Dhva. Ā., KM ed., 1928, p. 176

and gives tr̥ṣṇāḥśayasukha as its Sthāyin. Rājaśekhara's Kāvya-mīmāṃsā might have recognized the Śānta in its lost chapter called Rasādhikārika, since Rājaśekhara follows Rudraṭa to a large extent. Bhaṭṭa Tota accepts it and from a remark of Abhinavagupta at the end of the Śānta section in the Locana, we see that Tota's Kāvya-kautuka contains an elaborate examination of the objections to Śānta and gives a brilliant exposition of it as the greatest Rasa.

मोक्षफलत्वेन चायं परमपुरुषार्थनिष्ठत्वात् सर्वरसेभ्यः प्रधानतमः । स चायमस्मदुपाध्यायभट्टतोतेन काव्यकौतुके, अस्माभिश्च तद्विवरणे बहुतरकृतनिर्णयः पूर्वपक्षसिद्धान्त इत्यलं बहुना । Locana, p. 178.

Abhinavagupta accepts it as the greatest Rasa in his three works, his lost commentary on his teacher's Kāvya-kautuka, his

Locana and his Abhinavabhāratī. Abhinavagupta's predecessor and ancestor, the author of the Candrikā on the Dhvanyāloka, accepts the Śānta but gives the ruling that it can appear as an element in the subsidiary plot of the drama but never as the leading Rasa (Locana, p. 178). This has been pointed out already. The view of the Candrikā represents one stage in the history of Śānta. It grants that Śānta is a Rasa but holds it still unworthy of the honour of being the leading Rasa. The next stage is the recognition of it as an Ādhikārika Rasa, the Rasa of the main theme, but permissible as an Ādhikārika Rasa only in a Kāvya; in Nāṭaka, it should only be a Prāsaṅgika Rasa, the Rasa of a subsidiary episode. The last stage is its complete acceptance, as Ādhikārika in Nāṭaka also, and as the greatest of all Rasa-s, synthesizing all the other Rasa-s in itself. Bhaṭṭanāyaka accepts it and, like Abhinavagupta, holds it as the greatest Rasa. Taking the very first verse of the Nāṭya-śāstra, nāṭyaśāstram pravakṣyāmi brahmaṇā yad udāhṛtam, Bhaṭṭanāyaka imaginatively interprets this as suggesting the Śānta Rasa.¹ Brahmaṇā yad udāhṛtam does not mean 'the Śāstra which was introduced by Brahmā', but 'drama which is compared to the Brahman or the Absolute of Vedānta'. The Nāṭa is like the Brahman; upon him is created the world of drama, as this world upon the substratum of the Brahman. Drama is māyā and the nature of its reality is anirvacanīya, indescribable. Though fundamentally non-existent in the sense in which the Nāṭa and the Brahman exist as realities, both this world and drama do exist. Both help in the attainment of the Puruṣārtha-s. The essence of this view is given by him in his maṅgalaśloka to his now lost

Hṛdayadarpaṇa (See Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, pp. 4-5). Bhaṭṭa-nāyaka seems to have accepted as genuine the Śānta text found in Bharata.

शान्तरसोपक्षेपोऽयं भविष्यति 'स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्तादुत्पद्यते रसः' इति । तदनेन पारमार्थिकं प्रयोजनमुक्तमिति व्याख्यानं हृदयदर्पणे पर्यग्रहीत् । यदाह—

नमस्त्रैलोक्यनिर्माणकवये शंभवे यतः ।

प्रतिक्षणं जगन्नाथप्रयोगरसिको जनः ॥ इति ।

Later again, in chapter 27 on the Siddhi-s, Abhinavagupta has occasion to quote Bhaṭṭanāyaka and point out, along with him, that Śānta is the ultimate basis of all Rasa-s and that this is indirectly hinted at by Bharata.

सोऽप्ययं सिद्धयंशो दैवः शान्तरसस्य समस्तरसप्रकृतितां 'स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्तादुत्पद्यते रसः' इति वदता मु(सू)चित एव । स्पष्टतया तु नोक्तः, रहस्यार्थस्य (त्वात्), अन्यपरत्वाच्च शास्त्रस्य । तदुक्तं भट्टनायकेन, etc. Abhi. Bhā. Mad. MS., III, p. 87. GOS, III, pp. 304-5 (corrupt).

Kuntaka accepts Śānta and considers it as the Rasa of the Rāmāyaṇa (Vj, De's ed., 1928, p. 239). Kṣemendra accepts it as can be seen from his Aucityavicāracarṇā, pp. 130-1. Not only does he, following Abhinavagupta and Ānandavardhana, consider Śānta as the Rasa of the Mahābhārata (see v. 3 at the end of his Bhāratamañjarī) but of the Rāmāyaṇa too, of which Ānandavardhana considers Karuṇa as the Rasa. Kṣemendra says that the Karuṇa itself is the argument for Śānta being the ultimate Rasa (see v. 1 at the end of his Rāmāyaṇamañjarī). Śānta is the Rasa of Kṣemendra's Bauddhāvadāna-kalpātā and some of his minor works, Darpadalana, etc.

Bhoja accepts Śānta both in his SKĀ and Śr. Pra. Most of the later writers accept it. The Viṣṇudharmottara accepts it (III. 30. 2, 8, 9) and holds it as independent and standing apart from the other eight Rasa-s, four of which are primary ones giving rise to the other four; and as having the Supreme Being as its presiding deity and Vairāgya as its Sthāyin:

शान्तो रसः स्वतन्त्रोऽत्र पृथगेव व्यवस्थितः ।

* * * * *

शान्तस्य देवो विज्ञेयः परः पुरुष एव तु ।

* * * * *

शान्तस्य तु समुत्पत्तिः नृप वैराग्यतः स्मृता ॥

The critics who do not accept Śānta are mainly writers on Dramaturgy proper. They think they are loyal to Bharata by denying it. This attitude begins, as far as extant works go, in the Daśarūpaka, the model and source for many a later work on Rūpaka. Dhanamjaya and Dhanika, both refute it and argue for its impossibility in drama.

शममपि केचित् प्राहुः पुष्टिर्नाट्येषु नैतस्य ।¹ DR, IV, 33.

From this it would appear that Dhanamjaya denies Śānta only in drama but accepts it in Kāvya. But, as a matter of fact, Dhanamjaya, as interpreted by Dhanika, does not recognize it even in Kāvya (see p. 124). Mammaṭa first says

¹ D. T. Tatacharya misunderstands this Śāma, the Bhāva which is given here as the Sthāyin of Śānta, as something not having anything to do with Śānta and as something new and distinct from Śānta. He says incorrectly: 'Dhanamjaya seems to accept Śāma as distinct from Śānta Rasa, which, he thinks, has no place in drama.' (JOR, vol. 5, p. 28.)

बिभ्रद् रसान्तरभूमिकां * * * नवमो रसः । ibid. I. 3.

Dhanamjaya further says that the mental condition in the state of relish, kāvyaśvāda, is of four forms: vikāsa, vistāra, kṣobha and vikṣepa, answering to the four primary Rasa-s of Śṛṅgāra, Vīra, Bībhatsa and Raudra, together with their four derivative Rasa-s, Hāsyā, Adbhuta, Bhayānaka and Karuṇa (IV. 43-4). A fifth or ninth state is therefore not possible in drama; but if it is introduced in Kāvya, in the form of a description of its accessory factors like Muditā, Maitrī, Karuṇā, Upekṣā, etc. they must come under one of the four states, vikāsa, etc.

अथ तदुपायभूतो मुदितामैत्रीकरुणोपेक्षादिलक्षणः, तस्य च विकास-
विस्तारक्षोभविक्षेपरूपतैवेति । तदुक्त्यैव शान्तरसास्वादो निरूपितः ।

DRA, IV. 45-6.

To grant it in Kāvya and to deny it in Nāṭya is as clumsy a compromise as the one which grants it inherent Rasa-character and denies it conventional vogue as a Rasa. Kāvya is, in essence, only drama and this Abhinavagupta has emphasized in his *Abhi. Bhā.*¹ If it is possible to develop the Śānta as the theme of a Kāvya, equally is it possible to handle it as the motif of a drama.

There are other writers who are not so antagonistic towards Śānta as to deny it totally. They are not Abhāvavādin-s but are Antarbhāvavādin-s. The aspect called the quietistic is no doubt available in Kāvya and Nāṭya but one need not recognize it as a special and separate Rasa with the name Śānta which Bharata does not speak of. We can have it and relish it as a variety of one of the Rasa-s already given.

by Bharata. Thus, for instance, some writers include Śānta in Vīra and say that Śānta is nothing but Dayā-vīra. This view cannot however explain all cases of Śānta but it owes its origin to the fact that it was the Nāgānanda that was at first kept in view by the sponsors and detractors of Śānta. Others try to include it in Jugupsā. Inclusion in many other Bhāva-s is possible as will be shown in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta. But in all these cases the Antarbhāvā-vādin-s mistake a Saṃcārin, though an ābhyantara one, for the Sthāyin. Vīra, as emphasizing the ego, as ahaṃkāra-pradhāna, goes ill with Śānta which is the very negation of ahaṃkāra. If there are certain varieties of selfless Vīra like Dayā-vīra, Dharma-vīra and Dāna-vīra, they must be brought under the mahāviśaya, namely the Śānta, and not vice versa. So also Jugupsā, etc.¹ These are at best very prominent and frequently appearing accessories. We can say:

कस्यचिच्छान्तभेदस्य स तु स्यादुपलक्षणम् ।

Dayā-vīra, etc. may be some cases of Śānta, not all cases of Śānta. Śānta comprehends all the forty-nine Bhāva-s as also its Vyabhicārin-s. It cannot be included in any of these. Śuddha-jugupsā, Dayā-vīra, Vicitra-ratyādīsthāyyaṣṭaka—these are, each of Sarvānanda in his Ṭīkāśarvasva on Amarakośa I. 7. 17, includes the Śānta in one of the three varieties of Śṛṅgāra, i.e. Dharmaśṛṅgāra.

them, a kind or a case of Śānta; they cannot define Śānta. If, in spite of the fundamental difference between Śama and Utsāha, some want to include Śānta in Vīra, because both have Utsāha of a sāttvika form in them, all the Rasa-s can be included in Vīra, for there is hardly any activity without Utsāha. If because of the sāttvika nature of the Utsāha in Śānta and Vīra, the two are made into one, Vīra and Raudra can as well be made into one, because both carry out the destruction of the enemy. This antarbhāva-vāda is dealt with at greater length in the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Śānta is the Rasa of Śama, or Tattvajñāna or realization of Self. The whole world may be its Uddīpana-vibhāva, especially pilgrimage, resort to solitude, company of the good, etc. Its Ālambana-vibhāva is, in cases where it is oriented to devotion, a personal God, and in other cases, the Ātman or the Brahman. Those who have accepted Śānta give it all the Rasa-details which Bharata gives to other Rasa-s, namely its varṇa (colour), devatā (presiding deity), vṛtti, guṇa, etc. The original text of Bharata on the rasa-devatā-s reads adbhuto brahmadaivataḥ (VI. 50). Abhinavagupta says that according to the Śānta-advocates, the text reads thus:

वीरो महेन्द्रदेवः स्याद् बुद्धः शान्तोऽञ्जजोऽद्भुतः—इति शान्त-
वादिनः केचित् पठन्ति । बुद्धो जिनः परोपकारैकपरः, प्रबुद्धो वा ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 300.

Abhinavagupta says that either the Buddha or the enlightened soul in general is the devatā of Śānta. The mention of the Buddha in the amended text is tell-tale and shows the hand of some writer like Rāhula. It confirms our surmise in an earlier section of this book that the Buddhists might have ushered the Śānta in. It is natural that Viśvanātha clearly stated

Nārāyaṇa as the devatā of Śānta, Śrī Nārāyaṇadaivataḥ. The *Alaṃkārasaṃgraha*¹ of Amṛtānanda considers Parabrahman as its presiding deity and the permanent abode of the Lord the Ālambana. The Alaṃkārasarvasva of Harṣopādhyāya (?), written for one Gopāladeva, makes the supreme spirit, Parabrahman, the devatā of Śānta.² Regarding the colour of Śānta, one naturally expects it to be pure white, to be in consonance with the purity and knowledge that characterize it. Viśvanātha describes it as kundendusundaracchāyāḥ. So also did Abhinavagupta; according to him, advocates of Śānta changed the text pītaś caivādbhutaḥ smṛtaḥ into svacchapītau śamādbhutau.

स्वच्छपीतौ शमाद्भुतौ इति शान्तवादिनां पाठः । GOS, I, p. 299.

However, in view of the fundamental and equanimous character of Śānta, it would be proper, according to Abhinavagupta, to hold Śānta as being above all these correlations of colour, etc.

सर्वसाम्याच्च विशेषतो वर्णदेवताभिधानमनुचितमप्यस्य तत्कल्पितमिति ज्ञेयम् ।
Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 341.

The Vṛtti of Śānta is given by Abhinavagupta as the Sāttvatī, because the Sāttvatī-vṛtti is described by him as full of Sattva-guṇa.³

शान्ते तु सात्त्वत्येव वृत्तिरिति । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 341.

² MT, 3325. In MT, 5225, another MS. of the same work in the same Library, the author is given as Aubhalārya Kṛṣṇa of Devarakoṇḍa.

³ Regarding this false etymology, of Sāttvatī from Sattva, see my article on the Vṛtti-s, JOR, vol. 7, pp. 38-44.

Later in NS, chapter 20, dealing with Vṛtti-s, in the verses apportioning the Rasa-s among the four Vṛtti-s, the line relating to Sāttvatī was read by the advocates of Śānta as:

सात्त्वती चापि विज्ञेया वीराद्भुतशमाश्रया । (V. 73)

Others read the line as virādbhutasamāśrayā:

अत्र शमशब्दः (देन) शान्तरसपरिग्रह इति तद्वादिनो मन्यन्ते ।

‘समाश्रया’ इत्यन्ये पठन्ति ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, III, p. 105..

But, correctly speaking, the real Vṛtti of Śānta cannot be any of the four nor can it be any one of the four in the several situations according to the Vyabhicārin-s. In the case of a drama involving Bhakti or devotion to a personal God, the Vṛtti is Kaiśikī. According to Kollūri Rājaśekhara, author of the Sāhityakalpadruma, the eight Rasa-s, in four pairs, are born from the four Veda-s, and the Śānta from the Upaniṣad-s: śāntas tūpaniṣad-gaṇāt.¹

The Samgītasudhākara of king Haripāladeva (Madras MS.)² which, as will be seen presently, gives Śānta as a less basic Rasa and introduces a permanent quietistic Rasa called Brāhma, which latter corresponds to the Śānta of others, postulates the Vṛtti of this basic Brāhma-rasa as the Brāhmī-vṛtti. In the fight of Viṣṇu with the two demons, Madhu and Kaiṭabha, in which incident the four Vṛtti-s are said to have arisen, Brahmā was a spectator and Haripāla makes this taṭastha or 'spectator' Brahmā, the source of his Brāhmī-vṛtti. This Vṛtti he ascribes not only to the Brāhma-rasa, but to Śānta and Adbhuta also. Brahmā is the deity of Adbhuta in the old text of Bharata also. Brahmā is thus the deity of Śānta and Brāhma Rasa-s according to Haripāla:

कैशिक्यारमटी ब्राह्मी सात्त्वती भारती तथा ॥

ब्राह्मी नाम भवेद्वृत्तिः ब्राह्मशान्ताद्भुताश्रया ।

ब्राह्मी ब्रह्मोद्भवा तत्र शेषा नारायणोद्भवाः ॥ Mad. MS., p. 19.

Regarding the guṇa of Rasa-s, Ānandavardhana says that mādhurya is the guṇa of Śṛṅgāra (Sambhoga), Vipralambha and Karuṇa. This guṇa is sweetness and the melting of the heart. Really speaking this mādhurya, applicable to worldly sweetness or citta-druti of a worldly nature, cannot apply to Śānta. Perhaps prasāda may fit Śānta, for, above all, Śama is the tranquillity and transparence of the cittavṛtti or antaḥ-karaṇa which had become tarnished with the dust of this world. Prasāda which shows the total absence of rāga and dveṣa is the nearest approach to the taṭasthatā of Śānta. But Hemacandra considers that in Śānta, mādhurya exists in a high degree.

द्रुतिहेतुर्माधुर्यं शृङ्गारे । शान्तकरुणविप्रलम्भेषु सातिशयम् ।

Kāvyaṇuśāsana, IV, p. 201..

सातिशयमिति—अत्यन्तद्रुतिहेतुत्वात् । Comm. ibid.

Jagannātha also has similar views. He says that mādhurya is present in the greatest degree in Śānta.

तत्र शृङ्गारे संयोगाख्ये यन्माधुर्यं ततोऽतिशयितं करुणे, ताभ्यां
विप्रलम्भे, तेभ्योऽपि शान्ते । RG, p. 53.

In this respect, both Hemacandra and Jagannātha only follow Mammaṭa who says:

आह्लादकत्वं माधुर्यं शृङ्गारे द्रुतिकारणम् ।

करुणे विप्रलम्भे तच्छान्ते चातिशयान्वितम् ॥ K. Pra., VIII. 3.

These writers seem to have in their mind the state of spiritual realization or brahmāsvāda or the realization of ānanda, that being the end of Śānta Rasa. Surely bliss unalloyed is sweetest.

The objectors to the Śānta mentioned among their arguments that when prescribing appropriate music, tempo, etc. for each Rasa, Bharata did not mention any of these for Śānta.¹ This is not correct with regard to every element of the text or its production on the stage, for in the chapter on the gati, gait, appropriate to each character (ch. 12), Bharata deals elaborately with the gait suited to recluses, hermits, those performing penance and austerity and particular classes of religious persons (vv. 78-86).²

² But in this context, not satisfied with the detailed description of the gati-s of ascetics, etc. given by Bharata, certain Śānta-enthusiasts added a verse for Śānta-gati and Abhinavagupta quotes that verse and calls it spurious.

IN this section I propose to speak of some peculiar and original views expressed by some writers on the Śānta Rasa.

THE RASAKALIKĀ OF RUDRABHAṬṬA

In the section on the Sthāyin of Śānta it will be seen that Nirveda, Tṛṣṇākṣayasukha, Vairāgya, Tattvajñāna, etc. make their claim to be the Sthāyin of Śānta. Each of these helps the other and shades off into the other. All of them form aspects of the one Rasa of Śānta. So it seems to Rudrabhaṭṭa, the author of the Rasakalikā, an unpublished work on Rasa preserved in two parts in two MSS. in the Govt. Oriental Manuscripts Library, Madras (Nos. MT, 2241 and 3274).¹

¹ The two MSS. make the work almost complete; but there still seems to be some portion missing. On p. 32 of MT 2241, there is a Cāṭu on a king named Arjuna. This Rasakalikā is identical with the Rasakalikā which is quoted by Vāsudeva in his commentary on the Karpūramañjarī (KM ed.). All the six verses cited by Vāsudeva are found in the Rasakalikā in these Madras MSS. There are two copies, an original and a transcript, of the Rasakalikā in the Mysore Oriental Library.

There is no indication of the author in the MSS. of this work. But we are able to know that one Rudrabhaṭṭa was its author from the external evidence of a Kanarese treatise on Rasa, the Rasaratnākara of Sālva (16th cent.). Sālva says that he draws upon Amṛtānanda, Hemacandra, Rudrabhaṭṭa and Vidyānātha. While dealing with the Uddīpana-Vibhāva-s, Sālva says that

He says first that Śama is the Sthāyin of Śānta (MT, 2241, p. 7) and then describes on page 9 that Śama is the untinted, rippleless state of the mind which is acquired through Vairāgya, etc.

शमो वैराग्यादिना निर्विकारचित्तत्वम् । यथा—

अशीमहि वयं भिक्षाम् आशावासो वसीमहि ।

शयीमहि महीपृष्ठे कुर्वीमहि किमीश्वरैः ॥ MT, 2241, p. 9.

What other things does he mean besides Vairāgya when he says vairāgya-ādinā? He explains this on page 47. He says that even as Vira is of the forms of Dāna-, Dayā-, Yuddha- and Dharma- Vira-s, Śānta also has four Prakāra-s or phases or forms: Vairāgya, Doṣa-nigraha, Saṃtoṣa and Tattva-sākṣātkāra.

अथ शान्तः—

विषयेभ्यो विरक्तस्य तत्त्वज्ञस्य विवेकिनः ।

रागादिनिर्विकारत्वं शान्तिरित्यभिधीयते ॥

सा चतुर्विधा—वैराग्यम्, दोषनिग्रहः, संतोषः, तत्त्वसाक्षात्कारिता चेति ।

विषयेभ्यो निवृत्तिर्वैराग्यम् . . . । रागाद्यभावो दोषनिग्रहः

तृष्णोन्मूलनं संतोषः . . . । तत्त्वसाक्षात्कारः ॥ pp. 47-8.

Here Vairāgya and the other three are spoken of not as means to Śama but as forms of Śama or Śānta itself.

Rudrabhaṭṭa mentions them as four in his Rasakalikā (Rasaratnākara, Madras University Kanarese Series No. 2, ed. by A. Venkata Rao and Pandit H. Sesha Ayyangar, p. 11). On pp. 188-9 of this ed., is found an appendix containing all the passages of the Rasakalikā quoted by Śālva.

THE SAṂGĪTASUDHĀKARA OF HARIPĀLADEVA

Unlike most of the later writers, king Haripāla boldly wrote on independent lines, creating new concepts. He accepts thirteen Rasa-s: the old eight of Bharata, Śānta, Vātsalya (which comes down from Rudraṭa's time), and three absolutely new Rasa-s, Saṁbhoga, Vipralambha and Brāhma. He expressly says that the last three are new and distinct Rasa-s according to his view.

शृङ्गारो हास्यनामा च बीभत्सः करुणस्तथा ।

वीरो भयानकाह्वानो रौद्राख्योऽद्भुतसंज्ञकः ॥

शान्तो ब्राह्माभिधः पञ्चाद् वात्सल्याख्यस्ततः परम् ।

संभोगो विप्रलम्भः स्याद् रसास्त्वेते त्रयोदश ॥

Madras MS., MT, 3082 (ch. 4, p. 16).

What his new Rasa-s, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha, are and how they differ from the first, namely Śṛṅgāra—these questions will be taken up in another section. Now we shall restrict ourselves to Haripāla's views on the new Rasa named Brāhma which he holds in addition to, and not in the place of, the Śānta. What are these two Rasa-s, Brāhma and Śānta, and how do they differ? What are their respective and distinct Sthāyin-s? What is the necessity for recognizing two such Rasa-s?

Haripāla enumerates the Sthāyin-s of his Rasa-s thus:

आह्लादः प्रथमं नर्म¹ जुगुप्सा शोक एव च ।

उत्साहदैन्य(ये)² क्रोधोऽथ विस्मयस्तदनन्तरम् ॥

² bhaya is the old Sthāyin of Bhayānaka.

निर्वेदश्च तथानन्दः प्रीती रत्यरती तथा ।

प्रत्येकं स्थायिनो भावाः क्रमात् प्रत्येकमीरिताः ॥ ibid., p. 17.

He accepts the view that Nirveda is the Sthāyin of Śānta and in this acceptance, he seems to have a purpose which we shall see presently. Haripāla says further with regard to these Rasa-s:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।

अतिरिक्ता उदीर्यन्ते हरिपालमहीभुजा ॥ p. 17.

ब्राह्मो नाम रसः सर्वप्रपञ्चोत्तीर्णरूपकः ।

नित्यः स्थिरोऽत एवायं पार्थक्येन प्रकीर्तितः ॥ p. 18.

From the latter verse we have to take it that Haripāla distinguishes the Śānta and the Brāhma Rasa-s as differing in the degree of permanence. He calls the Brāhma, of which Ānanda is given as the Sthāyin, eternal (nitya) and permanent (sthira), and from this we have to understand that the Śānta of which Nirveda is the Sthāyin is impermanent (anitya, asthira). While discussing the claims of Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna to be the Sthāyin of Śānta, Abhinavagupta quotes the verse vythā dugdho 'naḍvān, etc. and points out that the resulting Bhāva is Kheda or Nirveda in ordinary things in the sphere of our worldly activities, which has no reference to the fourth Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. This Nirveda can be developed into a Rasa which is a kind of quietude, Śānta. Perhaps, it is to distinguish such a Rasa as this Nirveda-Śānta involving a passive attitude while in the midst of mundane activities that Haripāla postulated a Brāhma Rasa to refer to a regular activity towards the attainment of Mokṣa.

No such explanation is however offered by Haripāla. The above suggested explanation loses point when it is realized that Nirveda in ordinary things must only be a Bhāva and if it is nourished into a Rasa, it cannot stop short without developing into a Rasa referring to Mokṣa. It is a pity that Haripāla has not explained himself more elaborately.

THE PRAPAÑCAHRDAYA

The Prapañcahrdaya, an anonymous compendium, published as No. 65 of the Trivandrum Skt. Series, treats of the subject of Rasa under Nāṭyā, in the section on the Gāndharva-veda, in the chapter on the Upaveda-s. The work approaches Śānta in a new manner. It says that there are only eight Sthāyin-s but takes the Nāṭya-śāstra as giving nine Rasa-s! It thus speaks of eight Sthāyin-s and nine Rasa-s. It refutes the views of those who hold Śānta as the negation of the other eight and holds it as the cessation of all the senses, sarva-indriya-uparama. But what exactly is the Śānta, it does not say.

How can one speak of a Rasa without a Sthāyin?

THE ANUYOGADVĀRA-SŪTRA

The Anuyogadvāra-sūtra with the Sanskrit gloss of Maladhāri Hemacandra (Āgamodaya Samiti Series) deals with the nine Rasa-s of Kāvya, pp. 134 ff. The gloss first explains the Praśānta Rasa thus:

प्रशम्यति क्रोधादिजनितास्तुक्करहितो भवत्यनेनेति प्रशान्तः । परम-
गुरुवचःश्रवणादिहेतुसमुल्लसित उपशमप्रकर्षात्मा प्रशान्तो रस इत्यलं विस्तरेण ।

The text describes and illustrates the Praśānta thus:

निदोसमणसमाहाणसंभवो जो पसंतभावेणम् ।
अविकारलक्षणो सो रसो पसंतो त्ति गायव्वो ॥
[निदोषमनःसमाधानसंभवो यः प्रशान्तभावेन ।
अविकारलक्षणः स रसः प्रशान्त इति ज्ञातव्यः ॥]

पसन्तो रसो जहा—

सवभावनिर्विगारं उवसंतपसंतसोमदिट्ठीअम् ।
ही जह मुणिणो सोहइ मुहकमलं पीवरसिरीअम् ॥

[प्रशान्तो रसो यथा—

सद्भावनिर्विकारम् उपशान्तप्रशान्तसौम्यदृष्टीकम् ।
पश्य यथा मुनेः शोभते मुखकमलं पीवरश्रीकम् ॥]

Besides this Praśānta Rasa, the commentator explains that the Vīra Rasa in the text has two sublime varieties called Tyāga-vīra and Tapo-vīra, both of which are superior to the third variety called Yuddha-vīra. It further explains that Tyāga-vīra, Tapo-vīra and the Praśānta are Rasa-s which are not brought into existence by any 'sūtra-doṣa-s' like anṛta, parahiṃsā, etc. Yuddha-vīra involves paropaghāta, destruction of others; Adbhuta is roused by 'hyperbole', atiśayokti, which is a species of falsehood. More of this later.

IV

THE STHĀYIN OF ŚĀNTA

WHEN it is said that Bharata did not speak of the Śānta Rasa, it follows that he did not mention any Sthāyin which developed into that Rasa. One of the chief arguments of those who do not accept Śānta is that Bharata did not mention its Sthāyin. Says the Locana:

ननु नास्त्येव शान्तो रसः । तस्य तु स्थाय्येव नोपदिष्टो मुनिना
इत्याशङ्क्याह ।

p. 176.

The reply to this objection to Śānta must show that not only is Śānta Rasa possible from a Sthāyin like Śama, but also that the Sthāyin is available in Bharata's text itself. So certain writers who held Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta interfered with Bharata's text. The result of this interference is seen in three places. The first two are emendations of Bharata's Anuṣṭubh-s enumerating the Rasa-s and the Sthāyin-s:

śṛṅgāra . . . bibhatsādbhutasamjñau cety aṣṭau nātye rasāḥ smṛtāḥ became śṛṅgāra . . . bibhatsādbhutaśāntāś ca rava nātye rasāḥ smṛtāḥ. And jugupsā vismayaś ceti sthāyibhāvāḥ prakīrtitāḥ was read as jugupsāvismayaśamāḥ sthāyibhāvāḥ prakīrtitāḥ.

Abhinavagupta has the following remarks on these two texts:

शान्तापलापिनस्तु अष्टाविति तत्र पठन्ति ।

तत्र शान्तस्य स्थायी 'विस्मयशमाः' इति कैश्चित् पठितः ।

GOS, vol. I, p. 269.

The third case of interference is a complete interpolation of a section on Śānta in ch. 6 (GOS, I, p. 333). The Kāvya-mālā and the Kashi editions of the NS do not have the section on Śānta in ch 6. In this interpolated section, Śama is said to be the Sthāyin of Śānta:

अथ शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावात्मको मोक्षप्रवर्तकः ।

That this section was not found in certain manuscripts and that certain recensions counted only eight Rasa-s is known from Abhinavagupta's own remarks. Abhinavagupta says:

तथा च चिरन्तनपुस्तकेषु स्थायिभावान् रसत्वमुपनेष्याम इत्यनन्तरम्
'शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावात्मकः' इत्यादिशान्तलक्षणं पठ्यते ।

GOS, I, p. 340.

This remark will make it clear that the section on Śānta Rasa is not exactly the end of chapter 6, as now found in the GOS edition, but the beginning of the section treating of all the Rasa-s, i.e. before the sub-section on Śṛṅgāra. There is no doubt on this point that the section on Śānta opened the section on Rasa-s and appeared even before Śṛṅgāra, in some old manuscripts which Abhinavagupta consulted. For Abhinavagupta makes an additional score out of this priority of Śānta in the treatment of Rasa-s. He says that it is because the Sthāyin of Śānta is Sthāyin par excellence, being the Ātman itself on which arise the comparatively less basic Sthāyin-s, Rati, etc. and because the relish in all Rasa-s, rasāsvāda, is of the form of Śānta, being alaukika, free from worldly links, Śānta is the greatest Rasa and hence it is that it is dealt with at the very beginning.

GOS, I, p. 340.

Who may be the author responsible for introducing the Śānta texts in the NS? It is not possible to say anything definite. All that we know now is that Udbhata, the earliest of the now known regular commentators on Bharata, accepts the Śānta as is seen from his KASS which however does not mention its Sthāyin. Pratihārendurāja gives the Sthāyin-s and speaks of Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

For those who believe in the genuineness of these texts on Śānta as Bharata's own, there is no difficulty in answering the objection that Śānta cannot be accepted for the reason that Bharata did not mention its Sthāyin at all. For according to them, Bharata spoke of nine Rasa-s, mentioned Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta and described Śānta as the greatest Rasa.¹

One of the main objections to Śama being accepted as the Sthāyin of Śānta is that the texts which say so cannot be relied upon as genuine because of their absence in some recensions. Also because of the fact that the Śama here spoken of would make the number of Bhāva-s fifty and Bharata gives only forty-nine. Therefore some advocates of Śānta put forward Nirveda as the Sthāyin, Nirveda being one of the forty-nine given by Bharata. These advocates of Nirveda did not, however, criticize Śama. Another objection, an imaginary one, is that Śama and Śānta are synonymous

इत्यन्तेन मध्ये शान्तः परिगृहीतः, तन्मतान्तरानुसारेण, न स्वसिद्धान्तेन। ततः परमतमप्रतिषिद्धमनुमतमेवेति नीत्यान्यैः सोऽपि समर्थितः। TSS 59, p. 17.

and the former cannot be the Sthāyin of the latter. Śama and Śānta differ even as Bhaya and Bhayānaka, Vismaya and Adbhuta and Hāsa and Hāsyā. The former is laukika, the latter alaukika. Says Abhinavagupta:

शमशान्तयोः पर्यायत्वं तु हासहास्याभ्यां व्याख्यातम् । सिद्धसाध्यतया
यदलौकिकत्वेन (लौकिकालौकिकत्वेन) साधारणासाधारणतया च वैलक्षण्यं शमशान्तयोरपि सुलभमेव । GOS, I, p. 336.

Both the above-mentioned objections to Śama are thus set forth by Abhinavagupta, earlier, as pūrvapakṣa:

एतदपरे न सहन्ते, शमशान्तयोः पर्यायत्वात् (१), एकाग्रपञ्चाशद्भावा
इति संख्यात्यागात् (२) । ibid. p. 333.

Rudraṭa comes next to Udbhaṭa in the discussion on the Sthāyin of Śānta. He mentions Śānta as
2. Samyagjñāna. a Rasa and gives its Sthāyin as Samyagjñāna. Namisādhu clearly says that Rudraṭa gives Samyagjñāna as the Sthāyin.

सम्यग्ज्ञानप्रकृतिः शान्तो विगतेच्छनायको भवति ।

सम्यग्ज्ञानं विषये तमसो रागस्य चापगमात् ॥ XVI. 15.

सम्यग्ज्ञानं स्यायिभावः (Namisādhu)

Evidently Rudraṭa did not rely on the Śānta texts in Bharata's Nṣ but was bold enough to advocate Rasa-s not mentioned by Bharata. So he left out Śama and put forward Samyagjñāna as the Sthāyin of Śānta. If Samyagjñāna means the realization of the Self, it becomes the causal antecedent of Śama. Samyagjñāna is Tattvajñāna and all writers following Bharata have given it as one of the Vibhāva-s of Śama. But Namisādhū does not make any difference between Samyagjñāna and Śama. Under Rudraṭa's verse enumerating the Rasa-s, Namisādhū enumerates the Sthāyin-s, the Vyabhicārin-s, etc. And here, he gives Śama as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

We are not able to know what Bhāva was held as Sthāyin by Lollaṭa and Śaṅkuka. Some of the views on the Sthāyin of Śānta mentioned in the Abhinavabhāratī may be the views of these two commentators. To those views we shall turn presently. Before that we shall examine the views of authors whose works are available to us. Ānandavardhana accepts the Śānta Rasa, criticizes the views of the opponents of Śānta and determines the character of this Rasa. He does not hold Śama or Nirveda as its Sthāyin but gives Trṣṇākṣayasukha as its Sthāyin. He says:

शान्तश्च तृष्णाक्षयसुखस्य यः परिपोषः तल्लक्षणो रसः प्रतीयत एव ।
तथा चोक्तम्—

‘यच्च कामसुखं लोके यच्च दिव्यं महत् सुखम् ।
तृष्णाक्षयसुखस्यैते नार्हतः षोडशीं कलाम् ॥’

Dhva. Ā, III. 176.

The Locana explains:

तृष्णानां विषयाणां यः क्षयः सर्वतोनिवृत्तिरूपः निरोधः तदेव सुखं
तस्य यः स्थायीभूतस्य परिपोषः रस्यमानताकृतः तदेव लक्षणं यस्य स
शान्तो रसः ॥

This non-acceptance of Śama shows that Ānandavardhana did not accept or follow the Śānta text in Bharata. His Sthāyin for Śānta is that happiness which is the cessation of all desires—Trṣṇā-kṣaya-sukha—and is inspired by Vyāsa, whose Mahābhārata Ānandavardhana is going to expound as a Śānta-epic in the next chapter of his work. If, however, we take this trṣṇā as an upalakṣaṇa for all Bhāva-s, this Sthāyin will become identical with the Śama or the Praśama of all citta-vṛtti-s. That this Sthāyin also will, in some way, become a form of Śama is accepted by Ānandavardhana when he distinguishes the Śānta from the Vīra in which certain opponents include the Śānta. Ānandavardhana says:

अस्य च शान्तस्य अहंकारप्रशमैकरूपतया स्थितेः । p. 177.

And the Locana here interprets ahamkāra-praśama as nirīhatva. Hemacandra, a follower of Ānandavardhana and Abhinavagupta equates Ānandavardhana's Trṣṇākṣaya with Śama:

—तृष्णाक्षयरूपः शमः स्थायिभावः चर्वणां प्राप्तः शान्तो रसः ।

Kāvyaṇuśāsana, p. 80.

The Locana informs us that there were some who, not satisfied with Trṣṇākṣayasukha, gave the

4. Sarva-cittavṛtti-praśama. complete cessation of all the citta-vṛtti-s, the modifications of the mind, as the Sthāyin.

Abhinavagupta replies that if this is meant as a negative state, it can hardly be a Bhāva; for a negative state cannot be a Bhāva; if, however, it is meant as a positive state marked by the absence of all the citta-vṛtti-s, it comes to the same thing as that state of bliss which is marked by the annihilation of all desires.

अन्ये तु सर्वचित्तवृत्तिप्रशम एवास्य स्थायीति मन्यन्ते । तच्चासत् ;
अभावस्य प्रसज्यप्रतिषेधरूपत्वे चेतोवृत्तित्वाभावेन भावत्वायोगात् । पर्युदासे तु
अस्मत्पक्ष एवायम् ॥

Locana, p. 177 (reconstructed).

There are others, the Locana continues, who quote a verse from Bharata on Śānta as the one basic Rasa of which the other Bhāva-s are transformations and hold that state of the mind when it is itself and is free from any transforming condition, as the Sthāyin of Śānta. Abhinava-gupta says that this also differs only slightly from Tṛṣṇākṣaya. While anupajāta-viśeṣa-citta-vṛtti, the state in which no modification has arisen in the mind, is a state of prāgabhāva of Tṛṣṇā, etc., Tṛṣṇākṣaya refers to a state of the pradhvaṃsābhāva, the destruction of the modifications in the form of Tṛṣṇā, etc. The extermination of Tṛṣṇā is the natural process; we see in experience the polluted citta gradually clearing.

इति भरतवाक्यं दृष्टवन्तः सर्वैरसामान्यस्वभावं शान्तमाचक्षाणा
अनुपजातविशेषान्तरं चित्तवृत्तिरूपं शान्तस्य स्थायिभावं मन्यन्ते । p. 177.

Bhoja gives Dhṛti as the Sthāyin of Śānta in his Sarasvatikanthābharaṇa, pp. 514-15:

6. Dhṛti. धृतिस्थायिभावः वस्तुतत्त्वालोचानादिभिः व्यभि-
चारिभावैः वागारम्भादिभिरनुषज्यमानः निष्पन्नः शान्त
इत्यभिगीयते ।¹ अन्ये पुनरस्य शमं प्रकृतिमामनन्ति, स तु धृतेरेव
विशेषो भवति ।

What is this Dhṛti? Dhṛti means firmness, contentment and joy. All the three are pertinent. But Bhoja means only contentment, Saṃtuṣṭi, for, his illustration is:

सर्वाः संपत्तयस्तस्य संतुष्टं यस्य मानसम् ।

उपानद्गूढपादस्य ननु चर्मास्तृतैव भूः ॥

¹ See also the Sāhityamīmāṃsā, TSS 144, p. 59, where this view of Bhoja is noted. The SM itself does not accept the Śānta.

This contentment again is not far off from Trṣṇākṣaya or Śama. Bhoja mentions here that Śama is held to be a Sthāyin by others, and says that it comes under Dhṛti. Perhaps the reason why Bhoja did not adopt Śama is that it is not found in Bharata's list of forty-nine Bhāva-s. Dhṛti is found there. Elsewhere Bhoja gives the same Śama as a variety of the Vyabhicārin called Mati: mativiśeṣaḥ śamo yathā (p. 523). Mati has a variety called Tattvajñāna which is again not different from Śama.¹ In the Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, Bhoja discards Dhṛti and holds Śama as the Sthāyin.

अत्र च शमप्रकृतिः शान्तः, etc.

Śr. Pra., Madras MS., vol. II, pp. 377-8.

Dhṛti is mentioned by Bharata as a Vyabhicārin and in chapter 7, Vijñāna, Śruti, Śauca, Ācāra and Guru-bhakti are mentioned among its Vibhāva-s. These would properly come within the scope of the Śānta Rasa. Earlier, in the first chapter itself, Bharata speaks of Dhṛti. While describing how variously drama pleases persons of differing temperaments and moods, Bharata says that drama gives Dhṛti to those whose minds are in anguish or are disturbed very much.

अर्थोपजीविनामर्थो धृतिरुद्विग्नचेतसाम् ।

GOS, I, p. 112.

This Dhṛti may refer generally to the balm-like effect that drama has. Abhinavagupta takes it as dhairya, firmness of heart. It may also refer in particular to such dramas in which the production of Dhṛti in the audience is the special purpose of the drama. Such cases would be Śānta-plays.

¹ This variety of Mati is not that which Bhoja holds as the Sthāyin for his new Udātta Rasa on p. 515, SKĀ.

Many other Bhāva-s are held as the Sthāyin of Śānta by other writers. We come to know of these from the Abhi. Bhā. We are not however given in this work the names of the writers who held those views. The first of these Bhāva-s to claim our attention is Nirveda. Almost the only reason why certain writers hold Nirveda as the Sthāyin of Śānta is their necessity to show the opponents of Śānta Rasa that the Sthāyin of Śānta is surely found in Bharata. They are not for holding to Śāma, a Bhāva not to be found among Bharata's forty-nine Bhāva-s. While Bhoja tried for some time to get over the difficulty by picking out Dhṛti from the forty-nine, there were earlier writers who took the very first Vyabhicārin, Nirveda, and proposed to treat it as a Bhāva which was both Vyabhi-cārin and Sthāyin. The Abhi. Bhā. says:

तत्त्वज्ञानजो निर्वेदोऽस्य स्थायी । एतदर्थमेव उभयधर्मोपजीवित्व-
स्यापनाय अमङ्गलभूतोऽप्यसौ पूर्वं निर्दिष्टः । GOS, I, pp. 269-70.

या चासौ तथाभूता (मोक्षाभिधानपरमपुरुषार्थोचिता) चित्तवृत्तिः
सैवात्र (शान्ते) स्थायिभावः । एतत्तु चिन्त्यम्, किं नामासौ? तत्त्वज्ञानो-
त्थितो निर्वेद इति केचित् । तथा हि—दारिद्र्यादिप्रभवो यो निर्वेदः
ततोऽन्य एव, हेतोस्तत्त्वज्ञानस्य वैलक्षण्यात् । स्थायिसंचारिमध्ये च एतदर्थ-मेवायं पठितः, अन्यथा माङ्गलिको मुनिः तथा न पठेत् । ibid. p. 334.

The problem that has to be faced first is the postulation of Śānta as a Rasa. The first objection against it is that Bharata has not given its Sthāyin. To answer this criticism, certain advocates of Śānta say that Bharata has given the Sthāyin of Śānta in his text: it is Nirveda. But how did these advocates of Śānta discover that it was Nirveda? Bharata does not say so; Bharata gives it as a Vyabhicāribhāva, the first among them. The reply is that Bharata's mention of Nirveda at the head of the Vyabhicārin-s and immediately after the Sthāyin-s, has a meaning. Nirveda is a dislike for objects and as such, is inauspicious, amaṅgala. The sage Bharata is one whose utterances are auspicious, and so his mention of Nirveda as the first among the Bhāva-s is to suggest to us to explore a hidden meaning (amaṅgalaṃ sat jñāpayati). It is to show to us that though it is inauspicious, it is given as the first, since, while being a Vyabhicārin, it is also a Sthāyin—the Sthāyin of the Rasa called Śānta. If it were not for the suggestion of this purpose Bharata would not have given the inauspicious Nirveda first. Then arises the question: Is Nirveda itself the Sthāyin? Nirveda is born of broken love, poverty or many more causes. What variety of it exactly is the Sthāyin of Śānta? Bharata describes Nirveda thus in chapter 7:

तत्र निर्वेदो नाम दारिद्र्यव्याध्यवमानाधिक्षेपाक्रुष्टक्रोधताडन-इष्टजन-
वियोगतत्त्वज्ञानादिभिः विभावैः उत्पद्यते । GOS, I, p. 357.

Bharata here mentions many causes which produce Nirveda. One of these varieties of Nirveda is that born of Tattvajñāna. It is Nirveda towards all mundane things. This Nirveda alone is relevant in a consideration of the Śānta Rasa. It is this Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna that is held as the Sthāyin of Śānta by those who are anxious to have the authority of Bharata. But how can a Vyabhicārin become a Sthāyin? It is said that only such Nirveda as is born of broken love, poverty, etc. is Vyabhicārin. The same Nirveda when it is born of Tattvajñāna and shuns all mundane things becomes the permanent Sthāyin. Says Śārṅgadeva:

स्थायी स्याद्विषयेष्वेव तत्त्वज्ञानोद्भवो यदि ।

इष्टानिष्टवियोगासिद्धस्तु व्यभिचार्यसौ ॥ SR, VII. 1366-7.

Such Nirveda becomes greater not only than other kinds of Nirveda but also than all the other Sthāyin-s and Vyabhi-cārin-s all of which it subordinates. Says Abhinavagupta while expounding the case for Nirveda:

तत्त्वज्ञानजश्च निर्वेदः स्थाय्यन्तरोपमर्दकः । भाववैचित्र्यसहिष्णुभ्यो
रत्यादिभ्यः यः परमः स्थायिशीलः स एव हि स्थाय्यन्तराणामुपमर्दकः ।

GOS, I, p. 334.

It is this anyopamardaka Sthāyin type of Nirveda that is taken.

Mammaṭa accepts Nirveda as the Sthāyin.

निर्वेदस्य अमङ्गलप्रायस्य प्रथममनुपादेयत्वेऽपि उपादानं व्यभिचारि-
त्वेऽपि स्थायित्वामिधानार्थम् । तेन—

निर्वेदस्यायिभावाख्यः शान्तोऽपि नवमो रसः ।

Mammaṭa does not say that this Nirveda is amaṅgala, but says it is amaṅgala-prāya. As a matter of fact, Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna is the greatest maṅgala. Says Bhaṭṭa Gopāla in his gloss here:

तत्त्वचिन्तायां तु निर्वेदस्य न किञ्चिदमङ्गलप्रायत्वम्, प्रत्युत मङ्गल-
प्रायत्वमित्याह ।

K. Pra., TSS ed., p. 138.

This shows how trivial this argument for Śānta based on maṅgalavāda is. Another difficulty in this argument of maṅgala-amaṅgala is the question why there should be any maṅgala when the enumeration of the Vyabhi-cārin-s begins. No doubt, there is the use of madhya-maṅgala among writers, but why should that madhya-maṅgala be at the beginning of the Vyabhicārin-s? Another argument advanced by the advocates of Nirveda is that it is in the position of a lamp on the door-step, a dehalī-dīpa, shedding light on either side of the door. Being enumerated at the end of the eight Sthāyin-s and at the beginning of the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s, it has to be taken, according to the implied idea of Bharata, that Nirveda among the Vyabhicārin-s must once be taken with the preceding items, the Sthāyin-s, and then with the succeeding items, the Vyabhicārin-s. This is also an argument without weight. For there are other Vyabhicārin-s which are also Sthāyin-s, as for instance, Amarṣa which as Krodha is the Sthāyin of Raudra, and Viṣāda which as Śoka is the Sthāyin of Karuṇa. These are not brought to the front and enumerated at the beginning along with Nirveda.

Another possible objection to having Nirveda as Sthāyin, in addition to its being a Vyabhicārin, is that a Bhāva which Bharata has definitely mentioned as a Vyabhicārin cannot be taken as a Sthāyin also. But to this the reply advanced is that Bharata himself gives a hint, taking which it can be proved that the status of Sthāyitva, Vyabhicāritva and Sāttvikatva of the forty-nine Bhāva-s does not belong only to those given under those names but that any of the forty-nine may, according to the circumstances, become any of the three. This is the pre-Abhinavagupta view of the nature of the forty-nine Bhāva-s and of the names Sthāyin, Vyabhicārin and Sāttvika. As a consequence of this view there developed a tendency which expressed itself, from the times of Rudraṭa and Lollaṭa up to the time of Bhoja, that Rasa-s are not eight or nine only, but forty-nine. The hint mentioned above and referred to by these theorists is contained in Bharata's text on the Vyabhicārin-s of Rati where he mentions Jugupsā, a Sthāyin, as one among the prohibited.

व्यभिचारिणश्चास्य आलस्यौग्रचजुगप्सावर्जाः ।

GOS, I, p. 307.

This means that Bharata himself suggests that Sthāyin-s may become Vyabhicārin-s and Vyābhicārin-s, Sthāyin-s. This view is stated as follows by Abhinavagupta, as pūrvapakṣa:

जुगप्सां च व्यभिचारित्वेन शृङ्गारे निषेधन्मुनिः भावानां सर्वेषामेव
स्थायित्वसंचारित्वचिन्तनात्तावत्त्व-(चित्तजत्व)¹ अनुभावत्वानि योग्यतोपनिपतितानि
शब्दार्थबलाकृष्टानि अनुजानाति ।² Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 334.

Abhinavagupta criticizes this view. He does not accept the Nirveda born of Tattvajñāna as the Sthāyin of Śānta.³ If such Nirveda as is born of Tattvajñāna is the Sthāyin, it means that Tattvajñāna is the Vibhāva. The other Vibhāva-s given, namely Vairāgya, Samādhi, etc. are not Vibhāva-s strictly. If they are included as Vibhāva-s because they are causes producing Tattvajñāna, they are really the causes of the cause. The cause of the cause is never called Vibhāva. Further, Nirveda itself is an aversion towards all objects and is not different from Vairāgya. Far from being the product of Tattvajñāna, Nirveda is one of the causes bringing about Tattvajñāna, for one having aversion to

² Cf. Vyaktiviveka, TSS ed., p. 13.

³ But in one of the earlier contexts in his Locana on the Dhva. Ā., Abhinavagupta mentions Nirveda as the Sthāyin of Śānta. While commenting on a verse of his own illustrating a variety of Ākṣepa, Abhinavagupta says:

असत्पुरुषसेवा तदैक्यकृतोद्वेगात्मनः शान्तरसस्थायिभूतनिर्बेदविभावानु-
भावरूपतया चमत्कृतित्वम् ।

mundane things strives after Mokṣa and acquires Tattvajñāna. It is well known that Mokṣa is directly attained through Tattvajñāna and it is not true to say that one attains Tattvajñāna first, then feels aversion, Vairāgya, and then attains Mokṣa. Īśvarakṛṣṇa also says that Vairāgya is not the final stage preceding Mokṣa, that Vairāgya at best results only in Prakṛti-laya in the absence of Tattvajñāna. Tattvajñāna alone results in Mokṣa.

वैराग्यात् प्रकृतिलयः ।

Sāṃkhyakārikā, 45.

Says the Vṛtti of Gauḍapāda here:

यथा कस्यचिद् वैराग्यमस्ति, न तत्त्वज्ञानम्, तस्मादज्ञानपूर्वा-
द्वैराग्यात् प्रकृतिलयः । मृतः अष्टासु प्रकृतिषु प्रधानबुद्ध्यहंकारतन्मात्रेषु
लीयते, न मोक्षः ॥

It may be said that Tattvajñāna strengthens Vairāgya and increases it. Patañjali also says that Vairāgya towards guṇa-s results from Tattvajñāna (puruṣakhyāti): tatparam puruṣakhyāter guṇavaitṛṣṇyam (Yogasūtra, I. 16). But Vyāsa, in his Bhāṣya on this sūtra, says that such Vairāgya is really Jñāna: jñānasyaiva parā kāṣṭhā vairāgyam (Ānandāśrama ed., p. 20). Therefore it comes to Tattvajñāna strengthening and increasing itself from stage to stage. The result is: there is no Nirveda as Sthāyin but only Tattvajñāna. That is the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Surely Bharata speaks in chapter 7 (Bhāvādhyāya), while describing Nirveda, of the Nirveda that is born of Tattvajñāna. This Tattvajñāna or Samyagjñāna and the Nirveda born of it do not refer to Śānta Rasa and its Sthāyin but refer only to the ordinary and common Nirveda born of realizing that one has made a mistake, and wasted energy in a worthless cause through mistake, as in serving a miser who would not pay: vrthā dugdho 'naḍvān, etc. Such Nirveda can only be a Bhāva.

The advocate of Nirveda quotes now Akṣapāda against Patañjali. Akṣapāda, he states, says in his Nyāya-sūtra, I. 1. 2, that the removal of mithyājñāna, i.e. the appearance of Tattvajñāna, produces the destruction of doṣa, i.e. produces Vairāgya. Thus Tattvajñāna-ja Nirveda or Tattvajñāna-ja Vairāgya is the Sthāyin. This Nirveda or Vairāgya is the final stage and not Tattvajñāna which is only one of the causes of Vairāgya. The reply to this is thus given in the Abhi. Bhā.: Surely Akṣapāda speaks of Vairāgya, but who said Vairāgya is Nirveda? Nirveda is an attitude of aversion and a continued sadness and, as such, is hardly identical with Vairāgya. Mokṣa, for which we are now postulating the Rasa (the Śānta), is a state of kaivalya in which there is neither the sorrow nor the joy of this earth. Vairāgya is the cessation of rāga and dveṣa, and is not identical with Nirveda. Even if we accept that Nirveda is Vairāgya, it does not follow from Gautama's words that Vairāgya or Nirveda is the Sthāyin of Śānta. According to the sūtra of Gautama:

दुःखजन्मप्रवृत्तिदोषमिथ्याज्ञानानामुत्तरोत्तरापाये तदनन्तरापायादपवर्गः,

it is not the immediately preceding condition of mukti. From Vairāgya, activity (pravṛtti) must stop; from cessation of activity, birth must end and when birth ends, misery flies away; when misery has fled, it is mukti.

Lastly, there is no good reason why one should take so much trouble: qualify it as Nirveda born of Tattvanjñāna and call it Vairāgya and hold on to Nirveda. Such a cumbersome and elaborately described Nirveda is only another name for the simple Śānta which can be the Sthāyin of Śānta.

Other views on the Sthāyin of Śānta are also available in the Abhi. Bhā. Certain writers held
 8. Utsāha. Utsāha, the Sthāyin of Vīra, as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. Abhinavagupta says:

p. 269.¹

How did some writers come to hold Utsāha as the Sthāyin of Śānta? Utsāha, as given by Bharata, is the Sthāyin of Vīra. It is said that there are three or four varieties of Vīra, Dharma-vīra, Yuddha-vīra, Dāna-vīra and Dayā-vīra. The variety named Dayā-vīra, or the more comprehensive Dharma-vīra, as portrayed in the acts of sacrifice of Bodhisattva-s and as dramatized by Harṣa in his Nāgānanda is very much akin to Śānta. So much so that some antagonists of Śānta say that there is no need for a ninth Rasa named Śānta and that the situations in discussion come under Dharma-vīra or Dayā-vīra.

Śārṅgadeva, SR, VII. 1363-4.

² In reply to these critics of Śānta who hold that there is no need for a new Rasa like Śānta when there is Dayā-vīra, Abhinavagupta says that Bharata gave only three varieties of Vīra,

Further, the path to attain Mokṣa is one of strenuous effort and the Yogin's fights and victories in the realm of the spirit have always been described in the image of heroism. Cf. the description of Aja and Raghu in canto VIII of the Raghuvamśa (vv. 19-23; from anayat prabhuśaktisaṃpadā to itī śatruṣu cendriyeṣu ca). Subrahmaṇya explains at length in his commentary, the Praudha-prakāśa, on the Prabodhacandrodaya (Madras MS.),¹ how Śānta-Rasa is portrayed in the play in the Samāsokti of Vīra. In a verse quoted by Avatārakavī in his commentary on his own Īśvaraśataka,² a Vīra is defined in terms of a saint.

वीतरागभयद्वेषो रहितः सर्वसंशयैः ।

सर्वभूतानुकम्पी च वीर इत्युच्यते बुधैः ॥

In fact, the saint has been called a Mahā-vīra. Thinking on these lines perhaps, certain advocates of Śānta who were exercised about finding a Sthāyin for Śānta from among the Dāna-vīra, Dharma-vīra and Yuddha-vīra and that one cannot create a new Vīra. Dayā-vīra is only a new name for Śānta.

² KM Guccaka IV, under verse 24.

Bhāva-s mentioned by Bharata, chose Utsāha. They intended to improve upon the position of those who took hold of Nirveda, who made the mistake of voting a Vyabhi-cārin to a Sthāyin's place and hence felt their position beset with many difficulties. They had to resort to quibbling with auspiciousness-inauspiciousness, dehalidīpa-nyāya, etc. The sponsors of Utsāha, like those of Rati and Jugupsā to whom we shall come presently, had the advantage of fixing one of the eight Sthāyin-s mentioned by Bharata as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. But then arose the problem: How could one Bhāva beget two Rasa-s? The difficulty was overcome by accepting varieties of the same Sthāyin. It was even as Nirveda being made into a special species called Tattva-jñāna-ja Nirveda, Nirveda born of the knowledge of Truth. Hāsa also has many varieties. Rati is divided into Saṃbhoga and Vipralambha.

The writers who held Utsāha as the Sthāyin of Śānta built on sand. They knew not what they were doing. The opponents at once undermined them by suggesting the inclusion of Śānta in Vīra. One of the main pūrvapakṣa-s to Śānta is the possibility of its inclusion in one of the eight Rasa-s mentioned by Bharata. Ānandavardhana mentions this objection and replies:

न तस्य वीरेऽन्तर्भावः कर्तुं युक्तः । तस्य अभिमानमयत्वेन व्यवस्था-
पनात् । अस्य च अहंकारप्रशमैकरूपतया स्थितेः, etc.

तयोश्च एवंविधविशेषसद्भावेऽपि यद्यैक्यं परिकल्प्यते, तद्वीररौद्रयोरपि
तथा प्रसङ्गः ।

Dhva. Ā., pp. 177-8.

The Daśarūpakāvaloka says:

अन्ये तु वीरवीर्यसादौ अन्तर्भावं वर्णयन्ति ।

p. 117.

The real position of the Bhāva called Utsāha is this: Utsāha closely attends upon Ahaṁkāra without which there cannot be any activity. No Rasa is possible without these two elements. Bhoja pursues this line and discovers his Ahaṁkāra theory of Rasa. But according to the rule of predominance, prādhānya-nyāya, it is Vīra Rasa to which this Utsāha is connected most. This Vīra is held to have four varieties, Yuddha, Dharma, Dāna and Dayā Vīra-s. Of this Yuddha-vīra is Vīra proper. Utsāha is however Sthāyin of the other three varieties also. This Utsāha is the very basis of all action and as such can be seen in some varieties of Śānta. Two such varieties are Dayā-vīra and Dharma-vīra which are really names of two aspects of Śānta. Śānta is a wider field; it includes Dayā and Dharma but is not included in or exhausted by these two. Numerous are the religions and paths of action towards spiritual realization. Why these two Vīra-s, Dayā and Dharma, only? Dāna-vīra can be a form of Śānta. Dāna may stand for Tyāga also. Tyāgenaike amṛta-tvam ānaśuḥ says the Upaniṣad. Even Yuddha-vīra can be a form of Śānta: there are those who fight religious crusades for the defence of their faith. Similarly there can be a variety of Śānta called Pāṇḍitya-vīra which Jagannātha humorously introduces.¹ Study of texts, learning their true import and

¹ Rasagaṅgādhara, K.M., ed., pp. 37-42:

वस्तुतस्तु बहवो वीररसस्य शृङ्गारस्येव प्रकारा निरूपयितुं शक्यन्ते (p. 51)..
Jagannātha mentions besides the four old Vīra-s, Satya-vīra, Pāṇḍitya-vīra, Kṣamā-vīra and Bala-vīra. The Mahābhārata mentions numerous varieties of Vīra, while describing Dāna. Bhīṣma says in the Dānadharma-parvan in the Anuśāsana. (Kumbhakonam ed.), vv. 22-7:

शूरा बहुविधाः प्रोक्ताः तेषामर्थीस्तु मे शृणु ।

propagation of their teachings form part of Śānta activities. These produce Pāṇḍitya-vīra in the prophet who has to meet and win adversaries in debate. So also there is Kṣamā-vīra which also Jagannātha points out. Kṣamā is a virtue of very great importance in Śānta. Utsāha therefore is not Śānta; Śānta comprehends many kinds of Utsāha; that is, several kinds of sublimating Utsāha-s are Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta. Dayā-Utsāha, Dāna-Utsāha, etc. are very frequent and are intimately related Vyabhicārin-s in Śānta. Even the Yogin who has realized Truth and has become, like God, kṛta-kṛtya and avāpta-samasta-kāma, one having accomplished everything, has no more personal objective to be gained, has yet embodied existence in this world as a jīvanmukta and naturally, like God, he also withdraws not from untainting action for the good of the world. The Lord says:

न मे पार्थास्ति कर्तव्यं त्रिषु लोकेषु किञ्चन ।

नानवाप्तमवाप्तव्यं वर्त एव च कर्मणि ॥

Bhagavad-gītā. III. 22-4.

यज्ञशूरा दमे शूराः सत्यशूरास्तथा परे ।
 युद्धशूरास्तथैवोक्ता दानशूराश्च मानवाः ॥
 बुद्धिशूरास्तथैवान्ये क्षमाशूरास्तथा परे ।
 सांख्यशूराश्च बहवो योगशूरास्तथा परे ॥
 अरण्ये गृहवासे च त्यागे शूरास्तथा परे ।
 आर्जवे च तथा शूराः शमे वर्तन्ति मानवाः ॥
 तैस्तैश्च नियमैः शूरा बहवः सन्ति चा परे ।
 वेदाध्ययनशूराश्च शूराश्चाध्यापने रताः ॥
 गुरुशुश्रूषया शूराः पितृशुश्रूषया परे ।
 मातृशुश्रूषया शूरा भैक्ष्यशूरास्तथा परे ॥
 अरण्ये गृहवासे च शूराश्चातिथिपूजने ।
 सर्वे यान्ति परान् लोकान् स्वकर्मफलनिर्जितान् ॥

Thus the Utsāha of such selfless activities as Dāna-vīra, Dayā-vīra, Dharma-vīra, etc. is an intimate accessory (and only an accessory) in Śānta. Says Abhinavagupta:

स्वात्मनि च कृतकृत्यस्य परार्थघटनायामेव उद्यम इति उत्साहोऽस्य
परोपकारविषयेच्छाप्रयत्नरूपो दयापरपर्यायः अभ्यधिकोऽन्तरङ्गः । अत एव
तत् केचित् दयावीरत्वेन व्यपदिशन्ति, अन्ये धर्मवीरत्वेन ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 338.

There is a saying that for those who would have this world, there is no hope for the other. Only he who discards all mundane things can walk to salvation. For this, he must cultivate the feeling of disgust or loathing towards the things of this world. This is the Bhāva of Jugupsā.¹ Some hold this to be most important in Śānta and propose it for the place of the Sthāyin:

जुगुप्सेति केचित् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 262.

Bhaṭṭa Tauta has made some contribution with regard to this Jugupsā and its relation to Śānta. In verses 97-102, chapter 6, Bharata speaks of the varieties in each of the eight Rasa-s and here he says of Bibhatsa:

बीभत्सः क्षोभणः शुद्ध उद्वेगी स्याद् द्वितीयकः ।

विष्ठाकृमिभिरुद्वेगी क्षोभणो रुधिरादिजः ॥ (101)

Bibhatsa is of two kinds, Kṣobhaṇa and Udvegī. But in the first line, there is an additional word śuddha. Commentators took it as qualifying Kṣobhaṇa and they distinguished the Udvegī variety as aśuddha. But Bhaṭṭa Tauta said that

Bibhatsa is of three kinds: Kṣobhaṇa, Śuddha and Udvegī. The GOS edition gives a reading here which has syāt tṛtīyakaḥ for syād dvitīyakaḥ. Tauta explains Śuddha-Jugupsā as disgust at the so-called pleasures of the world. Such Jugupsā is illustrated by poems of Vairāgya in which sense-enjoyments are denounced. This is a very powerful aid to Mokṣa.¹ When assailed by passions and tempted by evil, Patañjali asks us to contemplate on the other side of the pleasures, the attendant misery, etc. and begin to loathe them.

रुधिरान्त्रादिदर्शनाद्यो बीभत्सः (स) क्षोभणत्वाच्छुद्धः । यस्तु विष्टादिभ्यः
स उद्वेगी हृदयं चलयति, सोऽशुद्धः, अशुद्धविभावकत्वात् ।

उपाध्यायस्त्वाह—बीभत्सस्तावत् विभावविशेषात् यत्र तु संसार-
नाश्वनायकरागप्रतिपक्षतया² मोक्षसाधनत्वात् शुद्धः, यदाहुः—‘शौचात्
स्वाङ्गजुगुप्सा’ (योगसूत्रम्, २. ४०) इति । तथा ‘वितर्कबाधने प्रतिपक्ष-
भावनम्’ इति (योगसूत्रम्, २. ३३) । तेन सोऽपि (बीभत्सोऽपि)
परमार्थतस्त्रिविध एव ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 332.

But Tauta did not have the reading syāt tṛtīyakaḥ, for he interprets the text syād dvitīyakaḥ. He says that though there are really three kinds, Bharata speaks of two, because of the rarity of persons having the Śuddha-Jugupsā.

द्वितीयक इत्यनेन तस्य दुर्लभत्वेन अप्राचुर्यं सूचयति । ibid., p. 332.

² The meaning is that Rāga or desire is the Nāyaka or the prime player in the drama of life (saṁsāra-nāṭya) and the Śuddha or pure variety of Jugupsā or disgust is that which a special or rare character develops towards that Rāga.

So it is that some critics who do not want a separate Śānta say that, even as it is possible to include it in Vīra, it is possible to include it in Bībhatsa. The Daśarūpakāvaloka says:

अन्ये तु वीरबीभत्सादौ अन्तर्भावं वर्णयन्ति ।

The reply to this is the same as to the argument which sought to include Śānta in Vīra. Just as Utsāha is a very prominent accessory of Śānta, Jugupsā also is. This Śuddha-Jugupsā may be a prominent Vyabhicārin; but Śānta is not of the form of Jugupsā. The Locana says:

आदिग्रहणेन विषयजुगुप्सरूपत्वात् बीभत्सेऽन्तर्भावः शक्यते ।
सा त्वस्य व्यभिचारिणी भवति, न तु स्थायितामेति । p. 178.

The Abhi. Bhā. says:

केवलं यथा विप्रलम्भे औत्सुक्यम्, संभोगेऽपि वा 'प्रेमासमाप्तो-
त्सवम्' इति, यथा च रौद्रे औग्र्यम्, यथा च करुणवीरभयानकाद्भुतेषु
निर्वेदधृतित्रासहर्षाः व्यभिचारिणोऽपि प्राधान्येनावभासन्ते तथा शान्ते जुगु- प्साद्याः, सर्वथैव रागप्रतिपक्षत्वात् । p. 338.

Another interesting view is that which regards the first Sthāyin, Rati, itself as the Sthāyin of Śānta

10. Rati. Rasa. This view also arose out of the necessity to choose one of the Sthāyin-s mentioned by Bharata himself as the Sthāyin of Śānta also. This view also makes a fine approach to Śānta and is an appreciation of an aspect of the fundamental nature of Śānta. Truth whose realization is salvation is of the nature of Self which is Ātman. It has to be realized by piercing the veil of things which are an-ātman and which shroud the Ātman. Things which are an-ātman must be loathed and this loathing of an-ātman led to the Jugupsā-view. The Rati-view is closely related to the Jugupsā-view; for when an-ātman is loathed, Ātman has to be loved. This love of Ātman, Ātma-rati, is the Sthāyin of Śānta. When one realizes Ātman everywhere, his love floods the universe; Jugupsā then flies away; for there is none besides or beyond Ātman to be shunned then:

यस्तु सर्वाणि भूतानि आत्मन्येवानुपश्यति ।

सर्वभूतेषु चात्मानं ततो न विजुगुप्सते ॥ Īśāvāsyaopaniṣad, 6.

Like Śuddha-Jugupsā, this is Śuddha-rati, a superior love, distinct from the Rati of man for woman. Bhoja pursued this idea of Ātma-rati and arrived at the philosophical summit of the Śṛṅgāra theory of one Rasa:

ज्ञेयो रसः स रसनीयतया आत्मरक्तेः । *Śr. Pra.*¹

The Abhi. Bhā. records the Rati-view thus:

तत्र अनाहतानन्दमयस्वात्मविषया रतिरेव मोक्षसाधनमिति सैव शान्ते
स्थायिनीति । यथोक्तम्—

यश्चात्मरतिरेव स्यादात्मतृप्तश्च मानवः ।

आत्मन्येव च संतुष्टः तस्य कार्यं न विद्यते ॥ इति

(Bhagavad-gītā, III. 17.²)

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 335.

Further, Rati has this additional qualification for being the Sthāyin of Śānta, since the final state of Mokṣa is one of ānanda and the Self which is realized is itself of the form of bliss.

¹ See my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa, 1963, pp. 456-7 and 503-4.

paniṣad, III. 1. 4: आत्मक्रीड आत्मरतिः ।

This Rati sails in the same boat as Utsāha and Jugupsā. Only it seems to be more intimate to Śānta, a Vyabhicārin of greater importance. Not only Ātma-rati, but Rati for a personal God, which is called Bhakti and is proposed as a separate Rasa, comes under Śānta. The Śānta has had a love-treatment at the hands of some poets and theorists.

अत एव ईश्वरप्रणिधानविषये भक्तिश्रद्धे स्मृतिमतिवृत्त्युत्साहानुप्रविष्टे
अन्यथैवाङ्गमिति न तयोः पृथग्रसत्त्वेन गणनम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 340.

On the same grounds on which Utsāha, Jugupsā and Rati were proposed, the other Sthāyin-s can also be proposed as Sthāyin-s of Śānta. Only they have to be shorn of their ordinary Vibhāva-s, etc. and made a superior and extra-ordinary variety (vicitra) with Vibhāva-s like Śruta. Any one of these eight vicitra Sthāyin-s can be called the Sthāyin of Śānta. Abhinavagupta says:

अन्ये मन्यन्ते रत्यादय एवाष्टौ चित्तवृत्तिविशेषा उक्ताः । त एव
कथितविभावविविक्त(तया) श्रुताद्यलौकिकविभावविशेषसंश्रयाः विचित्रा एव
तावत् । ततश्च तन्मध्याद् एव अन्यतमोऽत्र स्थायी ।

It is in accordance with this view that some hold a variety of Vira, Dayā or Dharma, Jugupsā for the world called Śuddha-Jugupsā and Rati towards the Self called Ātma-Rati as the Sthāyin-s of Śānta. Abhinavagupta elaborates in his pūrvapakṣa that others among the eight Sthāyin-s have equal claim to be the Sthāyin.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I. pp. 336-7 (corrected).

It is often said that for the thinking man, the world is a comedy. Man's pursuit after trifles, his asthāne mahattva-sambhāvanā, produces laughter in those who know the real value of the things of the world. To the Yogin, man's action and sentiment appear as karma-ābhāsa and bhāva-ābhāsa. Says Bhaṭṭa Bhallaṭa in a fine verse:

एतत् तस्य मुखात् कियत् कमलिनीपत्रे कर्णं पाथसः

यन्मुक्तामणिरित्यमंस्त स जडः शृण्वेतदस्मादपि ।

अङ्गुल्यग्रनखक्रियाप्रविलयिन्यादीयमाने शनैः

कुत्रोड्डीय गतो हहेत्यनुदिनं निद्राति नान्तःशुचा ॥

So much on behalf of the importance of Hāsa in Śānta.

¹ Hāsa.

² Śoka.

³ Krodha.

⁴ Utsāha.

⁵ Bhaya.

⁶ Jugupsā.

⁷ Vismaya.

It is but a thin line that divides comedy from tragedy.¹ To the feeling man, the same world is a tragedy. The Yogin pities the poor samsārin, caught in the whirlpool of passion. Thus Śoka seems to dominate in Śānta. The seeking Yogin, the yatamāna, who strives towards his goal, considers the world and its temptations as his enemy; he becomes angry at them and desires to do away with them. This attitude is Krodha and Raudra. The same attitude begets fear of the temptations from which the seeker desires to fly. This is Bhaya. He reads of or listens to an exposition of the greatness, the omniscience, omnipresence, blissfulness and other aspects of the nature of the Self and when he contemplates this wonderful truth about his own Self, he is thrilled and struck with the wonders of the world of the Spirit. This is Vismaya. As explained already, he loathes the so-called pleasures of the world and then Jugupsā forms the prominent attitude. In this manner, these seven Sthāyin-s can claim to be the Sthāyin-s of Śānta.

The very possibility of each or all of the eight Sthāyin-s being the Sthāyin of Śānta prevents any one of them being the settled Sthāyin of Śānta. It cannot also be held that, according to circumstances, the Sthāyin varies in Śānta. A Rasa with many Sthāyin-s is foreign to the theory of Rasa and is an impossibility. Many Sthāyin-s can only imply many Rasa-s. If by virtue of the unity of the object, i.e. Mokṣa, a plurality of Sthāyin-s is accepted as resulting only in one Rasa, it can be pointed out that in view of both Vīra and Raudra resulting in the same end, the destruction of the enemy, Vīra and Raudra can be made into one Rasa.

Therefore, neither any one nor all of the eight Sthāyin-s can be put forward as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

The real significance of this view however lies in another direction. It points to the fact that any or all of the other Sthāyin-s become, in their vicitra varieties, Vyabhicārin-s of Śānta and in their ordinary varieties the causes of Śānta. One may pass to Śama from Rati or Śoka; as a result of broken love, or the death of a beloved person; one may seek solace in Śama. Aśoka fought the Kalinga-s and passed from Vīra to Śānta. Therefore any of the eight Rasa-s or all of them can be the Uddīpaka of Śānta. Therefore it is that Śārṅgadeva says: Śama is present in all the Rasa-s.

शमः सर्वरसेष्वस्ति स्थैर्यत्वेऽव्यभिचार्यसौ । (SR, VII. 3535)

A lull in the play of any Bhāva can occur in a temporary way; it may be recalled that Alamkāra texts deal with and illustrate phases of a feeling, as rising (udaya), subsiding (prāśama), mixture with others (śabalatā). This transitory Śama of a Bhāva, if it is of an enduring character, sthairya, would cease to be a mere Vyabhicārin and would take characteristics entitling it to become the basis of Śānta.

Kallinātha, in his comments upon the statement of Śārṅgadeva quoted above, says:

अयमर्थः—लोके शृङ्गारादिषु अष्टसु मध्ये यं कंचन रसमनुभवत्
एव पुंसो जन्मान्तरसुकृतविशेषवशात् शम उत्पद्यत इति तत्तद्रससंबन्धात्
शमस्य सर्वरसेषु अस्तित्वम् इति ।

It is perhaps in this sense that Amṛtānanda, in his Alamkārasaṃgraha, considers Śānta to be above all Rasa-s, with neither friend nor foe among them.

शान्तः सर्वोत्तरस्तस्य न मैत्री न विरोधिता । Adyar ed., p. 22.

The next view is a reply to the criticism of the above-given view which proposed any one of the 12. All the eight Sthāyin-s together. eight Sthāyin-s as the Sthāyin of Śānta. This view suggests that all the eight can be considered as constituting together the Sthāyin, taking Śānta as a peculiar case.

सर्वे इत्येके । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 269.

अन्ये तु पानकरसवत् अविभागं प्राप्ताः सर्वे एव रत्यादयोऽत्र स्थायिन इत्याहुः । चित्तवृत्तीनामयुगपद्भावात्, अन्योन्यं च विरोधात् एतदपि न मनोज्ञम् । ibid. p. 332.

It is true that as pūrvapakṣa, the whole of this complex world is involved in Śānta; but all these form only Vyabhicārīn-s. Says Abhinavagupta:

तत्त्वज्ञानलक्षणस्य च स्थायिनः समस्तोऽयं लौकिकालौकिकचित्तवृत्तिकलापो व्यभिचारितामभ्येति । ibid. p. 338.

Rasa is developed from one and only one Sthāyin; if many Bhāva-s appear, they can do so only as Vyabhicārīn-s. The analogy of pānaka-rasa must not be introduced here. These Bhāva-s contradict each other and cannot co-exist at the same time. How could they function together to produce a common Rasa?

So, what is the real Sthāyin of Śānta? Abhinavagupta

13. Siddhānta: holds that Tattvajñāna or Ātma-svarūpa Ātman, Ātmajñāna itself is the Sthāyin of Śānta. He briefly or Tattvajñāna. states it thus in his Abhi. Bhā.:

कस्तर्ह्यत्र स्थायी? उच्यते—इह तत्त्वज्ञानमेव तावन्मोक्षसाधनमिति तस्यैव मोक्षे स्थायिता युक्ता । तत्त्वज्ञानं च नाम आत्मज्ञानमेव ।

तेन आत्मैव ज्ञानानन्दादिविशुद्धधर्मयोगी परिकल्पितविषयोपभोग-
रहितोऽत्र स्थायी । GOS, I, p. 337.

Earlier also he says:

ततः त्रिवर्गात्मकप्रवृत्तिधर्मविपरीतनिवृत्तिधर्मात्मको मोक्षफलः शान्तः ।
तत्र स्यात्मावेशेन रसचर्वणेन्युक्तम् । ibid., p. 269.

Tattvajñāna or knowledge of Ātman is the direct cause or is itself Mokṣa. Therefore Ātmajñāna or the very nature of the Soul or Self which is itself of the form of Knowledge and Bliss—jñāna and ānanda—is the Sthāyin. This Ātman is Sthāyin not in the same sense in which Rati, etc. are; it is Sthāyin par excellence. It is the basis and the root of all other Sthāyin-s. It is upon the substratum of this ultimate Sthāyin that, as a result of sense-contacts with external objects of the world, the other eight Sthāyin-s are created. Behind Rati, Hāsa, etc. is the eternal Ātman. Rati and other Sthāyin-s rise and fall but Ātman endures through all of them, sthāyi-tama; Rati and the other Sthāyin-s become its Vyābhicārin-s. (Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 337.)

Therefore it is, says Abhinavagupta, that Bharata does not mention this Śānta Rasa and its Sthāyin, Ātman. For, it belongs to a higher plane and it would have been inappropriate if Bharata had given it among Rati and the rest. It is the very basis of Rati, etc. which are not possible without it. Hence there is no need to mention specially what is undeniably implied.

अत एव पृथगस्य गणना न युक्ता ।

ibid., I, p. 337.

Bhaṭṭa Gopāla adds that Bharata abstained from indicating the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Śānta, not because he did not accept this Rasa, but because of its super-mundane nature.

विभावाद्यप्रतिपादनं तस्य परमपुरुषार्थतया लोकयात्रातिक्रान्तत्वात् ।

K. Pra. Vyākhyā, TSS ed., p. 139.

This answers also the objection that one should not go beyond the total number of the Bhāva-s which is given by Bharata as forty-nine. Abhinavagupta says that the sanctity of the number 'forty-nine' is protected and that Bharata treats of Śānta by omission, by his eloquent silence.

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I. p. 337.

As the permanent wall upon which Rati, etc. are formed, Ātman, the supreme Sthāyin, is necessarily implied. This mention by silence means not only its acceptance but its acceptance as the greatest Rasa.

Another reason why Bharata has not mentioned Śānta along with Rati, etc. is the difference between Ātmajñāna and other Sthāyin-s. Ātmajñāna is not relished through the same means in the same manner as other Sthāyin-s. Since Ātma-svarūpa is usually seen as tinted by Rati, etc. the ordinary means of comprehension which comprehend Rati, etc. do not comprehend the Ātma-svarūpa. Further, Bharata never attempts to give all the possible Sthāyin-s. He gives only those Sthāyin-s which are also Vyabhicārin-s; hence it is that he clubs them all together and speaks of them as the forty-nine Bhāva-s. That Sthāyin, Ātmajñāna, which is never a Vyabhicārin anywhere, is not mentioned at all by him. How could he, knowing as he did, its real nature?

As for the argument that the definition of the drama-type Dīma, which expressly speaks of only eight Rasa-s, Abhinavagupta explains that Bharata's description really implies nine Rasa-s and Śānta is kept in mind. The further condition that the Dīma should handle dīpta or forceful Rasa-s, dīpta-rasakāvyayoniḥ would become, as he argues in the Abhinavabhārati, superfluous, if it is not the intention to prohibit Śānta in the Dīma.

All the above-given ingenuity and strain are the unavoidable corollary of the ancient method of commenting which never desired to go against the basic text and would introduce new things only by securing for them the sanction of the basic text. The facts about the Rasa of Śānta itself which we gather from this discussion are:

1. Tattvajñāna or Ātmajñāna or Ātma-svarūpa or briefly the Ātman itself is the Sthāyin of Śānta.
2. It is like the wall; upon it are formed Rati, etc. which are upādhi-s of the pure self-illuminated Spirit. Nourishment of the permanent, unconditioned and untarnished Spirit by the appropriate Vibhāva-s, etc. will give the Śānta Rasa.
3. Though Rati, etc. are Sthāyin-s compared to Nirveda, etc. they are Vyabhicārin-s compared to the Ātma-sthāyin, which is sthāyi-tama.

न चास्य आत्मस्वभावस्य व्यभिचारित्वम्, असंभवात्, अवैचित्र्या-
वहत्वात्, अनौचित्याच्च । शम आत्मस्वभावः ।

This Ātma-svabhāva is called Śama.¹

If Ātman itself is taken as the Sthāyin of Śānta Rasa, we have the unique case of a Rasa in which the Ālambana and Sthāyin are identical. If Nirveda (Vairāgya) is the Sthāyin or even Śama, the Ālambana would be different, namely the phenomenal world with reference to which one develops aversion or non-attachment or the state of being not disturbed by it, i.e. quietude. Viśvanātha, author of the Sāhityadarpaṇa, who holds Śama as Sthāyin, gives option for the Ālambana, the worthlessness of the phenomenal world or the Self in its true form:

अनित्यत्वादिनाशेषवस्तुनिःसारता तु या ।

परमात्मस्वरूपं वा तस्यालम्बनमिष्यते ॥

III. 246-7.

¹ Abhinavagupta holds Śama which is identical with Ātma-svabhāva as a Sthāyin for all time; this is what Śārngadeva meant when he said that Śama which is enduring, Sthira, is not a Vyabhicārin. The anonymous commentary on the Vyaktiviveka also points out how Śama appears in the form of a Vyabhicārin in Śrīngāra also.

स्थायिनामपि व्यभिचारित्वं भवति । यथा रतेर्देवादिविषयायाः, हास्यस्य शृङ्गारादौ, शोकस्य विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारादौ शमस्य कोपामिहतस्य प्रसदोद्गमादौ ।

TSS ed., pp. 11-12.

Just as there are two different Nirveda-s, two different Tattva-jñāna-s, there are two Śama-s. The Nirveda illustrated by the verse vr̥thā dūgdho 'naḍvān, etc. is only a Bhāva; it cannot be Tattvajñāna-jā-Nirveda which alone is held by some as Sthāyin. See Abhi. Bhā., pp. 335-6. Similar is the case of Vyabhicāri-Śama and Sthāyi-Śama.

Where Śānta is oriented to Bhakti, the Lord is taken as Ālambana, as Hemādri says (The Kaivalyadīpikā on the Bhāgavatamuktāphala, p. 269).

Abhinavagupta advanced the above-given arguments for Śānta and its Sthāyin without resorting to the text of Bharata on Śānta found in some recensions. In this text, Śama is given as the Sthāyin of Śānta.

अथ शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिनावात्मकः, etc.

Abhinavagupta says that Śama is only another name for Ātma-svabhāva. When one speaks of Śama or Nirveda both of which are citta-vṛtti-s, one has to qualify them as a special and superior kind to make them the Sthāyin of Śānta. This qualification is unnecessary when Ātman itself is accepted as the Sthāyin. Rati, etc. which contaminate the Ātman represent the disturbed or vyutthita state of the citta. The pure nature of the Spirit is like the white thread on which are hung coloured stones at intervals. By constant meditation and effort, the pure light within is seen. It is a state of bliss in two ways, as rasāsvāda and as the āsvāda of the real Ātma-svarūpa which is ānanda.¹

The text on Śānta found in some recensions describes Śānta as the prakṛti, and Rati and other Bhāva-s as its vikāra-s. The latter rise and fall, appear and disappear on the Ātman. They emerge from it and merge in it.

न यत्र दुःखं न सुखं न द्वेषो नापि मत्सरः ।

समः सर्वेषु भूतेषु स शान्तः प्रथितो रसः ॥

अस्मिन्नाटके तु मुखप्रतिमुखसन्धिषु रामायणादिष्विव रसास्वादसमुद्भूतो विगलितवेद्यन्तर आनन्द उदेति । निर्वहणसन्धौ तु विगलितवेद्यान्तरः साक्षाद् ब्रह्मानन्द एव ।

भावा विकारा रत्याद्याः शान्तस्तु प्रकृतिर्मतः ।

विकारः प्रकृतेर्जातः पुनस्तत्रैव लीयते ॥

स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्ताद्भावः प्रवर्तते ।

पुनर्निमित्तापाये च शान्त एवोपलीयते ॥

NS, VI. 106-8.

Therefore it is that Bharata, says Abhinavagupta, treated of Śānta at the head of all the Rasa-s. Further the relish of all Rasa-s is alaukika, shorn of all mundane associations, and hence śānta-prāya. The bliss realized is akin to brahmāsvāda which is ātmāsvāda. Jagannātha pursued this line and said that Rasa is the manifestation of the light of Ātman itself when the obscuring element falls away. Poetry and drama remove the bars and Ātman manifests itself:

वस्तुतस्तु वक्ष्यमाणश्रुतिस्वारस्येन भग्नावरणा चिदेव रसः ।

RG, p. 23.

Ananta Bhaṭṭa on the Rasamañjarī, Ben. Skt. Ser. ed., p. 234:

आनन्दरूपतया प्रकाशमानं रत्यवच्छिन्नं चैतन्यं शृङ्गारः । आवरणं चाज्ञानमेव ।

The Rasavilāsa of Bhūdeva Śukla, Poona, 1952, I. 1:

चारुकाव्यसमुत्पन्नमनोवृत्त्या विनाशिते ।

अज्ञानांशे स्फुरन्नव्यादात्मा नवरसात्मकः ॥

THE TEXT OF THE ABHINAVABHĀRATĪ ON THE ŚĀNTA RASA

IN this section, I am presenting the text of the Abhi. Bhā. on the Śānta Rasa. It would have been unnecessary to give this text here, if the text available in the GOS edition had not been so error-ridden. The text presented here by me has been corrected with the help of Professor Mahamahopadhyaya S. Kuppuswami Sastriar. I give in the footnotes the incorrect readings found in the MS. in the Madras Government Oriental MSS. Library against the letter 'M', and those in the GOS edition against the letter 'G'.¹ There are still a few passages of which completely satisfactory reconstruction has not been possible. Pandit H. Sesha Aiyangar, formerly of the Kannada Department of the University of Madras, placed at my disposal the readings in two MSS. of the Abhi. Bhā. from Māngāv Koil, which belonged to the former H. H. the Jiyar of Melkote. Some of the readings in these two Māngāv MSS. supported our reconstructions while many agreed with those found in the GOS edition. Three of the Māngāv readings were definitely helpful. The Māngāv readings are given in the footnotes, preceded by the letter 'A'.

¹ Nāṭya-śāstra, GOS, vol. I, ed. 1, pp. 333-42. In the second revised edition of 1956, some of the reconstructions offered by me here have been adopted, but unfortunately, in some places, the second edition construes the passages wrongly.

It is well known that Hemacandra, who reproduces whole sections from Abhinavagupta, helps us a good deal in the task of reconstructing the text of the Abhi. Bhā. The Śānta Rasa section in the Abhi. Bhā. is to be found, with the omission of some parts, on p. 68 (text and comm.), pp. 80-87 (comm.) and p. 96. (comm.) of Hemacandra's Kāvyaṇuśāsana in the N. S. Press edition. As pointed out in the footnotes, Hemacandra supports the two Māngāv readings selected by me, towards the close of the section.

PREYAS, VĀTSALYA, PRĪTI, SNEHA, BHAKTI AND ŚRADDHĀ RASA-S

THE advent of the Śānta Rasa seems to have set the writers thinking on the sanctity or otherwise of the number eight or nine pertaining to the Rasa-s.¹ Close on the footsteps of Śānta, an aspect of love called Preyas or Vātsalya, covering cases of non-sexual love like that between parents and children, elders and youngsters, became a Rasa. The first work we now know mentioning Preyas as the tenth Rasa is the Kāvya-lamkāra of Rudraṭa (XII. 3). Preyas is found in Udbhaṭa as an Alamkāra by the side of Rasavat, both of which belong to a separate class of emotion-figures. Udbhaṭa considers Preyas as the poetry of Bhāva, Bhāva-kāvya, and distinguishes it from the poetry of Rasa called Rasavat. In Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin, Preyas was a kind of sweet compliment born of devotion or love, preyaḥ priyatarākhyānam. In this sense, Preyas as Cāṭu lives in later literature also. But Udbhaṭa's view is peculiar. As Pratihārendurāja observes, any Bhāva is Preyas for Udbhaṭa.

¹ Sivaprasada Bhattacharya, in his Sanskrit gloss (in his ed.) of the Alamkāra-kaustubha of Kavikarṇapūra Gosvāmin in the Varendra Research Society Series, says that some Ālamkārika-s, following the Pāka-śāstra and the Vaidya-śāstra, hold Rasa-s to be six in number.

षड् रसा इति रसज्ञा भिषजः, तदनुसारिणः केचिदलंकारमार्गगा अपि ।

The basis of this statement is not given; and I have not been able to find the Ālamkārika-s who held Rasa-s to be six.

एवं भावकान्यस्य प्रेयस्वदिति लक्षणया व्यपदेशः ।

This view found no follower, since Udbhaṭa's view of Bhāva-kāvya and Rasa-kāvya and his view of Bhāva or Rasa being indicated by their own names met with criticism. The older Preyas of Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin as speech expressive of non-sexual love developed into a new Rasa. Daṇḍin says that this Preyas is very closely related to Śṛṅgāra but is distinct, since Prīti is the basis of the former whereas Rati is the Sthāyin of Śṛṅgāra.

प्राक् प्रीतिर्दर्शिता सेयं रतिः शृङ्गारतां गता । KĀ, II. 289.

The friendship or affection of parents—Sneha and Vātsalya—figure in some of the noblest poetry and there was felt a necessity to recognize a Rasa for such situations. Rudraṭa who introduces Preyas at first, mentions Sneha as its Sthāyin, snehaprakṛtiḥ preyān. That Rudraṭa thought mainly of friendship is shown not only by the Sthāyin but also by the following explication:

अन्योन्यं प्रति सुहृदोर्व्यवहारोऽयं मतस्तत्र । XVI. 18.

We now get three categories of non-sexual attachment or affection: (i) the Preyas of Rudraṭa with Sneha as its Sthāyin which comes to friendship; (ii) Vātsalya or the affection of parents and elders for children and youngsters¹ and

¹ Viśvanātha calls this Vatsala, describes it as paternal affection and gives it as a Rasa in his Sāhityadarpaṇa after giving the eight old Rasa-s and the Śānta, the ninth.

अथ मुनीन्द्रसंमतो वत्सलः —

स्फुटं चमत्कारितया वत्सलं च रसं विदुः ।

स्थायी वत्सलता स्नेहः पुत्राद्यालम्बनं मतम् ॥

(iii) Prīti, other kinds of attachment like that between a leader and a follower, a king and his officer or court-poet. To these is to be added the fourth, Bhakti,¹ reverence to elders and devotion to God.

All these aspects, to begin with, were called only Preyas which then was understood as all types of non-sexual love:

प्रीतिरप्येवमेव स्यान्न त्वस्यां सांप्रयोगिकी । Bhoja, SKĀ, V.

Daṇḍin's Preyas, as his two illustrations show, refers only to the fourth aspect called Bhakti. He actually calls it by the name Bhakti and uses as its synonym, Prīti. Commenting on Vidura's words spoken on Kṛṣṇa's arrival at his house, Daṇḍin says:

उद्दीपनानि तच्चेष्टा विद्याशौर्योदयादयः ।
आलिङ्गनाङ्गसंस्पर्शशिरःसुम्बनमीक्षणम् ॥
पुलकानन्दबाष्पाद्या अनुभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ।
संचारिणोऽनिष्टशङ्काहर्षगर्वादयो मताः ।
पद्मगर्भच्छर्विर्गणो दैवतं लोकमातरः ॥

The illustration given is Raghu's childhood and Dilīpa's Vātsalya (Raghuvaṃśa, III). Haripāladeva (Samgītasudhākara, MT, 3082, pp. 16, 17) accepts Vātsalya as a Rasa and gives Prīti, as its Sthāyin. The Mandāramaranda-campū curiously enough considers Karuṇā or Kāruṇya (compassion) as the Sthāyin of Vātsalya: अन्ये तु करुणास्थायि वात्सल्यं दशमोऽपि च । KM ed., p. 100.

Kavikarṇapūra, who illustrates Vātsalya with Yaśodā's love for the child Kṛṣṇa, gives Mamakāra as its Sthāyin:

अत्र ममकारः स्थायी । Alaṃkāraustubha, p. 148.

¹ Kavikarṇapūra classifies love into sexual love—Sāmpṛa-yogikī Prīti, Maitrī, Sauhārda and Bhāva. The last is the Sthāyin of Bhakti. तत्र रतिर्यथा—

रतिश्चेतोरञ्जकता सुखभोगानुकूल्यकृत् ।
सा प्रीति-मैत्री-सौहार्द-भावसंज्ञाश्च गच्छति ॥

Alaṃkāraustubha, p. 124.

इत्याह युक्तं विदुरो नान्यतस्तादृशी धृतिः ।

भक्तिमात्रसमाराध्यः सुप्रीतश्च ततो हरिः ॥ KĀ, II. 277.

The other instance is the manifestation of a king's devotion to Śiva, uttered in the form of a stotra on seeing Him:

इति साक्षात्कृते देवे राज्ञो यद्राजवर्मणः ।

प्रीतिप्रकाशनं तच्च प्रेय इत्यवगम्यताम् ॥ ibid., II. 279.

It is quite natural that in Sanskrit literature, Bhakti should have come in as a dominant motif and that scholars should have accepted it as a distinct Rasa. Though Rudraṭa mentions only the Preyas of Sneha, we find the Abhi. Bhā. saying that others propose not only Bhakti but Śraddhā, Faith, also as a new Rasa. Abhinavagupta however does not consider them as distinct Rasa-s but includes them in Śānta of which the two are important accessories.

अत एव ईश्वरप्रणिधानविषये भक्तिश्चद्धे स्मृतिमतिधृत्युत्साहानुप्रविष्टे
अन्यथैव अङ्गम् (शान्तस्य) इति न तयोः पृथग्रसत्वेन गणनम् ॥ ¹

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 340.

Of Bhakti, more will be said in the section on Madhura Rasa. The Daśarūpaka mentions Prīti and Bhakti separately as Bhāva-s and includes them in Harṣa, Utsāha or some other similar Bhāva (IV. 84).

¹ Hemacandra reproduces this discussion on the additional Rasa-s from the Abhi. Bhā. See KĀH, p. 68, text and comm. Śivarāma's Rasaratnahāra is another work which refers to the Śraddhā Rasa proposed by some and rejects it as not being a Rasa at all, being devoid of camatkāra:

श्रद्धयाश्च (अ?) सुखात्मकत्वात् चमत्कारानुत्पादान्तर(न्न र)सत्त्वमिति नव-
संख्योक्तिर्न विरुद्धा । KM Gucchaka 6, p. 120.

प्रीतिभक्त्यादयो भावाः . . . ।

हर्षोत्साहादिषु स्पष्टमन्तर्भावाच्च कीर्तिताः ॥

Prīti here means types of love other than Rati and Bhakti. To be clear about accepting friendship as Rasa, some seem to have called Sneha itself as a Rasa. Rudraṭa used the name Sneha for the Sthāyin and called the Rasa, Preyas; but these proposed Sneha as the Rasa and Ārdratā as the Sthāyin. Rudraṭa himself mentioned this Ārdratā while describing Sneha as the Sthāyin:

आर्द्रान्तःकरणतया स्नेहपदे भवति सर्वत्र ।

XV. 19.

The Abhi. Bhā. thus introduces and criticizes this Sneha Rasa with Ārdratā as its Sthāyin:

आर्द्रतास्थायिकः स्नेहो रस इति त्वसत् । स्नेहो ह्यभिषङ्गः । स च रत्युत्साहादावेव पर्यवस्यति । तथा हि—बालस्य मातापित्रादौ स्नेहो भये विश्रान्तः, यूनो मित्रजने रतौ, लक्ष्मणादेः भ्रातरि धर्मवीर एव । एवं वृद्धस्य पुत्रादावपि द्रष्टव्यम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 342.¹

This dismisses Prīti, Sneha, Vātsalya and similar Rasa-s based on attachment. This is not a commendable attitude. To

स्नेहो भक्तिर्वात्सल्यमिति हि रतेरेव विशेषः । तुल्ययोः या परस्परं रतिः स स्नेहः । अनुत्तमस्य उत्तमे रतिः प्रसक्तिः, सैव भक्तिपदवाच्या । उत्तमस्य अनुत्तमे रतिः वात्सल्यम् । एवमादौ च विषये भावस्यैव आस्वाद्यत्वम् ॥

Sārṅgadeva, SR, VII. 1516-19:

भक्तिं स्नेहं तथा लौल्यं केचित् त्रीन् मन्वते रसान् ।

श्रद्धार्द्रताभिलाषांश्च स्थायिनस्तेषु ते विदुः ॥

have less distinctions is no great aim. If it is said that friendship is only a variety of Rati, what should we call the Rasa in the association of Rāma and Sugrīva? It cannot be Śṛṅgāra. If brotherly attachment again is brought under Rati, what is the Rasa in the association of Rāma and Bharata, or Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa? If Dharma-vīra can be called forth to deny Rasatva to Lakṣmaṇa's attachment to Rāma, why should not opponents of Śānta call forth another kind of Vīra to deny Rasatva to Śānta? Do Abhinavagupta and Hemacandra mean that Friendship, Brotherly Attachment, Parental Affection and the like are only Bhāva-s that cannot be nourished into a state of Rasa with attendant accessories? Literature is only too full of these types of attachment. The instance of Daśaratha's death due to separation from Rāma is ample proof for the existence of Vātsalya¹ as a major mood, fit to be developed and fit to be relished. Bhoja includes it in his preliminary enumeration of ten Rasa-s.² As we have already seen, Viśva-nātha, Haripāladeva and some others accept it; and as we

तत्र हास्यशृङ्गारयोः स्वरितोदात्तैः, वीररौद्राद्भुतेषु उदात्तकम्पितैः करुण-
वात्सल्यभयानकेषु अनुदात्तस्वरितकम्पितैर्वर्णैः पाठ्यमुपपादयति ।

But Vātsalya here is obviously an error of Bibhatsa which is otherwise missing. Abhinavagupta reads Bibhatsa here.

A similar strange passage occurs in ch. 22, in v. 3, (same ed.) where Rasa-s are mentioned as nine:

अव्यक्तरूपं सत्त्वं हि ज्ञेयं नवरसाश्रयम् ॥

But the correct reading here is भावरसाश्रयम् as the Kasi ed. shows.

² Śr. Pra., beginning: वत्सलभयानकशान्तनाम्नः । आम्नासिपुर्दश रसान्, etc.

shall see presently, it is acceptable to the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s.

LAULYA RASA

In the same section, the Abhi. Bhā. mentions and criticizes another Rasa called Laulya, of which the Sthāyin is given as Gardha. Abhinavagupta suggests that it can be included in Hāsa, Rati or elsewhere.

एषैव गर्भस्थायिकस्य लौल्यरसस्य प्रत्याख्याने सरणिर्मन्तव्या, हासे वा, रतौ वा, अन्यत्र पर्यवसानात् । Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 342.

Laulya seems to have been proposed to label the Rasa of an anti-hero like Rāvaṇa whose vile passion for Sītā is enormous. This thirst of heart, Abhinavagupta says, is inappropriate; it is not Rasa in him, but only Rasābhāsa; and the anaucitya or impropriety of his desire causes Hāsyā Rasa. Śārṅgadeva summarizes Abhinavagupta thus:

अयुक्तविषया तृष्णा लौल्यं तद्भास्यकारणम् ।

See also Bhānudatta, RT, ch. 5, p. 125: laulye hāsyah.¹

MṚGAYĀ AND AKṢA RASA-S

Even as Abhinavagupta does, Dhanaṃjaya also refers to other Rasa-s proposed by writers. Prīti and Bhakti, two additional Bhāva-s, and their inclusion by Dhanaṃjaya in one or the other of the Bhāva-s, were referred to previously. In the same verse, Dhanaṃjaya refers to two additional Rasa-s, Mṛgayā and Akṣa, Hunt and Gambling.

प्रीतिभक्त्यादयो भावा मृगयाश्चादयो रसाः ।

हर्षोत्साहादिषु स्पष्टमन्तर्भावान्न कीर्तिताः ॥

DR, IV. 83.

Rasa refers no longer to a mental state only; these writers generalize it to mean any motif or any 'idea'.

If we can infer anything from the mention of these additional Rasa-s by Abhinavagupta after a reference to Lollaṭa's view that Rasa-s are innumerable, we may say that it was Lollaṭa who proposed these additional Rasa-s. Though Lollaṭa's commentary on the NS is not available, we have, about that time, the Kāvyaḷamkāra of Rudraṭa, which holds the same view on the number of Rasa-s as Lollaṭa is mentioned by Abhinavagupta as holding. These writers re-examined Bharata's text to find out what exactly constituted rasatva and bhāvatva. Bharata considered as Rasa-s those emotions which were 'masters', svāmibhūta-s, and were consequently attended upon by many minor ones (bahvāśrayāḥ), namely the Bhāva-s. The forty-nine Bhāva-s described by him include the eight Sthāyin-s also and these eight are once again described as Bhāva among the Bhāva-s. This shows that the eight Sthāyin-s had a Sthāyin-stage and a Bhāva-stage. When reinforced by Vyabhicārin-s, Rati, etc. became Sthāyin-s. Similarly, some writers thought, other Bhāva-s also can be reinforced by other attendant Bhāva-s and made into Sthāyin-s. According to this view, the Vyabhicārin-s themselves would have other Vyabhicārin-s; Nirveda is attended by Cīntā; Śrama by Nirveda and so on. Says Abhinavagupta:

—व्यभिचारिणामपि च व्यभिचारिणो भवन्ति, यथा निर्वेदस्य चिन्ता, श्रमस्य निर्वेद इत्यादि निरूपयन्ति । तच्चासत् । Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 346.

Abhinavagupta did not accept this view.¹ But Lollāṭa's and Rudraṭa's position would make its acceptance necessary for them. Bharata says while explaining what Rasa is:

अत्र रस इति कः पदार्थः ? उच्यते ; आस्वाद्यत्वात् ।

Rudraṭa perhaps based himself on this text when he said that any Bhāva can be a Rasa, because āsvādyatva or relishability is present in it:

इति मन्तव्या रसाः सर्वे ॥

रसनाद्रसत्वमेषां मधुरादीनामिवोक्तमाचार्यैः ।

निर्वेदादिष्वपि तन्निकाममस्तीति तेऽपि रसाः ॥ XII. 3-4.

¹ If he had accepted this view, he might have given a handle to those who considered all the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s also as capable of becoming Rasa-s. So, he says, wherever there seem to occur in one Vyabhicārin many others, as for instance Vitarka, etc. in Unmāda in Purūravas, it cannot be said that one Vyabhicārin is nourished by others, but it must be said that all these are separately Vyabhicārin-s nourishing the main Sthāyin, Vipralambha Rati.

But this contention of Abhinavagupta does not seem to have any support in Bharata. He seems to allow Vyabhicārin-s in Vyabhicārin-s. Defining Dainya, the Āryā in the MS says: चिन्ता-औत्सुक्य-समुत्था (VII. 74, p. 362). Asūyā, a Vyabhicārin is given as an Anubhāva of another Vyabhicārin Garva (p. 369). In Autsukya, Cintā and Nidrā are given; and many other Vyabhicārin-s also occur here as well as in Viśāda (p. 370).

On p. 66 of his Locana, Abhinavagupta cites क्लृप्तार्थ, etc. and calls it a case of Bhāva-śābalatā. He says that this verse portrays four pairs of Vyabhicārin-s appearing one after another: Vitarka-Autsukya, Mati-Smarana, Śāṅkā-Dainya, and lastly Dhṛti-Cintā. He concludes however that finally Cintā is the Vyabhicārin which we relish. This seems to mean that the one Vyabhicārin of Cintā has other Vyabhicārin-s, Vitarka, etc.: पर्यन्ते तु चिन्ताया एव प्रधानतां ददती परमास्वादस्थानम् ।

Only the poet must develop the Vyabhicārin also to a state of relishability. Namisādhū explains Rudraṭa clearly and observes that there is no mental state which cannot be called Rasa, if it is developed:

अयमाशयो ग्रन्थकारस्य—यदुत नास्ति सा कापि चित्तवृत्तिः या परिपोषं गता न रसीभवति । भरतेन सहृदयावर्जकत्वप्राचुर्यात् संज्ञां चाश्रित्य अष्टौ वा नव वा रसा उक्ता इति ।

Rudraṭa was perhaps contemporaneous with Śaṅkuka (c. A.D. 850) and thus followed Lollaṭa (c. A.D. 825) on this question of Rasa-s being as many as Bhāva-s. If Bharata spoke only of eight or nine Bhāva-s as Rasa-s, it is because of their greater vogue among poets and critics. According to Abhinavagupta, Lollaṭa said the same thing:

एतावन्त एव च रसा इत्युक्तं पूर्वम् । तेन 'आनन्त्येऽपि पार्षद-प्रसिद्ध्या एतावतां प्रयोज्यत्वम्' इति यत् भट्टल्लोटेन निरूपितं तदवलेपेना-परामृश्येत्यलम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., I, p. 299.

तेन रसान्तरसंभवेऽपि पार्षदप्रसिद्ध्या संख्यानियम इति यदन्यैः¹ उक्तम्, तत् प्रत्युक्तम् । भावाध्याये चैतद्वक्ष्यते ।

ibid., p. 341.

It is perhaps Lollaṭa who, while commenting on the text enumerating the Sthāyin-s, Vyabhicārin-s, etc. at the beginning of chapter 6, says regarding Sthāyin-s that Bharata did not give any fixed number for the Sthāyin-s; for, Abhinavagupta says in his commentary in this place:

स्थायिषु च संख्या नोक्तेत्यपरे ।

ibid., p. 270.

Unfortunately, the Bhāvādhyāya of the Abhi. Bhā. is, for the most part, lost and Abhinavagupta's detailed statement and refutation of Lollaṭa's view are lost to us.

Pratīhārendurāja who comes after Ānandavardhana notices this view of Rudraṭa that Nirveda and the other Bhāva-s are also Rasa-s. His explanation for the generally prevailing view that only eight or nine are Rasa-s is not very different from Lollaṭa's pārṣada-prasiddhi. Pratīhārendurāja takes his stand on caturvarga, the fourfold objective of human efforts, as contrasted with those objects which are to be avoided by the wise, the parihārya. He says that only nine are called Rasa-s because of their reference to the four Puruṣārtha-s and the name Rasa as restricted to these nine is tāntrika, technical and traditional for this Śāstra. This is a clumsy explanation; virtually this writer accepts the position of Rudraṭa. The tāntrika or pāribhāṣika nomenclature begs the question and one fails to see how any Bhāva, Nirveda or another, is irrelevant to a Puruṣārtha. Says Pratīhārendurāja :

एते च शृङ्गारादयो नव यथायोगं चतुर्वर्गप्राप्त्युपायतया तदितर-
परिहारनिबन्धनतया च रत्यादीनां स्थायिनां नवानां भावानां यः परिपोषः
तदात्मकाः । अतः तथाविधेन रूपेण आस्वाद्यत्वात् आस्वादभेदनिबन्धनेन
तान्त्रिकेण रसशब्देन अभिधीयन्ते । निर्वेदादौ तु तथाविधस्य आस्वाद्यस्य
(द्यत्वस्य) अभावात् प्रवृत्तिनिमित्तभेदनिबन्धनस्य तान्त्रिकस्य रसशब्दस्य

शृङ्गारादिषु तान्त्रिकस्य रसशब्दस्य उक्तम् ॥ KASS. Vyākhyā, p. 49.

To some extent, the final observation of Abhinavagupta himself at the end of the sixth chapter is weak and justifies the restriction of rasatva to eight or nine on grounds neither stronger than nor different from Lollaṭa's pārṣada-prasiddhi or Pratīhārendurāja's caturvarga-prāpti-upāya.

एते नचैव रसाः, पुमर्थोपयोगित्वेन, रञ्जनाधिक्येन वा

VIASANA, DUḤKHA AND SUKHA RASA-S

The Nāṭyadarpaṇa of Rāmacandra and Guṇacandra follows Abhinavagupta, reproducing these very words of the Abh. Bhā. but adds that though usefulness in Puruṣārtha and rañjanā restrict Rasa-s to nine, more Rasa-s are possible: Lauḍya with Gardha as its Sthāyin; Sneha with Ārdratā as its Sthāyin; Vyasana Rasa with Āsakti as its Sthāyin; Duḥkha Rasa with Arati as its Sthāyin and Sukha Rasa with Saṃtoṣa as its Sthāyin:

संभवन्ति त्वपरेऽपि—यथा गर्धस्यायी लौल्यः, आर्द्रतास्यायी स्नेहः,
आसक्तिस्थायि व्यसनम्, अरतिस्थायि दुःखम्, संतोषस्थायि सुखमित्यादि ।

GOS, 1st ed., p. 163.

According to the view that accepts the Vyabhicārin-s also as Rasa-s, the names Sthāyin and Vyabhicārin are not fixed names of two sets, but rather names of stages. A Sthāyin may be a Vyabhicārin and a Vyabhicārin may become a

Sthāyin. Abhinavagupta himself draws our attention to Bharata prohibiting the Vyabhicārin Jugupsā in Śṛṅgāra (Abhi. Bhā., p. 334). This Jugupsā is a Sthāyin. The Vyaktiviveka, discussing this question, says that Sthāyin-s appear also as Vyabhicārin-s and it is in the latter aspect that they are dealt with by Bharata in the Bhāvādhyāya:

तत्र स्थायिभावानामुभयी गतिः । . . . यत्तु भावाध्याये स्थायिनां
लक्षणमुक्तं तद्व्यभिचारिदशापन्नानामेव . . . । TSS. ed., p. 13.

The commentary says here:

स्थायिनामपि व्यभिचारित्वं भवति । यथा रतेर्देवादिविषयायाः, हासस्य
शृङ्गारादौ, शोकस्य विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारादौ, क्रोधस्य प्रणयकोपादौ, विस्मयस्य
वीरादौ, उत्साहस्य शृङ्गारादौ, भयस्य अभिसारिकादौ, जुगुप्सायाः
संसारनिन्दादौ, शमस्य कोपाभिहतस्य प्रसादोद्गमादौ ॥

TSS. ed., pp. 11-12.

Śārṅgadeva, Samgītaratnākara:

रत्यादयः स्थायिभावाः स्युर्भूयिष्ठविभावजाः ।

स्तोकैर्विभावैरुत्पन्नास्त एव व्यभिचारिणः ॥

रसान्तरेष्वपि तदा यथायोगं भवन्ति ते ।

यथा हि हासः शृङ्गारे रतिः शान्ते च दृश्यते ॥

वीरे क्रोधो भयं शोके जुगुप्सा च भयानके ।

उत्साहविस्मयौ सर्वरसेषु व्यभिचारिणौ ॥ VII. 1519-22.

Bhānudatta, Rasataranginī, ch. 5:

स्थायिनोऽपि व्यभिचरन्ति । हासः शृङ्गारे । रतिः शान्तकरुणहास्येषु ।
भयशोकौ करुणशृङ्गारयोः । क्रोधो वीरे । जुगुप्सा भयानके । उत्साहविस्मयौ
सर्वरसेषु व्यभिचारिणौ ॥

Further, we find among the Vyabhicārin-s, Amarṣa which is only Krodha, the Sthāyin of Raudra, but in a lower degree; Trāsa which is Bhaya, the Sthāyin of Bhayānaka; Viṣāda which is only Śoka, the Sthāyin of Karuṇa Rasa.

Bhoja is a writer who held the same view as Lollaṭa and Rudraṭa on the number of Rasa-s. Bhoja's theory of Rasa is a very complex problem and it has been expounded at length by the present writer in the Rasa chapter of his work Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa.¹ Bhoja is a monist and a pluralist combined, regarding this question of the number of Rasa-s. Fundamentally, Rasa is only one to him, and that is, Śṛṅgāra or Ahaṃkāra or Abhimāna. Compared to this, even Rati-Śṛṅgāra, Hāsyā, Vīra and the other old Rasa-s, are unfit to be called Rasa-s, but are only Bhāva-s; much more so the Vyabhicārin-s. But this is a pāramārthika state of affairs and there is a vyāvahārika state also in which, by upacāra, the name Rasa, by virtue of the immanence of Ahaṃkāra in all of them, applies to all the forty-nine Bhāva-s.

UDĀTTA AND UDDHATA RASA-S

If we turn to Bhoja's SKĀ, ch. 5, we find him first mentioning only the Sthāyin-s of the eight old Rasa-s:

रतिर्हासश्च ।

. विस्मयश्चाष्टौ स्थायिभावाः प्रकीर्तिताः ॥ V. 14.

Then, he adds, that these Rasa-s have viśeṣa-s, which, as a matter of fact, means, additional Rasa-s:

शृङ्गारवीरकरुणारौद्राद्भुतभयानकाः ।

बीभत्सहास्यप्रेयांसः शान्तोदात्तोद्धता रसाः ॥ V. 164.

The additional Rasa-s mentioned here are the old Śānta, the Preyas which we have already heard of and two absolutely new Rasa-s, Udātta and Uddhata. Dr. Abhaykumar Guha, writing on the Rasa cult in the Caitanya-caritāmṛta, in the Sir Asutosh Mookerjee Silver Jubilee Volumes, says (III, pt. 3, p. 375): ‘Another rhetorician, Bhojarāja, adds one more, e.g. Preman (love). Thus according to Bhojarāja, eleven rasa-s in all.’ He further says that, to the well-known nine, some add Vātsalya, while Bhoja adds Preman, thus making them eleven. This information is wrong. Dr. S. K. De says in vol. II of his Studies in the History of Sanskrit Poetics (p. 264) that Bhoja mentions as many as ten Rasa-s, including the Śānta and Preyas; this also is incorrect. As shown above, Bhoja accepts twelve Rasa-s in all in his SKĀ. There is no peculiarity about Śānta and Preyas¹ in Bhoja, both of which are Rasa-s

¹ (a) Bhoja gives Preyas as vatsala-prakṛti, i.e. having Vātsalya as its Sthāyin (SKĀ, p. 514). Bhoja’s illustration is however not friendship, but only love for woman which will not prove Preyas as different from Śṛṅgāra. As a matter of fact, Preyas is considered by Bhoja as the Rasa lying at the root of Śṛṅgāra and all other types of love. Preyas is called ahetu-pakṣapāta:

रतिप्रीत्योरपि चायमेव मूलप्रकृतिरिष्यते । यदिस्थमाहुः—

‘अहेतुः पक्षपातो यस्तस्य नास्ति प्रतिक्रिया ।

स हि स्नेहात्मकस्तन्तुरन्तर्भूतानि लीव्यति ॥’

(Uttararāmacarita, V. 17) SKĀ, p. 515.

The verse from the Uttararāmacarita quoted by Bhoja occurs in the drama to explain the inexplicable love that two persons, of whatever description they may be, evince mutually on seeing each other, called tārāmaitraka and caṅkūrāga. This is a purer and more basic love which finds a high place in Bhoja’s imaginative mind. Bhoja, as can be seen in the last section of this book, synthesizes all Rasa-s and Bhāva-s in this Preyas or Preman.

from earlier times. The two new Rasa-s of Bhoja are Udātta and Uddhata. They are both explained and illustrated on p. 515 of the SKĀ. Mati is held as the Sthāyin of the Udātta Rasa and Garva as the Sthāyin of the Uddhata Rasa. Bhoja says that the Udātta is also called Ūrjasvin.

It is clear that Bhoja proposed these two new Rasa-s as a result of his realization that each type of hero shall be distinguished by a Rasa which dominates his character and constitutes his individuality. Thus Śānta is the Rasa of the Dhīra-śānta hero; Preyas of the Dhīra-lalita; Udātta or Ūrjasvin of the Dhīrodātta and Uddhata of Dhīroddhata. He says expressly in his Śr. Pra.:

न च अष्टावेवेति नियमः, यतः शान्तं प्रेयांसम् उद्धतम् ऊर्जस्विनं
च केचिद्रसमाचक्षते । तन्मूलश्च किल नायकानां धीरशान्त-धीरललित-
धीरोद्धत-धीरोदात्तव्यपदेशः । Mad. MS., vol. II, pp. 337-8.

Among old Sanskrit writers also, as among modern research scholars, few had a correct knowledge of what the king of Dhārā said actually. Bopadeva and Hemādri in their Bhāgavatamuktāphala and its commentary Kaivalya-dīpikā took note of Bhoja's Preyas, Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s and

Hāsyā is love for Hāsa; Vīra is love for Utsāha and so on. In his Śrīngārāprakāśa, ch. III, Bhoja says at the very outset:

रसांस्त्वहं प्रेमाणमेव आमनन्ति ।

(b) Dr. De and Dr. Guha evidently owe their view of the number of Rasa-s accepted by Bhoja to Kavikarṇapūra's Alaṃkāra-kaustubha:

भोजस्तु वत्सलप्रेमभ्याम् एकदश रसानाचष्टे । p. 123.

Bhoja's synthesis of all Rasa-s in Preman is to be found in this writer also; of this more later. (See Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, pp. 147-8.)

rejected them.¹ Śiṅgabhūpāla was the other writer who caught sight of Bhoja's Udātta and Uddhata Rasa-s and criticized them in his Rasārṇavasudhākara, TSS ed., pp. 168-72. The anonymous Sāhityamīmāṃsā (TSS, 114), a work largely indebted to Bhoja, also notes Bhoja's Udātta, Uddhata and Preyas and remarks that some would consider these three Rasa-s as included in the eight. I have dealt with this elsewhere.²

In addition to these two new Rasa-s, Bhoja, like Rudraṭa, recognized all the Bhāva-s as being capable of becoming Rasa-s. In the Vyavahāra-stage, Bhoja held all the forty-nine Bhāva-s as Rasa-s³:

Bhoja restates Rudraṭa's position with some arguments. He asks: If Rati and the other seven become Rāsa-s, why not Harṣa and the rest? If it is said that Rati, etc. alone become Rāsa-s by virtue of their being Sthāyin-s, why are not Harṣa and others Sthāyin-s? It cannot be said that all these eight and these eight only are 'permanent', and Harṣa, etc. are 'fleeting'. Among these eight also, there are Bhaya, Hāsa, Śoka, Krodha, etc. which are not 'permanent'. Permanence or evanescence is not invariably inherent in any Bhāva but is born as a result of character and circumstance. Universality and the quality of being a major mood do not pertain to these eight only. Cintā is as much a major mood, in a character and in a set of conditions, as Rati. Therefore, even as Rati, Glāni (Fatigue), or Harṣa (Delight), have their own Vyabhicārin-s, Anubhāva-s and Vibhāva-s.¹ Provided the poet develops these, Harṣa, etc. also, with their attendant emotional conditions, they also attain to sthāyitva and rasatva. Thus, in a later section devoted to illustration, Bhoja speaks of Ānanda Rasa with Harṣa as its Sthāyin.² (SKĀ, p. 636 and Śr. Pra., vol. II, p. 394.) On pp. 394-5 of his Śr. Pra. (vol. II) and p. 627 of his SKĀ, he speaks, along with the Vīra and Uddhata Rasa-s, of the new Rasa-s Svāntarya, Ānanda, Praśama, and Pāravaśya. On p. 399 of the Śr. Pra. (vol. II) and 629 of his SKĀ, he speaks of Sādhvasa, Vilāsa, Anurāga and Saṃgama Rasa-s. This beats Rudraṭa who mentioned Nirvedādi only, i.e. all the citta-vṛtti-s and primarily the Vyabhicārin-s, as Rasa-s. But Bhoja extends rasatva to Sāttvika-s also, which are physical manifestations. And in this respect, he is one with Namisādhū who says while commenting on the bit in Rudraṭa:

इति मन्तव्या रसाः सर्वे—

इतिशब्दः एवंप्रकारार्थः । एवंप्रकारा अन्येऽपि भावा रतिनिर्वेद-
स्तम्भादयः सर्वेऽपि रसा बोद्धव्याः ।

² The Nāṭyadarpaṇa, as pointed out above, mentions Sukha as a Rasa with Saṃtoṣa as its Sthāyin. Contentment, Saṃtoṣa, is Ānandavardhana's Trṣṇākṣaya and Sukha in the Nāṭyadarpaṇa is really Śānta Rasa.

Though called Bhāva-s, the Sāttvika-s are physical manifestations; śārīras tu sāttvikabhāvādīḥ says Bhānudatta in his Rasataranginī. But to Bhoja, even these are Rasa-s, as much as any citta-vṛtti. Fortunately the inanimate Uddīpana Vibhāva-s like the southern breeze and moonlight and the Ālambana Vibhāva-s which are characters themselves are not made Rasa-s! To these Bhoja would be content to give the name rasānvayavibhūti-s. But there seem to have been some, before Bhoja also, who would take, as the Daśarūpaka points out, such themes as Mṛgayā (hunt) and Akṣa (gambling) as Rasa-s.

From a passage in the Locana of Abhinavagupta we understand that a period of chaos prevailed in the world of Rasa-s. Abhinavagupta says that some hold the pure Vibhāva only as Rasa; some Sthāyin only; some the Vyabhicārin only; some the interplay of all these; some the story enacted itself and some all this put together:

अन्ये तु शुद्धं विभावम्, अपरे शुद्धमनुभावं, केचित्तु स्थायिमात्रम्,
इतरे व्यभिचारिणम्, अन्ये तत्संयोगिनम्, एके अनुकार्यं, केचन सकलमेव
समुदायं रसमाहुरित्यलं बहुना ।

Locana, p. 69.

It is perhaps on the authority of this passage in the Locana that Jagannātha Paṇḍita says in his RG, p. 28:

‘विभावादयः त्रयः समुदिता रसः’ इति कतिपये । ‘त्रिषु य
एव चमत्कारी स एव रसोऽन्यथा तु त्रयोऽपि न’ इति बहवः ।
‘भाव्यमानो विभाव एव रसः’ इत्यन्ये । ‘अनुभावस्तथा तथा’ इतीतरे ।
‘व्यभिचार्येव तथा तथा परिणमति’ इति केचित् ।

Such a view of the concept of Rasa has been criticized by Abhinavagupta.¹ Surely the very substratum of the

Bhāva-s, namely the characters, the Ālambana Vibhāva-s, cannot be called Rasa. Things like moonlight and the southern breeze, which are jaḍa and are conditions of Nature which kindle the sentiment, Uddīpana-s, cannot possibly be mental states, citta-vṛtti-s, and are thus not to be called Rasa-s. Similarly the Sāttvika. What Bhāva is a tear which is a drop of water and romāñca which is hair standing on end? While defining, explaining and illustrating the eight Sāttvika-s, which are also Rasa-s to him, Bhoja says in his SKĀ (pp. 498-500) that though they become Rasa-s, they, being Sāttvika-s, are not attended by accessory Saṃcārin-s:

अयं च स्तम्भः पुष्टोऽपि सात्त्विकत्वात् सदैव अन्यानुयायीति
नानुभावादिभिर्नुबध्यते ।

अस्यापि (रोमाञ्चस्य) सात्त्विकत्वात् अन्यानुबन्धादयो न जायन्ते ।

SKĀ, p. 498.

What does Bhoja mean by such qualified Rasa-s? How can an unattended thing be considered puṣṭa or developed? If it is still looking up to something to render itself understood anyamukhaḥprekṣin, how is it leading? A mere description of Stambha cannot make an instance of Stambha Rasa. The concept of Rasa means (1) an emotional state and (2) an emotional state which is pradhāna. This pradhānatva is not a mere question of a poet nourishing a Bhāva. It means that the Bhāva is, by nature, a major mood, within which occur a number of secondary emotional states. Only such a major state of mind can be reinforced by attendant conditions. Bhoja says Glāni can be reinforced by Śrama, etc. This is not possible. When it is said that one is glāna, fatigued, the question is at once asked, and the mind does not rest without asking this question: Why is he fatigued? That is, there cannot be viśrānti in a minor or fleeting feeling; such a minor mood is common to more than one state of mind. One may be fatigued because of Vipralambha, because of fighting in Vīra, because of Yogic practice in Śānta. But when it is said that Rāma loves Sītā, there is no more question. A Sthāyin explains a world of feelings; it is like a master with many servants; it is independent, svatantra and ananyamukhaprekṣin, ananyānuyāyin and svaviśrānta. This is the significance of the simple but effective simile of the King and the followers. Abhinavagupta clearly explains the position thus:

अप्रधाने च वस्तुनि कस्य संविद् विश्राम्यति, तस्यैव प्रत्ययस्य प्रधानान्तरं प्रत्यनुधावतः स्वात्मनि अविश्रान्तत्वात् । अतो अप्रधानत्वं जडे विभावानुभाववर्गे, व्यभिचारिनिचये च संविदात्मकेऽपि नियमेन अन्यमुख-प्रेक्षिणि संभवतीति तदतिरिक्तः स्थाय्येव चर्वणापात्रम् ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 283.

ये त्वेते ऋतुमाल्यादयो विभावाः बाह्याश्च बाष्पप्रभृतयो अनुभावाः ते न भावशब्दव्यपदेश्याः ।

भावशब्देन तावत् चित्तवृत्तिविशेषा एव विवक्षिताः ।

ibid., ch. 7, p. 343.

¹ To Abhinavagupta, the Vyabhicārīn-s are always paratantra; to Bhoja, they are svatantra and paratantra according as they are Rasa or Bhāva. There is a writer, later than Vidyānātha, named Veṅkaṭanārāyaṇadīkṣita, of the Āndhradeśa, who seems to follow

Bhāva-s are equally relevant to the Puruṣārtha-s. The point in the argument of caturvargopayoga is this: There are any number of things that man aspires for and works to get; but all this falls under the four heads of Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa. Similarly, though any feeling of man, as such, cannot but be related to his activity towards caturvarga-prāpti, there is a classification and grouping possible among them, according to which we arrive at a few dominant heads, under which the rest can be brought. The argument of rañjanādhikya means this: Though there is āsvādyatva in everything in poetry and drama, it is only some mental conditions that can be handled as leading themes; how can Glāni be worked at as the Rasa of a drama and who will relish it?

Jagannātha Paṇḍita adopts a peculiar attitude towards this question. He raises the problem by pointing to Bhakti as an additional Rasa. As love for God, an anurāga, it cannot be brought under Śānta, since Śānta implies absence of any Rāga. He replies that all Rati except the Rati between man and woman is only a Bhāva and can never become a Rasa. If it is argued that Bhagavad-Rati can be taken as the Sthāyi-Rati and the Strī-puṃ-Rati be relegated to the Bhāva-class, another might propose Rati for children as a Sthāyin and a the view of writers like Bhoja. For, he says that Vyabhicārin-s are of two kinds, svatantra and paratantra; when they help to heighten another, they are the latter; they are the former when they do not have to heighten another:

परतन्त्राः स्वतन्त्राश्च द्विविधा व्यभिचारिणः ।

परपोषकतां प्राप्ताः परतन्त्रा इतीरिताः ।

तदभावे स्वतन्त्राः स्युः भावा इति च ते स्मृताः ॥

Śṛṅgārasāra, MD. 12958, pp. 112-13.

He however does not explain his position further.

third might ask why Jugupsā and Śoka cannot be put down as Vyabhicārin-s instead of being called Sthāyin-s. The whole system of Bharata will then have to be overhauled and this is far from desirable! Bharata alone is the guide and authority to decide which Bhāva is Sthāyin and which Vyabhicārin:

न चासौ शान्तरसेऽन्तर्भावमर्हति । अनुरागस्य वैराग्यविरुद्धत्वात् ।
 उच्यते—भक्तेः देवादिविषयरतित्वेन भावान्तर्गततया रसत्वानुपपत्तेः ।

BHAKTI AND MADHURA-RASA

It was pointed out previously how Daṇḍin illustrated Preyas by two instances of devotion to God, Bhakti. It is natural that, in this country, this sentiment of devotion should have been soon accepted as a Rasa. But Abhinavagupta and others proposed to bring it under Śānta. Śānta is the Rasa relating to the final Puruṣārtha, i.e. Mokṣa; and many are the paths leading to Mokṣa. The three paths of Bhakti, Karman and Jñāna are well known. It may be that Bhakti is in some cases an aṅga of the Śānta developed on lines of Jñāna but the advocates of Bhakti held it to be supreme by itself. They made Jñāna and Karman its aids; the release, Mokṣa, from everything which was the aim of the jñānin, the Bhakta did not favour. He wanted that he should permanently be loving God.

Just as Vīra Rasa has the four varieties, Dāna, etc. this Bhakti also has the varieties of Madhura or Śṛṅgāra or Ujjvala, i.e. love as in the case of the Gopī-s towards Kṛṣṇa, Sakhya as in the case of Arjuna, Vātsalya as in the case of Devakī, Yaśodā, Vasudeva and Nanda, Dāsyā or servitude as in the case of other devotees.

BOPADEVA ON BHAKTI

It was Bopadeva and Hemādri who, in their Bhāgavatamuktāphala and its commentary Kaivalyadīpikā,¹ developed this idea of Bhakti as the main Rasa taking diverse forms and having other Rasa-s subservient to it. In chapter 11, the Bhāgavatamuktāphala says that the devotee or one having Bhakti is of nine kinds and the Rasa of Bhakti takes the form of the nine Rasa-s: Hāsyā, Śṛṅgāra, Karuṇā, Raudra, Bhayānaka, Bibhatsa, Śānta, Adbhuta and Vīra:

स नवधा भक्तः । भक्तिरसस्यैव हास्य-शृङ्गार-करुण-रौद्र-भयानक-
बीभत्स-शान्त-अद्भुत-वीर-रूपेणानुभवात् ।

p. 164.

In the commentary on this, the Kaivalyadīpikā, the position of those opposed to Bhakti as a Rasa is repeated and Bhakti is established as a legitimate Rasa, capable of being relished and having all the required constituents of Sthāyin, etc.:

सामाजिकानां हि यस्मादेवंसामग्रीको भक्तिरसः, तस्मादनपह्वीय
इत्यर्थः । तत्रैषा सामग्री । केनाप्युपायेन मनोनिवेशः² स्थायी । चरित्र-
श्रवणादयः उद्दीपनविभावाः । विष्णुभक्तश्चालम्बनम् । अनुभावास्तु स्तम्भादयो
वक्ष्यमाणाः । यथायोग्यं धृत्यादिव्यभिचारिणश्च । उपायस्तु रतिहास्यादिः ।

ibid., p. 167.

² i.e. in Viṣṇu.

Hemādri then criticizes Abhinavagupta and Hemacandra for not accepting Bhakti as a Rasa and points out that if on the score of its restricted appeal, it is not considered as a Rasa, the same difficulty is in Śānta too; no, in all Rasa-s, for each Rasa evokes response only in those hearts which are attuned to it:

न च संगच्छमानोऽप्ययमसर्वविषयत्वाद् रसत्वात् च्यवतामिति
चोद्यम् । तथा सति सर्वरसोच्छेदापातात् । . . . एवं प्रशान्तब्रह्मचारिप्रभृतयः
शृङ्गाररसास्वादे बहिरङ्गाः । . . . अननुभूतशोकस्पर्शानां च करुणरसास्वादावसरे
पाषाणप्रख्यत्वम् । तस्मात् सवासनस्यैव रसचर्चणेऽपि(णेति) सर्वथा निस्तुषं भक्तिरसदर्शनम् ।

pp. 167-8.

The elaboration of Bhakti Rasa on these lines in which the rhetoricians of Bengal who followed the school of Caitanya specialized was a continuation of what Bopadeva did as a pioneer. Rūpagosvāmin acknowledges his indebtedness to Bopadeva when he says in his Ujjvalanīlamāṇi:

स्पष्टं मुक्ताफले चैतद्बोपदेवेन वर्णितम् । KM 95, p. 450.

Rūpa's two works, the Bhaktirasāmṛtasindhu and the Ujjvalanīlamāṇi deal with this Bhakti Rasa at very great length. Dr. Abhaykumar Guha has dealt with this subject in his article on the Rasa cult in the Caitanyacaritāmṛta in the Sir Asutosh Mookerjee Silver Jubilee Volumes (III, pt. 3, pp. 368-88); and Dr. S. K. De's complete account of 'The Bhakti-Rasa-Śāstra of Bengal Vaiṣṇavism' in the IHQ (vol. 8, 1932, pp. 643-88), obviates the need for us to devote any part of this book to this subject.¹

¹ See also pp. 192-3 of his book, The Early History of the Vaiṣṇava Faith and Movement in Bengal, Calcutta, 2nd. ed., 1961.

These Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal accept the eight Rasa-s of Bharata; accept the Śānta; accept the Vātsalya; accept the 'Sneha-prakṛtiḥ Preyān' or the 'Ārdratā-sthāyikaḥ Snehaḥ' as Sakhya and add only one absolutely new Rasa-concept, namely Dāsya. Thus they speak of twelve Rasa-s but they give a new orientation to the whole scheme, wherein lies the speciality of their school. The old Śṛṅgāra becomes the chief Rasa; it is Rati for their God; it is also called Madhura and Ujjvala. Along with this Madhura, there are four others which are primary; they are Śānta, Dāsya, Sakhya and Vātsalya. These five are called the five Mukhya Bhakti Rasa-s. The rest, the seven (Hāsya, Adbhuta, Vira, Karuṇa, Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Raudra), are secondary, the Gauṇa Bhakti Rasa-s. The primary Bhakti Rasa-s numbering five are the five forms of Bhakti; the seven secondary Rasa-s are more or less Vyabhicārin-s for the five primary Rasa-s, for they are Rasa-s only when they involve Kṛṣṇa-rati:

शान्त दास्य (सख्य) मधुर रस नाम
 कृष्ण भक्ति रस मध्ये ए पञ्च प्रधान ।
 हास्याद्भुत वीर करुण रौद्र बीभत्स भय
 पञ्चविध भक्ते गौण सप्त रस ह्य ।
 पञ्चरस स्थायी व्यापी रहे भक्तमने
 सप्तगौण आगन्तुके पाइये कारणे ॥

(Quoted by Dr. A. K. Guha in the article referred to above.)

According to the table given by Dr. De in his article (p. 666), Dāsya is called Prīta (rendered as Faithfulness) and Sakhya is called Preyas (rendered as Friendship).

Kavikarṇapūra's Alaṃkāra-kaustubha is a regular Alaṃkāra treatise but it introduces some ideas of these Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s also. Kavikarṇapūra does not give us the classification into Mukhya and Gauṇa Rasa, and we miss also Dāśya in his work. He accepts the eight Rasa-s of Bharata, the Śānta and the Vātsalya. To these ten he adds two more, Preman and Bhakti. Preman is the name he gives to the Madhura Rasa, the divine Śṛṅgāra between Kṛṣṇa and the Gopī-s. He considers Citta-drava as its Sthāyin. According to him, this love is not Śṛṅgāra. He also records the view of some who hold Śṛṅgāra as the Rasa between Rādhā and Kṛṣṇa and says that, in that case, Preman will be the aṅga of that Śṛṅgāra. But, according to himself, Preman is the aṅgin; Śṛṅgāra, its aṅga. This Preman, Kavikarṇapūra considers as Love Supreme within which every other Rasa comes:

अथ प्रेमरसः . . . अत्र चित्तद्रवः स्थायी । प्रेमरसे सर्वे
रसा अन्तर्भवन्तीत्यत्र महीयानेव प्रपञ्चः । ग्रन्थगौरवभयाद्दिङ्मात्रमुक्तम् ।
केषांचिन्मते श्रीराधाकृष्णयोः शृङ्गार एव रसः । तन्मतेऽप्येतदुदाहरणं
नासङ्गतम् । शृङ्गारोऽङ्गी प्रेम अङ्गम्, अङ्गस्यापि कचिदुद्दिक्तता । वयं तु
प्रेमाङ्गी, शृङ्गारोऽङ्गमिति विशेषः । तथा च—

उन्मज्जन्ति निमज्जन्ति प्रेम्ण्यखण्डरसत्वतः ।

सर्वे रसाश्च भावाश्च तरङ्गा इव वारिधौ ॥

Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, p. 148.

This view of Preman will make it the basic Love which, Bhoja also says, lies at the root, as Mūla-prakṛti, of Rati and Prīti.

The Vāghela king, Viśvanāthasimha, a great devotee of Rāma and the author of a number of works on Rāma (A.D.

1853-4), treats of Bhagavad-Bhakti as a Rasa at the end of his treatise Sarvasiddhānta (see Rajendralal Mitra, Notices of MSS., vol. VII, p. 100, No. 2329). It would be interesting to compare his elaboration of this subject with that of the Bengal Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s.

MADHUSŪDANA SARASVATĪ ON BHAKTI RASA

It is a well-known fact that Madhusūdana Sarasvatī, the Advaitic dialectician, was a great devotee of the personal God in the form of Kṛṣṇa. In this role, he has left to us a Stotra and a treatise on devotion called Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana,¹ a work in which the subject is approached from the point of view of the Ālaṃkārika and Bhakti is expounded as a Rasa. Though this Rasa is old and has been dealt with by others, as could be seen from the foregoing survey, the treatment by Madhusūdana Sarasvatī has its own peculiarities.

Generally, the Puruṣārtha-s are said to be four: Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Mokṣa. Madhusūdana Sarasvatī says that Puruṣārtha is really that which is bliss untainted by misery, duḥkḥāsamspṛṣṭasukha, and that, if one speaks of four Puruṣārtha-s, one calls the means the end, adopting the common upacāra (p. 5). Since devotion to God, Bhagavad-Bhakti, is one of the ways of attaining such unmixed bliss, Bhakti also is a Puruṣārtha:

अतो भगवद्भक्तियोगस्यापि दुःखासंभिन्नसुखत्वेनैव परमपुरुषार्थत्वमित्याह—‘निरुपमसुखसंविद्रूपमस्पृष्टदुःखम्’ इति । p. 5.

He separates Jñāna and Bhakti and consequently does not include Bhakti in the fourth Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. He bases himself on the difference in character in aspirants to spiritual salvation, which explains why some take to the path of knowledge, Jñāna, and some to the path of devotion, Bhakti. Firm minds seek the former through cultivated Nirveda, while softer minds tending to be emotional seek the latter:

ततश्च अद्रुतचित्तस्य निर्वेदपूर्वकं तत्त्वज्ञानम् । द्रुतचित्तस्य तु
भगवत्कथाश्रवणादिभागवतधर्मश्रद्धापूर्विका भक्तिरिति अवधित्वेन द्वयमप्यु- पात्तम् । p. 2.

On the basis of certain texts in the Bhāgavata, he even says that Jñāna also becomes a means and not an end, a means to the attainment of citta-prasāda, which is necessary for Bhakti. This makes Jñāna a Saṁcārin of Bhakti.

अत्र 'मनो यावत् प्रसीदति' (भा. XI. 20. 22) इति भक्तियोग

He accepts two kinds of Bhakti, the means and the end, sādhana and phala. Even as Jñāna can be a means to Bhakti, Bhakti itself, i.e. different forms or stages of it, can be. The ¹ On p. 11 he points out the difference between Bhakti and Brahmayāgyā or Jñāna. The two are there for two different kinds of adhikārin-s. The common man or anybody as such is a candidate for Bhakti; whereas, only he who has acquired the four sādhana-s is eligible for Brahmayāgyā. In form also, the two differ: Bhakti is a savikalpaka-cittavṛtti and Brahmayāgyā is a nirvikalpaka-cittavṛtti. In the former, the mind takes the form of God.

On p. 6, he points out to the critics who would not give Bhakti such a supreme and independent status of Puruṣārtha, that they should accept Bhakti as a Puruṣārtha, at least as forming part of the first or the fourth, Dharma or Mokṣa.

bhāgavata-dharma-s like śravaṇa and kīrtana, which produce citta-prasāda and sattva-suddhi, form Sādhana-bhakti (p. 8). Bhakti itself can serve to intensify Bhakti.¹

The word Bhakti itself is explained by him in a very original manner. All writers explain Bhakti as Rati for God. He does not say this at first. According to him, Bhakti is the citta taking the form of the Lord. The citta or antaḥkaraṇa takes the form of the object it comes into contact with; bhagavad-ākāratā is Bhakti:

भजनम् अन्तःकरणस्य भगवदाकारतारूपं भक्तिः ।

द्रुतस्य भगवद्धर्माद्वारावाहिकतां गता ।

सर्वेशे मनसो वृत्तिर्भक्तिरित्यभिधीयते ॥ I. 3.

. . . या सर्वेशविषया वृत्तिः भगवदाकारतेत्यर्थः, तदाकार-तैव हि सर्वत्र वृत्तिशब्दोऽस्माकं दर्शने; अतः सा भक्तिरित्यभिधीयते । p. 13.

By karana-vyutpatti, Bhakti means the sādhana-s also:

‘भज्यते सेव्यते भगवदाकारम् अन्तःकरणं क्रियते अनया’ इति
करणव्युत्पत्त्या भक्तिशब्देन श्रवणकीर्तनादि साधनमभिधीयते । p. 8.

Thus the word Bhakti would apply to the Uddīpana-s and the Anubhāva-s also.

Madhusūdana Sarasvatī explains all details, Vibhāva-s, etc. according to his view. The Ālambana-vibhāva is of course the Lord (p. 6):

मुकुन्द इति भक्तियोगस्य विषयनिर्देशः, सर्वान्तर्यामी सर्वेश्वर एव
भक्तिरसालम्बनविभाव इति वक्ष्यते ।

¹ On this, see also Upaniṣad Braharendra's Upeyanāmaviveka and my Introduction to it, ALB, vol. 29, 1965.

Tulasī, Candana, etc. are the Uddipana-vibhāva-s; Anubhāva-s are tears of joy or closing of eyes and the like. Regarding the Sthāyin, the older writers give Rati, but Madhusūdana holds the citta which has taken the form of the Lord, bhagavadākārātā, as the Sthāyin. This Cittavṛtti develops into the Rasa of ineffable bliss:

सकलविषयविमुखमनसः महाभागस्य कस्यचित् भगवद्गुणगरिमग्रन्थन-
रूपग्रन्थश्रवणजनितद्रुतिरूपायां मनोवृत्तौ सर्वसाधनफलभूतायां गृहीतभगवदा-
कारायां विभावानुभावव्यभिचारिसंयोगेन रसरूपतया विभावानुभावव्यभि-
चारिसंयोगाद्रसनिष्पत्तिः इति ।

विभावो द्विविधः—आलम्बनविभावः उद्दीपनविभावश्च । तत्र आलम्बन-
विभावो भगवान्, उद्दीपनविभावः तुलसीचन्दनादिः, अनुभावो नेत्रविक्रियादिः ।
व्यभिचारिणो भावाः निर्वेदादयः; व्यक्तीभवद्भगवदाकारतारूपरसाख्यः
स्थायी भावः परमानन्दसाक्षात्कारात्मकः प्रादुर्भवति; स एव भक्तियोग
इति; तं परमं निरतिशयं पुरुषार्थं वदन्ति रसज्ञाः । p. 4.

It must be noted here that, though Madhusūdana Sarasvatī distinguishes Śānta and Bhakti as essentially different, he still gives Nirveda or sakalaviṣayavimukhamanaskatā (Vairāgya) as a condition precedent even to the Uddipana-vibhāva. This would however make Śānta an aṅga. Though he gives his Sthāyin for Bhakti as bhagavadākāra-cittavṛtti, there does not seem to be any great difference between this and Bhagavad-Rati. For he holds that the result of this Cittavṛtti, its phala, is intense love for God: bhagavadviṣayaka-premaprakarṣo bhaktiphalam, page 11. On page 16, he says that this molten state of the mind is called Praṇaya, Anurāga, Sneha, etc. which are all names of Rati.

इयमेव द्रवावस्था प्रणयानुरागस्नेहादिशब्दैरपि संकीर्त्यते । p. 16.

According to Madhusūdana Sarasvatī, the Ālambana of Bhakti is God; the Rasa realized, Paramānanda, is God; and the Sthāyin, the mind which has taken God's form, is also God. How is this to be explained? He says that God, the Ālambana, is independent and is the bimba (form) of which the Sthāyin in us is the pratibimba (reflection). The form of God is ineffable bliss:

भगवान् परमानन्दस्वरूपः स्वयमेव हि ।

मनोगतस्तदाकाररसतामेति पुष्कलम् ॥

I. 10, p. 18.

बिम्बमेव ह्युपाधिनिष्ठत्वेन प्रतीयमानं प्रतिबिम्बमित्युच्यते । परमानन्दश्च भगवान् मनसि प्रतिबिम्बितः स्थायिभावतामासाद्य रसतामापादयतीति भक्तिरसस्य परमानन्दरूपत्वं निर्विवादम् । नाप्यालम्बनविभावस्थाविभावयोरेक्यम्, बिम्बप्रतिबिम्बभावत्वेन भेदस्य व्यवहारसिद्धत्वात्, ईशजीवयोरिव । p. 18.

He then recognizes that the following Bhāva-s can become Sthāyin-s and Rasa-s: 1. Kāma becoming Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha; 2. Krodha becoming Dveṣa as in Śisupāla and Kaṁsa; 3. Bhaya; 4. Sneha (Dāsyā, Sakhya, Vātsalya, and Preyas); 5. Haṛṣa becoming love for Kṛṣṇa; 6. Hāsa; 7. Vismaya; 8. Utsāha (Dayā, Dāna and Dharma); 9. Śoka; 10. Jugupsā; and 11. Śama (II. 25-26). Of these, according to him, Dharma-vīra, Dayā-vīra, Bībhatsa and Śama are not part of Bhakti Rasa (II. 27-28). Similarly Dveṣa born of Īṣyā and Bhaya are not part of Bhakti (II. 29). So also Raudra and Bhayānaka are never aṅga-s of Bhakti (II. 30):

धर्मवीरो दयावीरो बीभत्सः शान्त इत्यमी ।

अतो न भक्तिरसतां यान्ति मित्रास्पदत्वतः ॥

ईर्ष्याजभयजद्वेषौ भगवद्विषयावपि ।

न भक्तिरसतां यातः साक्षाद् द्रुतिविरोधतः ॥ II. 28-9.

The feelings of the Lord's foes like Śiṣupāla and Kāṁsa, dveṣa and bhaya (Raudra and Bhayānaka), cannot become Bhakti; possibly, in the next birth, they may lead to the manifestation of Bhakti Rasa in them:

रजःप्रबलसत्त्वांशादीर्ष्याजद्वेषमिश्रिता ।

मनोवृत्तिः परानन्दे चैद्यस्य न सुखायते ॥

तमःप्रबलसत्त्वांशाद् भीतिजद्वेषमिश्रिता ।

मनोवृत्तिः परानन्दे कंसस्य न सुखायते ॥

तयोर्भाविशरीरे तु प्रतिबन्धक्षये सति ।

सैव चित्तद्रुतिः भक्तिरसतां प्रतिपद्यते ॥ II. 53-5.

The rest could mix with (vyāmiśra) and form part of Bhakti (II. 31-33) but Śṛṅgāra, Vātsalya and Preyas can become pure Bhakti Rasa-s themselves (II. 35):

विशुद्धो वत्सलः प्रेयानिति भक्तिरसास्त्रयः ।

रसान्तरामिश्रितास्ते भवन्ति परिपुष्कलाः ॥

As pointed out already, he is of the opinion that Śānta Rasa and Mokṣa Puruṣārtha are for adruta-citta-s and that both differ from Bhakti which is a separate Puruṣārtha. Hence he excludes Śānta from Bhakti. But as can be seen in the earlier section, the Bhakti Rasa scheme of Bopadeva, Rūpa and others, admits Śānta in Bhakti. This, the author of the gloss on Madhusūdana Sarasvatī also points out. Madhusūdana Sarasvatī rules out from the scope of Bhakti, Dharma-vīra and Dayā-vīra because their Ālambana-s differ; Raudra and Bhaya are against love and dveṣa cannot produce any Druti. When Bopadeva accepts all the others as being subservient to Bhakti, he takes them however as figuring in the stories of the Lord, in the different characters that come into contact or conflict with the Lord, and not necessarily in the devotees of the Lord only:

विष्णोर्विष्णुभक्तानां वा चरित्रस्य नवरसात्मकस्य श्रवणादिना
जनितश्चमत्कारो भक्तिरसः ।
p. 167.

Thus Raudra is illustrated by Hiranyakaśipu, and Bhayānaka by Kāṁsa, following the statement in the Bhāgavata that kinsmen, friend or foe, everybody attained the Lord through the feeling and attitude through which he became engrossed with the thought of the Lord:

कामाद् द्वेषाद् भयात् स्नेहाद् यथा भक्त्येश्वरे मनः ।
आवेश्य तदघं हित्वा बहवस्तद्गतिं गताः ॥
गोप्यः कामाद्भयात् कंसो द्वेषाच्चैद्यादयो नृपाः ।
संबन्धाद्वृणयः स्नेहाद् यूयं भक्त्या वयं विभो ॥

VII. 1. 29-30.

But, as shown above, the approach of Madhusūdana Sarasvatī and his very conception of the main Bhakti Rasa and its subsidiary Rasa-s are different.

Those who did not accept Bhakti as a separate Rasa considered it as a Bhāva, a variety of Rati, the object of which was God: devādiviṣayā ratiḥ. To these writers, Madhusūdana Sarasvatī replies that this Bhāva-Rati described as devādiviṣayā refers to Rati for the lesser gods. Rati for the one Supreme Being is a Rasa:

रतिर्देवादिविषया व्यभिचारी तथोर्जितः ।

भावः प्रोक्तो रसो नेति यदुक्तं रसकोविदैः ॥

देवान्तरेषु जीवत्वात् परानन्दाप्रकाशनात् ।

तद्योज्यम् ; परमानन्दरूपे न परमात्मनि ॥

II. 75-6.

If Krodha, Śoka and Bhaya, which are not directly states of happiness could become Rasa-s, on the ground of experience, how can Bhakti which is directly and a thousandfold blissful, be denied the character of Rasa? (II. 79-80).

Bhakti Rasa is the real Rasa, since it is here that one has the ineffable bliss that is not tainted by even the least sorrow. Śṛṅgāra and other Rasa-s cannot mean this bliss and are therefore inferior; they are like glow-worms; Bhakti is the very sun:

कान्तादिविषया वा ये रसाद्यास्तत्र नेदृशम् ।

रसत्वं पुष्यते पूर्णसुखास्पर्शित्वकारणात् ॥

परिपूर्णरसा क्षुद्ररसेभ्यो भगवद्भक्तिः ।

स्वद्योतेभ्य इवादित्यप्रभेव बलवत्तरा ॥

II. 77-8.

THE MĀYĀ RASA

The acceptance of Śānta gave rise in later times to another controversial Rasa called Māyā. Just as there is the possibility of depicting the Śānta Rasa with psychological, religious and metaphysical concepts like Jñāna, Bhakti, Śama, Dama, Saṁtuṣṭi, etc. there is also the possibility of depicting the Māyā Rasa by showing the jīvātman enmeshed in saṁsāra

as a result of mithyājñāna or avidyā, with characters such as Kāma, Krodha and Lobha. Even as Śānta is the Rasa of the state called nivṛtti, Māyā is the Rasa of the state called pravṛtti. In a philosophical drama, the Rasa from which the hero escapes into the Śānta, is Māyā. The Rasataranginī of Bhānudatta argues:

चित्तवृत्तिः द्विधा—प्रवृत्तिर्निवृत्तिश्च । निवृत्तौ यथा शान्तरसः, तथा
प्रवृत्तौ मायास इति प्रतिभाति । ch. 7.

He points out how this Māyā cannot be identical with or included in Rati in its Bhāva form, as indeed it appears in the illustrative verse cited. If it is so, of what Rasa would that Rati-bhāva be a Vyabhicārin? Not of any one of the eight Rasa-s; it cannot be of Śṛṅgāra, for we see in it one of its opposite Rasa-s, Bibhatsa; all the mutually antagonistic Rasa-s are present in the case of Māyā. For this reason, it cannot be argued that Māyā Rasa is the common name of all the eight Rasa-s which are its various forms, because this would obviate the need for Śānta Rasa.¹ Rati and the seven

शान्तरसस्य तर्हि रसाभासत्वापत्तेः ।

But the reading available in the old lithographed ed. of Banaras of 1885 with Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi's commentary is:

शान्तरसस्य तर्हि रसाभावत्वापत्तेः । p. 83.

The view that Māyā may be a comprehensive Rasa common to all Rasa-s covers only the eight Rasa-s, and not Śānta which is its direct opposite, and will thus fall outside. In fact, Viśveśvara, who reproduces the passage from Bhānudatta and naturally felt difficulty in following the words here changes these words alone as follows: शान्तस्य बहिर्भावापत्तेः । Rasacandrikā, p. 68.

other Sthāyin-s become the Vyabhicārin-s of this Rasa of Māyā. The exact position however seems to be that instead of Śānta being obviated, Māyā Rasa will be rendered superfluous; for it is one established in Śānta who will see all these eight, Rati, etc., as Māyā, and that realization will be a Vibhāva of Śānta, forming part of Viveka:

किंतु विद्युदिव रतिहासशोकक्रोधोत्साहभयजुगुप्साविस्मयास्तत्र उत्पद्यन्ते
विलीयन्ते च । तेन तत्र व्यभिचारिभावा इति ।

The Sthāyin of this Rasa is Mithyājñāna:

लक्षणं च प्रबुद्धमिथ्याज्ञानवासना माया रसः । मिथ्याज्ञानमस्य
स्थायिभावः । विभावाः सांसारिकभोगार्जकधर्माधर्माः । अनुभावाः पुत्र-
कलत्रविजयसाम्राज्यादयः ।

The Rasadīrghikā of Vidyārāma, composed in A.D. 1650, describes the Māyā among the Rasa-s:

ततो हास्यादिमायान्तरसानां वर्णनं क्रमात् ।

—BORI MS., Descriptive Catalogue, XII. 210.

The Haṃsaviḷāsa, a Tāntric work by Haṃsamitṭhu, of the former half of the 18th century A.D., accepts Māyā as the tenth Rasa, with Mithyājñāna as its Sthāyin (GOS 81, p. 253).

The Mandāramaranda-campū follows the Rasataranṅiṇī and describes the Māyā Rasa of pravṛtti as well as the Śānta Rasa of nivṛtti (KM 52, p. 106).

Viśveśvara, in his Rasacandrikā, sets forth the arguments in the Rasataranṅiṇī as the pūrvapakṣa and refutes the possibility of Māyā being a Rasa. Mithyājñāna, mentioned as its Sthāyin, is always in a fully developed form and there is therefore no question of its developing into a state of Rasa. If this is conceded, anything read in poetry would be Rasa, and there would be no basis for distinguishing Vyabhicārin and Sthāyin:

मिथ्याज्ञानवासनायाश्च सर्वदापि प्रबुद्धत्वात् । काव्यादिभ्यो जायमानस्य विषयज्ञानमात्रस्य रसत्वापत्तेश्च । तत्र चमत्कारस्याननुभूयमानत्वात्, व्यभिचारिस्थायिभावानां व्यवस्थानुपपत्तेश्चेति दिक् । KSS 53, 1926, p. 69.

Cirañjīvibhaṭṭācārya also cites the Rasatarāṅgiṇī on Māyā Rasa and criticizes it:

अत्रेदं चिन्त्यं—मायाया अनादित्वेन अजन्यत्वात् रसत्वासंभवः । रसास्तु सर्वे जन्या एव । कथं वा कथयेत् मिथ्याज्ञानादिः मायायाः कारणमिति, शास्त्रविरुद्धत्वात् । वस्तुतस्तु आलङ्कारिकाणां मते रसो नित्यः आनन्दरूपः । अतोऽस्य ब्रह्मस्वरूपत्वेन मायाया रसत्वासंभवः । माया हि तुच्छा विनाशशालिनी ब्रह्मभिन्नैवेति दिक् । अत एव प्राचीनसांप्रदायिकैरपि नवैव रसाः कथिताः ।

Kāvya-vilāsa, Princess of Wales Sarasvati Bhavana Texts,
16, p. 10.

This scholastic criticism, which goes into some of the features of the concept of Māyā as accepted in metaphysics, does not meet the question properly. If it is argued that Rasa is nitya, ānandarūpa and hence of the form of the Brahman, and consequently Māyā which is different from Brahman cannot be a Rasa, how does the author propose to explain Śṛṅgāra, etc. as Rasa-s? They all come under Māyā. If a portrayal of Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Raudra can be Rasa, why not Māyā? One argument mentioned by the advocate of the Māyā Rasa is this: As an opposite of the Śānta Rasa, a Māyā Rasa is possible; but let it not be a unitary Rasa; let it be the common name for all the eight Rasa-s. This can be countered by saying that as it is made up of Śṛṅgāra and the seven other Rasa-s, any given specimen presenting a mundane activity can be called by one of the eight names (Śṛṅgāra, etc.) and it is not necessary to have Māyā as a separate Rasa, it being only the common name of all the eight mundane Rasa-s of pravṛtti. Suppose, in a philosophical or religious play, pravṛtti and nivṛtti are portrayed; under the former, Kāma, Krodha, etc. will be portrayed as developing into Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and other Rasa-s. To us who see it with unenlightened minds, the several parts will appeal as Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and so on; we will never realize them as Māyā; if we do, we shall be sitting along with the chosen few, the jñānin-s who alone see Māyā in all those Rasa-s and to them, this Māyā will not produce citta-saṁvāda or rasāśvāda; only the opposite, Śānta, will produce response in them. Therefore, practically speaking, there is no necessity for a Māyā Rasa.

THE KĀRPAṆYA RASA

Along with the Laulya, which Abhinavagupta had already mentioned, Bhānudatta examines if Kārpaṇya can be a Rasa. He mentions Sprhā as its Sthāyin. The argument for rejecting this is the same as that used by Abhinavagupta for rejecting Laulya. Even as a development of Laulya can only become Hāsyā, development of Kārpaṇya also will become Hāsyā. (RT, ch. 5, p. 125.)

THE VRĪḌANAKA RASA

The Anuyogadvāra-sūtra of the Jains, which was mentioned previously in the section on the Śānta Rasa, gives nine

Kāvyarasa-s, in which list, Bhayānaka is omitted and in its place is found a new Rasa called Vrīḍanaka, which can be rendered as 'modesty' (Āgamodaya Samiti Series ed. with Maladhāri Hemacandra's Sanskrit gloss, p. 134):

णव कव्वरसा पणत्ता, तं जहा—

वीरो सिंगारो अम्भुओ अ रोद्धो अ होइ बोद्धव्वो ।

वेलणओ बीमच्छो हासो कलुणो पसंतो अ ॥

The commentary of Maladhāri Hemacandra ¹ explains that Vrīḍanaka is the Rasa of Bashfulness, that some give in its place Bhayānaka as a Rasa and that this Bhayānaka is included in Raudra and hence not mentioned separately.

व्रीडयति लज्जामुत्पादयति लज्जनीयवस्तुदर्शनादिप्रभवो मनोव्यलीकतादि-
स्वरूपो व्रीडनकः । अस्य स्थाने भयजनकसंग्रामादिवस्तुदर्शनादिप्रभवः भयानको
रसः पठ्यतेऽन्यत्र । स चेह रौद्रसान्तर्भावविवक्षणात् पृथङ् नोक्तः ।

In defining it, however, the text includes a verse in which we find Bhayānaka described rather than Raudra, to explain which the commentator says that the text describes not Raudra as such, but describes it through its effect, Bhaya. The Lakṣaṇaśloka is:

भयजननरूपशब्दान्धकारचिन्ताकथासमुत्पन्नः ।

संमोहसंभ्रमविषादमरणलिङ्गो रसो रौद्रः ॥

(छाया)

¹ The commentator's date is the end of the 11th cent. and early part of the 12th. He wrote his Jīvasamāsa in A.D. 1107 and Bhāvabhāvanā in A.D. 1113 (Winternitz, History of Indian Literature, English translation, II, p. 589). He is different from the author of the Kāvyānuśāsana.

The illustration is however for Raudra proper :

भ्रुकुटीविडम्बितमुख संदद्योष्ठ इत आकीर्णरुधिर ।
हंसि पशुं असुरनिभ भीमरसित अतिरौद्र रौद्रोऽसि ॥

The commentator explains that though the Lakṣaṇa-śloka means only the Bhayānaka Rasa, it has to be taken as referring to the cause of Bhayānaka, Raudra also:

ननु भयजनकरूपादिभ्यः समुत्पन्नः संमोहादिलिङ्गश्च भयानक एव भवति, कथमस्य रौद्रत्वम् ; किंतु पिशाचादिरौद्रवस्तुभ्यो जातत्वात् रौद्रत्वमस्य विवक्षितमित्यदोषः । . . . रौद्रो रसः, सोऽप्युपलक्षणत्वादत्रैव द्रष्टव्यः, अन्यथा च निरास्पद एव स्यात् । अत एव रौद्रपरिणामवत्पुरुषचेष्टाप्रतिपादकमेव उदाहरणं दर्शयिष्यति । भीतचेष्टाप्रतिपादकं तु तत् स्वत एव अभ्यूहमित्यलं प्रसङ्गेन ।

If the number of Rasa-s is to be reduced by omitting the Rasa-s which are produced by other Rasa-s or the Rasa-s which are the causes of other Rasa-s, we shall arrive at four Rasa-s, proceeding on the basis of Bharata's indication of the kāraṇa-kārya-bhāva existing among the eight Rasa-s, śṛṅgārāddhi bhaveddhāsyah, etc. Such a process of reducing the number is illogical. There is no reason why the causal Rasa should be retained and the effected Rasa dismissed and why it should not be vice versa.

Coming to the Vṛīḍanaka Rasa, the definition and illustration are as follows:

विनयोपचारगुह्यगुरुदारमर्यादाव्यतिक्रमोत्पन्नः ।
व्रीडनको नाम रसो लज्जाशङ्काकरणलिङ्गः ॥

यथा—

किं लौकिककरणीयात् लज्जनीयतरमिति लज्जितास्मि ।

विवाहे गुरुजनो परिवन्दते वधूनिवसनम् ॥

(छाया)

According to the gloss, this is a verse addressed by a prospective bride to her maid. The reference in it is to a provincial marriage custom according to which, elderly men and women, including the father-in-law and the mother-in-law, pay their respects to the Sari and the person of the bride after the nuptial night. The bride is taken round and elders revere her for her chastity. The thought of the elders revering her produces a sense of shame in the bride's heart.¹

This, however, is a mere Vyabhicārin and hardly a Rasa. Vrīḍā of the same description is given by Bharata as one of the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s.

THE CITRA RASA

The question of the mutual compatability or otherwise among the Rasa-s has been discussed by Ānandavardhana in Dhva. Ā, III, and all later writers have followed him on this. Where mutually friendly Rasa-s are brought together, the principle of one being the main and the other or others

¹ Umāsvāti mentions Vrīḍā as Lajjā in his Prasamarati, v. 106 :

आदावत्यभ्युदया मध्ये शृङ्गारहास्यदीप्तरसाः ।

निकषे विषया बीभत्सकरुणलज्जभयप्रायाः ॥

Here Dīpta means Vīra; Bharata himself calls Vīra by that name. It is interesting to see in this verse the idea that eventually Śṛṅgāra ends in Bībhatsa, Hāsyā in Kar ṇa, and Lajjā and Vīra in Bhayānaka Rasa.

subsidiary and helpful to it—aṅgāṅgi-bhāva—and the interposing of a friendly Rasa to bring on an incompatible one, —all this has been accepted by writers. There was, however, a very late writer named Gaṅgādhara who propounded a novel view that where incompatible Rasa-s come together, it would be a case of Citra Rasa. The work where this writer propounded this view is not known; but Prabhākara (A.D. 1583) makes a reference in his Rasapradīpa,¹ to this peculiar view and to his having refuted it in his Alaṅkārahāsyā.

इति काव्ये नवेति विवेचितं मया अलंकाररहस्ये । एतेषां च
विरोधाविरोधचिन्ता, विरोधस्थले गङ्गाधरोक्तचित्ररसनिराकरणं च तत्रैव द्रष्टव्यम् ।
p. 39.

This Citra Rasa of Gaṅgādhara is thus different from a case like Śānta or Bhakti or Māyā of which other Rasa-s or Sthāyin-s become Vyabhicārin-s, and while discussing which Abhinavagupta and Madhusūdana Sarasvatī have used the analogy of pānaka drink to explain citra-rūpa:

अन्ये तु पानकरसवदविभागं प्राप्ताः सर्वे एव रत्यादयः अत्र
(शान्ते) स्थायिन इत्याहुः । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 337.

रसान्तरविभावादिसंकीर्णा भगवद्भक्तिः ।

चित्ररूपवदन्यादृग्रसतां प्रतिपद्यते ॥

Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana, II. 73.

In the case of Śānta, Abhinavagupta refutes the possibility of a 'cocktail' in Rasa; in Bhakti, Madhusūdhana Sarasvatī accepts the composite form in cases where other Rasa-s like Hāsyā figure in a subsidiary manner, but mentions also the pure form of Bhakti as in great sages like Sanaka.

VII

THE VARIETIES OF THE SAME RASA

THE first Rasa, Śrīṅāra, has two phases, Saṁbhoga Vipralambha, the two adhiṣṭhāna-s, as Bharata says, of Śrī. There is a peculiar view in this connection propounded by king Haripāladeva, who was mentioned above in the section on the Śānta Rasa, as holding two Rasa-s called the Śānta and the Brāhma. Haripāla accepts thirteen Rasa-s: the six of Bharata, Śānta and Vātsalya and three new Rasas, Saṁbhoga, Vipralambha and Brāhma. The peculiarities of the Brāhma Rasa and its difference from the Śānta Rasa have already been explained:

शृङ्गारो हास्यनामा च बीभत्सः करुणस्तथा ।
वीरो भयानकाह्वानो रौद्राख्योऽद्भुतसंज्ञकः ॥
शान्तो ब्राह्माभिवः पश्चाद् वात्सल्याख्यमतः परम् ।
संभोगो विप्रलम्भः स्यात् रसास्त्वेते त्रयोदश ॥

Mad. MS., f

Haripāla has three different Rasa-s: Śrīṅāra, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha. He considers them separate, since, according to him, their characters differ essentially. He thus argues his case against the ancients:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।
अतिरिक्ता उदीर्यन्ते हरिपालमहीभुजा ॥

तत्रेयं वासना (?) पूर्वैः संभोगो विप्रलम्भकः ।
 शृङ्गारस्यैव भेदौ द्वौ कथितौ—तदसांप्रतम् ॥
 अनित्यस्तत्र शृङ्गारः क(का)चित्को दृश्यते यतः ।
 पशुपक्षिमृगाद्येषु यतश्च न विलोक्यते ॥
 सर्वजन्तुषु दृश्यत्वात् संभोगस्यास्ति नित्यता ।
 अतोऽभ्यधायि संभोगो रसः शृङ्गारकः(तः) पृथक् ॥
 उज्ज्वलः शुचिरित्युक्तः शृङ्गारो हर्षवर्धनः ।
 मलिनो दुःखकारी च विप्रलम्भोऽप्रियावहः ॥
 अतः शृङ्गारतो भिन्नो विप्रलम्भ उदाहृतः ।
 भयानकस्य वीरस्य जन्यस्य जनकस्य च ।
 यो भेदो विप्रलम्भस्य संभोगस्य च स स्मृतः ॥ p. 18.

Śṛṅgāra has always been considered as ujjvala and śuci a Rasa of men of cultivated taste and of sophisticated nature the uttama-prakṛti-s. Therefore, in course of time, śuci and ujjvala became synonyms of Śṛṅgāra. In an unsophisticated rustic, there is Śṛṅgāra but only in a way. The ancients also consider that love in birds and beasts is not Rasa, but only a semblance, rasābhāsa. Therefore, love as understood by the word Śṛṅgāra is anitya and kvācitka, being present only in high class individuals. But love of a kind which is the joy pair derives mutually is present in all living beings, rustic birds and beasts. This love need not be called Śṛṅgārābhāsa; it may be separated into a distinct Rasa and called Sambhog.

More striking is Haripāla's view regarding Vipralambha. Since both Śṛṅgāra and Sambhoga are of a pleasurable nature, and Vipralambha is essentially of a painful nature, the latter is a separate Rasa. If Śṛṅgāra is śuci and ujjval

Haripāla has three different Rasa-s: Śṛṅgāra, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha. He considers them separate, since, according to him, their characters differ essentially. He thus argues his case against the ancients:

संभोगो विप्रलम्भश्च ब्राह्मश्चेति त्रयो रसाः ।

 भयानकस्य वीरस्य जन्यस्य जनकस्य च ।
 यो भेदो विप्रलम्भस्य संभोगस्य च स स्मृतः ॥ p. 18.

Śṛṅgāra has always been considered as ujjvala and śuci, a Rasa of men of cultivated taste and of sophisticated nature, the uttama-prakṛti-s. Therefore, in course of time, śuci and ujjvala became synonyms of Śṛṅgāra. In an unsophisticated rustic, there is Śṛṅgāra but only in a way. The ancients also consider that love in birds and beasts is not Rasa, but only its semblance, rasābhāsa. Therefore, love as understood by the word Śṛṅgāra is anitya and kvācitka, being present only in high class individuals. But love of a kind which is the joy a pair derives mutually is present in all living beings, rustics, birds and beasts. This love need not be called Śṛṅgārābhāsa; it may be separated into a distinct Rasa and called Sambhoga.

More striking is Haripāla's view regarding Vipralambha. Since both Śṛṅgāra and Sambhoga are of a pleasurable nature, and Vipralambha is essentially of a painful nature, the latter is a separate Rasa. If Śṛṅgāra is śuci and ujjvala, Vipralambha is malina. Vipralambha may be due to Śṛṅgāra or Saṁbhoga. This cause-effect relationship between Śṛṅgāra and Vipralambha is no proof of their essential identity. The two differ as much as Vīra and Bhayānaka, of which the former produces the latter.

If love among higher classes is different from rustic love, and love among birds and animals, equally do the separations, Vipralambha-s, in the two cases differ. Strictly speaking, Haripāla should have two Rasa-s for love in separation.

Haripāla gives Āhlāda as the Sthāyin of Śṛṅgāra, Rati of Saṁbhoga and Arati of Vipralambha:

आह्लादः प्रथमं

. ग्रीत्यरती तथा ।

प्रत्येकं स्थायिनो भावाः क्रमात् प्रत्येकमीरिताः ॥ p. 17.

The ancients were not unaware of the painfulness of Vipralambha, but they did not consider it, on that score, as a separate Rasa. Autsukya or longing is at the root of Vipralambha. This longing is only a kind of Rati. Arati can only be an intermediate state in the ten avasthā-s of love and it is not the basic state of mind that persists throughout Vipralambha. The slender line of Rati runs through the state of Vipralambha; and if this Rati is not accepted in Vipralambha, as its Sthāyin, there can be no difference between Vipralambha and Karuṇa. The Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa argues that Rati is not of the form of happiness, since Vipralambha is far from being pleasurable:

आनन्दात्मकत्वं रतेः कैश्चिदुक्तम्, तच्चिन्त्यम् । विप्रयोगादेः

आनन्दात्मकत्वस्य अयोगात् । p. 7.

The Rasakalikā does not however separate Vipralambha as a distinct Rasa, but takes it, as all do, as a phase of Śṛṅgāra only. It agrees with Haripāla in finding Vipralambha as standing in the way of accepting Rati to be of the nature of pleasure. Rati will thus be, according to the Rasakalikā, a state of pleasure as well as pain. Viprayoga, though apparently and immediately painful, is ultimately a state of pleasure. The very life of Rati is a certain longing; and this exists in Saṁbhoga as well as in Vipralambha. That it constitutes the life of Rati is seen from what Kālidāsa and Māyurāja say: ratim ubhayaprārthanā kurute (Śākuntala) and premāsamāptotsavam (Tāpasavatsarāja). Therefore, Vipralambha is an aspect of Śṛṅgāra only, and of Vipralambha also, Rati is the Sthāyin:

विप्रलम्भे रतिरेव स्थायी . . . विप्रकर्षेऽपि रतेः स्वतः सिद्धत्वात् ।

Alaṅkāraakautubha.

To match its opinion that Rati is not unmixed pleasure, the Rasakalikā says that Rasa itself is of the nature of both pleasure and pain; but of this more in a further section.

To return to Haripāla's Saṁbhoga Rasa, he postulated this for the love of those who are not uttama-prakṛti-s. The love of birds and beasts described so largely in the Kāvya-s, which was known by the term rasābhāsa, comes under Haripāla's Saṁbhoga Rasa. Vidyādhara, the author of the Ekāvalī, refuses to recognize that the love of birds and beasts is rasābhāsa. He says that their love also is Rasa. If it is said that the birds and beasts do not consciously enjoy or enjoy in such a manner as cultivated men and women do, such knowledge and cultivated taste, Vidyādhara says, is irrelevant. Why should the subject know what it is enjoying or how it enjoys, provided it enjoys? Kumārasvāmin cites this view of Vidyādhara in his commentary on the Pratāparudriya:

अत्र तिरश्चोः पारावतयोः कलाकौशलाभावेन तदीयशृङ्गारस्य विभा-
वादिपरिपूर्त्यभावात् आभासत्वं द्रष्टव्यम्¹ । रस एवायं नाभास इति केचित् ।
तदुक्तं विद्याधरेण—विभावादिसंभवो हि रसं प्रति प्रयोजकः, न विभावा-
दिज्ञानम् । ततश्च तिरश्चामस्त्येव रसः । Balamanorama ed., p. 21.

Earlier than Kumārasvāmin, Śiṅgabhūpāla noticed this view of Vidyādhara, and as a staunch follower of the accepted tradition, criticized it. The discussion in his Rasārṇavasudhā-kara is too long to be quoted in full. (TSS ed., pp. 206-9.) Vidyādhara's view is thus stated:

अपरे तु रसाभासं तिर्यक्षु प्रचक्षते । तत् न परीक्षाक्षमम् । तेष्वपि
भावादिसंभवात् । विभावादिज्ञानशून्यास्तिर्यच्चः न भाजनं भवितुमर्हन्ति रमस्येति
चेत् न । मनुष्येष्वपि केषुचित् तथाभूतेषु रसविषयाभासप्रसङ्गात् । अत्र
विभावादिसंभवोऽपि रसं प्रति प्रयोजकः, न विभावादिज्ञानम् । ततश्च
तिरश्चामस्त्येव रसः ।

The criticism of Śiṅgabhūpāla is that Śṛṅgāra is essentially a Rasa of subjects, Ālambana-s, who are śuci and ujjvala; it is not enough if, according to their own conditions, birds and beasts do have a consciousness of their love and its art; it is a question of aucitya. How can a human being, who alone is Sāmājika for poetry and drama, have cittasamvāda in such cases? The terms Vibhāva, etc. do not apply in the case of love among birds and beasts; the emotional conditions there are called only kāraṇa, kārya, etc. Says Śiṅgabhūpāla:

¹ That love among birds and beasts has less of art and is less poetic may not be accepted at all by biologists.

अथ स्वजातियोग्यधर्मैः करिणां करिणीं प्रति विभावत्वमिति चेत् न ।
तस्यां कक्ष्यायां करिणां करिणीरागं प्रति कारणत्वम्, न पुनः विभावत्वम् ।

किंच जातियोग्यैर्धर्मैः वस्तुनो न विभावत्वम्, अपि तु भावक-
चित्तोल्लासहेतुभी रतिविशिष्टैरेव ।

किंच विभावादिज्ञानं नाम औचित्यविवेकः, तेन शून्याः तिर्यञ्चो न
विभावतां यान्ति । . . . विवेकरहितजनोपलक्षणग्लेच्छगतस्य रसस्य आभासत्वे
स्वेष्टावाप्तेः ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, pp. 206-7.

Consistent with this argument, Śiṅgabdhūpālā says that anaucitya is the only cause of a Rasa becoming its ābhāsa; that this anaucitya is of two kinds, asatyatva and ayogyatva, and that in trees and other aspects of nature which are described in love-images, the Rasa is ābhāsa by reason of asatyatva and in rustics, low people, and birds and beasts, the Rasa is ābhāsa by reason of ayogyatva.

आभासता भवेदेषामनौचित्यप्रवर्तिनाम् ।

असत्यत्वादयोग्यत्वात् अनौचित्यं द्विधा भवेत् ॥

असत्यत्वकृतं तत् स्याद् अचेतनगतं तु यत् ।

अयोग्यत्वकृतं प्रोक्तं नीचतिर्यङ्नराश्रयम् ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, pp. 141-2.

Kumārasvāmin does not refute Vidyādhara, and Rājacūḍāmaṇidīkṣita fully agrees with Vidyādhara. After reproducing the Ekāvalī, Rājacūḍāmaṇi says that if the Kāvya-prakāśa is not wrong in illustrating Bhayānaka Rasa with the verse grīvābhaṅgābhīrāmam, etc. describing fear in a deer, it is Rasa in birds and animals, and not rasābhāsa:

अत एव काव्यप्रकाशिकायां 'ग्रीवाभङ्गाभिरामं मुहुरनुपतति स्यन्दने
बद्धदृष्टिः—' इति श्लोकेन भयानकरसः तिर्यग्विषयगततया उदाहृत इत्याहुः ।

Kāvyaadarpaṇa, Vani Vilas ed., ch. 4, pp. 211-12.

Possibly, Śiṅgabhūpāla would reply to Rājacūḍāmaṇi that the Rasa in question is only Śṛṅgāra, and aucitya-viveka was spoken of only regarding this Rasa and its ābhāsa. He might even add that Bhayānaka is, by its very definition, a Rasa of nīca-prakṛti-s, etc. But would he accept that other Rasa-s in birds and beasts are not ābhāsa and should a distinction be made among the Rasa-s?

Haripāla's contribution to this controversy is the creation of a Saṃbhoga Rasa for rustics, aborigines, birds, beasts, etc.

Of Vipralambha, according to the traditional conception, four forms are usually given: Pūrvānurāga or Ayoga, Māna, Pravāsa and Karuṇa. Regarding these four forms of love in separation, a peculiar view expounded by Bopadeva and Hemādri must be noted. They do not accept Karuṇa-vipralambha, which they say is just Karuṇa; also they do not consider Śāpa-vipralambha, mentioned by Mammaṭa as a separate form, and take it as part of Pravāsa, even as Bhoja and others do. But they present for the first time the fourth form of Vipralambha as Vaicitya, being completely absent-minded or oblivious of each other, even when the two are together, by reason of flurry, excess of love, etc:

विप्रलम्भमाह । विप्रलम्भेति । स चतुर्धा पूर्वानुराग-मान-प्रवास-वैचित्य-
भेदात् । . . . यत्र तु संनिकर्षेऽपि प्रियः प्रिया वा विभ्रमवशात् स्वरूपमपि
विस्मरति स वैचित्यविप्रलम्भः । स च प्राग्भ्यः त्रिभ्यो भिन्न एव, तल्लक्षणा-
भावात् । Bhāgavatamuktāphala with Kaivalyadīpikā, pp. 185-6.

Apart from the illustrations from the Bhāgavata given in the body of the Muktāphala, the commentary mentions also canto 9 of the Naiṣadhīyacarita (vv. 103-21) as depicting this Vaicitya-vipralambha. In the end of the chapter again the commentary says that this original idea of Bopadeva, the Vaicitya-vipralambha, must be accepted:

तस्माद्वैचित्यरूपं विप्रलम्भस्य भेदान्तरमवश्यमभ्युपेतव्यम् । अयमेवात्र
विदग्धबुद्धेराचार्यस्याभिप्रायः ॥ p. 217.

This is of course a unique idea of Bopadeva, as no regular Ālaṃkārika has followed it or even noticed it, but within the fold of the Vaiṣṇava Ālaṃkārika-s of Bengal, Rūpa accepts this Vaicitya as one of the four forms of Vipralambha. See Ujjvalanīlamani, KM. ed., pp. 416, 449-50, where he mentions also his source as Bopadeva. But, unlike Bopadeva, Rūpa includes Karuṇa-vipralambha under Pravāsa, not Karuṇa-Rasa (p. 458). For, as Jagannātha says, it is not the physical but mental contiguity or distance that is of the essence of Saṃyoga or Viyoga:

तस्माद् द्वाविमौ संयोगवियोगाख्यौ अन्तःकरणवृत्तिविशेषौ ।

RG, p. 34.

Hence Jagannātha does not attach any importance to the old classification of Vipralambha into five forms, Pravāsa, etc.

इमं (विप्रलम्भं) च पञ्चविधं प्राञ्चः प्रवासादिभिरुपाधिभिरामनन्ति ।
ते च प्रवासाभिरुषविरहेर्ष्याशापानां विशेषानुपलम्भान्नास्माभिः प्रपञ्चिताः ।
RG, p. 35.

Śāpa is generally included under Pravāsa by those who accept Karuṇa as the fourth form of Vipralambha. Even the authors of the Daśarūpaka and Avaloka, who do not accept Karuṇa-vipralambha, mention Śāpa only as a sub-variety of Pravāsa. The only noteworthy writer to mention Śāpa as a separate form of Vipralambha is Mammata who, unlike any other writer, gives five forms of Vipralambha, including Irṣyā, separation caused by jealousy.

अपरस्तु (विप्रलम्भस्तु) अभिलाष-विरह-ईर्ष्या-प्रवास-शाप-हेतुक इति
पञ्चविधः । K. Pra. IV. 6 / 7.

It is this view that Allarāja follows in his Rasaratnapradīpikā. (Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, 1945, p. 28.) In the Nāṭyadarpaṇa, Rāmacandra and Guṇacandra accept five varieties including Śāpa, but excluding Karuṇa. (III. 10.)¹

It is Karuṇa-vipralambha that has had a long history and passed through much discussion for and against it. The seeds of the problem already existed in Bharata's text itself. In chapter 6, Bharata raised the question: 'If Śṛṅgāra is developed from Rati, how do feelings related to Karuṇa appear in it?', and answered: Śṛṅgāra has two phases, Saṁbhoga and Vipralambha; and the authors of the science of love have set forth ten stages of love, the last of them being death. Karuṇa as such produced by diverse causes, including the death of a dear person, is different as it is a nirapekṣabhāva, i.e. a state of suffering not having an undercurrent of hope or expectation that the dead person would come back to life; Vipralambha, on the other hand, is a sāpekṣa-bhāva, a state enlivened by hope of reunion, the longing and anxiety for the return of the separated partner being present in it all the time:

अत्राह—यद्ययं रतिप्रभवः शृङ्गारः कथमस्य करुणाश्रयिणो भावा
भवन्ति । अत्रोच्यते—पूर्वमेवाभिहितं संभोगविप्रलम्भकृतः शृङ्गार इति ।
वैशिकशास्त्रकारैश्च दशावस्थोऽभिहितः ।

करुणस्तु शापेक्षशिविनिपतितेष्टजनविभवनाशवधबन्धसमुत्थो निरपेक्ष-
भावः । औत्सुक्यचिन्तासमुत्थः सापेक्षभावः विप्रलम्भकृतः ।

एवमन्यः करुणोऽन्यश्च विप्रलम्भ इति । NS, VI.

For as Abhinavagupta points out the essence of love is the mutual longing:

परस्परशोपजीवनं चात्र जीवितमिति दर्शयितुमस्येत्यनुद्विन्नमेवोक्तम् ।¹

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, 2nd revised ed., pp. 306-7.

Earlier commentators thought that the more revolting manifestations of the Vyabhicārin-s, Unmāda, Apasmāra, Vyādhi—not to mention death—should not be shown in Vipralambha; but Abhinavagupta clarifies that the maraṇa meant as a Vyabhicārin is that in which there is soon to be a reunion² and illustrates the case of Indumatī and Aja from the Raghuvaṃśa, VIII. 95, where the great poet has mentioned in the same verse the greater union in the heavenly regions.

¹ Both the first and second GOS eds. read wrongly परस्परशोप-जीवनम् for परस्परशोप०

² The natural meaning of maraṇa enumerated among Vyabhicārin-s is the condition immediately preceding death and not the state of death itself. Citing the interpretation of others, Abhinavagupta says here:

अन्ये त्वाहुः मरणमिति न जीवितवियोगः, अपि तु चैतन्यावस्थैव प्राणत्याग-कर्तृतात्मिका ।

It is a state in which consciousness is present and would also apply to the attempt at suicide which is commonly introduced in plays.

Cf. also RG, p. 90:

न चात्र प्राणवियोगात्मकं मुख्यं मरणमुचितं ग्रहीतुम् । चित्तवृत्त्यात्मकेषु भावेषु तस्याप्रसक्तेः ।

उन्मादापस्मारव्याधीनां या नात्यन्तं कुत्सिता दशा सा काव्ये

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, 2nd ed., p. 307.²

Of the regular writers on poetics and dramaturgy, Rudraṭa and Rudra Bhaṭṭa are the earliest to speak of Vipralambha as having four forms, Prathamānurāga, Māna, Pravāsa and Karuṇa. KA, XIV. 1, 34; Śṛṅgāratilaka, II (KM Gucchaka 3, pp. 131, 141). Both of them apply Karuṇa-vipralambha to the situation when one of the pair dies or is very nearly dying.

करुणः स विप्रलम्भो यत्रान्यतरो म्रियेत नायकयोः ।

यदि वा मृतकल्पः स्यात् तत्रान्यः तद्गतं प्रलपेत् ॥ KA, XIV. 1.

यत्रैकस्मिन् विपन्नेऽन्यः मृतकल्पोऽपि तद्गतम् ।

नायकः प्रलपेत् प्रेम्णा करुणोऽसौ स्मृतो यथा ॥

Śṛṅgāratilaka, II. 60, KM Gucchaka, 3, p. 141.

¹ In the previous line in the Abhi. Bhā. here, रत्यात्मकावस्था-बन्धोऽपि should read रत्यात्मक-आस्थाबन्धोऽपि । Āsthā-bandha is the correct word here. In the well-known verse in the Meghadūta, where Kālidāsa refers to 'hope' as the prop of the flower-like hearts of the separated lovers, Abhinavagupta's reading is āsthā-bandhaḥ, not, āśā-bandhaḥ. See his Ghaṭaṭkarparakulaka-vṛtti, v. 20, Kashmir Texts. Also संभव एव in the previous line in the Abhi. Bhā., should read असंभव एव ।

² See Hemacandra, KAH comm., pp. 71-2, where these lines of Abhi. Bhā. are reproduced with some mistakes.

Rudra Bhaṭṭa adds a reply to those who do not accept this variety of Vipralambha and would take death as just Karuṇa Rasa. It cannot be Karuṇa Rasa, as Rati persists and there is hope of reunion (sāpekṣa); a touch of Karuṇa increases the beauty of this form of Śṛṅgāra and there are indeed some rare portrayals of this Karuṇa-vipralambha by poets.

केषांचित् करुणभ्रान्तिः कारुण्यादत्र जायते ।

एतस्य मिथुनावस्थां विस्मृत्य रतिमूलजाम् ॥

स्त्रीपुंसयोर्भवेदेष सापेक्षः संगमे पुनः ।

तस्मात् शृङ्गार एवायं करुणेनानुमोदितः ।

सौन्दर्यं सुतरां धत्ते निबद्धो विरलं बुधैः ॥

ibid., p. 142, vv. 62-4.

Dhanamjaya accepts only three forms of Śṛṅgāra: Ayoga, i.e. Pūrvānurāga which is counted as the first form of Vipralambha according to others, Viprayoga or Vipralambha and Saṁbhoga (DR, IV. 50). Viprayoga is of only two kinds, Māna and Pravāsa, and there is no variety of it called Karuṇa (IV. 57-67). When one of the two dies and the other is wailing, it is only Karuṇa Rasa; it cannot be Śṛṅgāra because the basis of the sentiment, in one case, does not exist. If there is assurance of reunion and the bereaved one is waiting for it, it is then Pravāsa Śṛṅgāra.

मृते त्वेकत्र यत्रान्यः प्रलपेच्छोक एव सः ।

व्याश्रयत्वान्न शृङ्गारः प्रत्यापन्ने तु नेतरः ॥

DR, IV. 67.

यथा इन्दुमतीमरणादजस्य करुण एव खुवंशे । कादम्बर्यां तु प्रथमं

करुण आकाशसरस्वतीवचनादूर्ध्वं प्रवासशृङ्गार एवेति ।

DRA.

In all such discussions the examples kept before them by the writers are Aja's lament in the Raghuvaṃśa on the demise of Indumatī, Rati's in Kumārasaṃbhava and the case of Mahāśvetā in the Kādambarī.

The most elaborate and beautiful treatment of Karuṇa Vipralambha is in Bhoja's Śṛṅgāraprakāśa. Bhoja not only accepts it as the fourth form but as the means of developing love to its utmost, rāgavardhanatamaḥ (vol. IV, p. 734). See my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa (1963), pp. 60, 61, 63-4. Bhoja raises the question as to how the great onset of grief following the death of one of the two could be differentiated from pure Śoka and answers that the two, Karuṇa-vipralambha and Karuṇa proper could be differentiated by four factors, hetu, phala, viśaya and svarūpa. While the former proceeds from Rati or love alone, the latter develops from any kind of attachment, compassion, etc.; in the former, the end is reunion, whereas it is not so in the latter; the objects of the former are man and woman, of the latter anybody, and lastly the former is of the form of hope, the latter is destitute of any hope.

After analysing then this state into twelve varieties and again into several stages ending in death, followed by divine interference, the hope, the waiting and the reunion (see my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa pp. 60-61), hoja concludes that Karuṇa-vipralambha is the life and pinnacle of love.

तदेतदाबन्धनमात्मजन्मनो निरीति शृङ्गारसस्य जीवनम् ।

परा च काष्ठा प्रणयस्य जीविता(जीवता ?)प्रियेण यत्प्रेत्य पुनः समागमः ॥

ibid., p. 782.

Bhoja's illustrations are mostly from the Raghuvaṃśa, Kumārasambhava and the Kādambarī.

For Hemacandra, there is only Karuṇa, no Karuṇa-vipralambha (p. 71). Śāradātanaya follows Dhanamjaya closely (Bhā. Pra., GOS, pp. 86-7). Viśvanātha accepts Karuṇa-vipralambha but presents also the view of Daśarūpaka and Avaloka (Sāhityadarpaṇa, III. 209/210). Śiṅgabdhūpāla accepts Karuṇa-vipralambha and answers its critics. He says that the criticism that love depends on two and the survival of one makes it impossible is not valid, as this can apply to Śāpa and Pravāsa too. Pravāsa and Karuṇa-vipralambha-s also differ because in the former, one is absent in body by distance and in the other, by departure of breath.

अत्र केचिदाहुः — करुणो नाम विप्रलम्भशृङ्गारो नास्ति । उभयालम्बनस्य तस्यैकत्रैवासंभवात् । यत्र त्वेकस्यापाये संति तदितरगताः प्रलापादयो भवन्ति, स शोकाच्च भिद्यत इति । तदयुक्तम् । यत्र पुनरनुज्जीवनेन संभोगाभावः तत्र सत्यं शोक एव । यत्र सोऽस्ति तत्र विप्रलम्भ एव । अन्यथा संभोगशिरस्केऽन्यतरापायलक्षणे वैरूप्यशापप्रवासेऽपि शोकरूपत्वापत्तेः । नन्वेवं प्रवासकरुणयोः को भेद इति चेद्, उच्यते । शरीरेण देशान्तरगमने प्रवासः, प्राणैर्देशान्तरगमने करुण इति ।

Rasārṇavasudhākara, p. 189.

Of later writers, Bhānudatta is to be noted for the stand taken by him on this question. In his Rasatarāṅgiṇī (ch. 1) he says that in all the three well-known cases, the Vilāpa of Aja, Rati and Mahāśvetā, it is only Karuṇa Rasa. On the appearance of hope of reunion, the Rasa becomes Śṛṅgāra. He cites in his support, the Rasaratnadhīpikā already referred to, which gives Rati-vilāpa as illustration of Karuṇa.

कुमारसंभवे रत्याः, कादम्बर्या महाश्चेतायाः, रघुकाव्येऽजस्य प्रलापे
करुण एव रसः । . . यत्र च मृते जीविताशा तत्र शृङ्गार एव रसः । . .

RT, Venk. Press ed., pp. 18-20.

Regarding the statement of old writers who give Vipralambha as having four forms including Karuṇa, Bhānudatta takes this as referring to cases where both are alive and the name Karuṇa-vipralambha is to be explained on the basis of the Karuṇa Rasa being an aṅga here.

ननु विप्रलम्भस्य पूर्वानुराग-मान-प्रवास-करुणात्मत्वाज्जीवितोरपि विप्र-
लम्भस्य करुणरसत्वमायातमिति चेत्, सत्यम्, तत्र करुणा(ण?)रस-
स्याङ्गत्वेन भासमानत्वात्तत्र करुणात्मकव्यपदेशः । ibid., p. 21.

Explaining this, Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi, in his commentary Naukā, says that just as there are forms of Vipralambha caused by Īṣyā, Pravāsa and Viraha, that caused by a strong cause other than these three could be called Karuṇa-vipralambha. The illustration given by Bhānudatta for this is again the case of Rati, on whose sight Karuṇa sprouted in the heart of Śiva.¹ Later, in chapter 6, Bhānudatta following

¹ But the explanation of this verse given by Bhānudatta and where exactly is the incompleteness of Karuṇa here are not clear; this calls forth the following observation from the commentator, Gaṅgārāma Jaḍi:

Mammaṭa, considers Vipralambha as having five forms, Pravāsa, Viraha, Abhilāṣa (Pūrvānurāga), Īrṣyā and Śāpa (VI. 18-19). Lastly, there is the view of Jagannātha Paṇḍita who holds that after death, it is Karuṇa and after the promise of revival, it is just Vipralambha, as in the case of a long Pravāsa; but adds that, according to others, cases like that of Mahāśvetā, would be a new Rasa called Karuṇa-vipralambha.

मृतत्वज्ञानदशायां तु . . . करुण एव । यदा तु सत्यपि मृतत्वज्ञाने देवताप्रसादादिना पुनरुज्जीवनज्ञानं कथंचित् स्यात् तदालम्बनस्य आत्यन्तिक-निरासाभावात् चिरप्रवास इव विप्रलम्भ एव, न स करुणः । यथा चन्द्रा-पीडं प्रति महाश्चेतावाक्येषु । केचित्तु रसान्तरमेवात्र करुणविप्रलम्भाख्य-मिच्छन्ति ।

RG, p. 32; also p. 91.

Of Hāsyā Rasa, Bharata gave six varieties, ranging from a smile to a roar, according to the nature of men who are gentle, boisterous and so on. Kavikarṇapūra reduced this number to three. (Alaṃkāraustubha, p. 143.) Bharata himself speaks of a broad threefold classification of laughter according to the nature of men as uttama, madhyama or adhama, अत्र यद्यपि विध्वस्तकामजन्यमश्रुपातगात्रविक्षेपाद्यनुभाव्यं रतिमनोवैक्लव्यं परिपुष्टं तथापि विध्वस्तकामप्रियाविभावितं शिवचित्तवैक्लव्यमपरिपूर्णमेव तात्पर्यविषय इत्यवगमः कुङ्कुमलितपदादेवेत्याह । p. 10-b.

Here, as also later, while discussing Dayā-vīra and its possible inclusion under Karuṇa, Bhānudatta, strangely, confuses between Karuṇa Rasa and Karuṇā.

ननु दयावीरः कथं करुण एव नान्तर्भवति । निरुपाधिपरदुःखप्रहर(हा)णेच्छा दया । सा च करुणया विना न संभवतीति चेन्न । करुणस्य स्थायिभावः शोकः दयावीरस्य स्थायिभाव उत्साह इति स्थायिभावभेदेन भेदात् । ननु दयावीरे करुणरसप्रतीतिः का गतिरिति चेत्, सत्यं, करुणया विना दयावीरस्याननुभवादिति करुणयास्तत्रानु-भावकत्वादिति । RT, pp. 40-1.

refined, moderately refined or unrefined. (NS, GOS, I, ch. 6, pp. 315-7.) Further, Bharata has recognized that laughter has two varieties, laughing with and laughing at, svagata and paragata or ātmastha and parastha. (NS, GOS, I, ch. 6, p. 314.)¹ Of these, I have spoken elsewhere.

Karuṇa varies according as its cause is a curse, death and so on (NS, GOS, I, pp. 310 and 332). On page 332, Karuṇa is considered to be of three kinds, Karuṇa born of peril to Dharma, Karuṇa due to peril to Artha and Karuṇa born of Śoka in general, i.e. Śoka at the loss of relations and the like. The uttama-s are chiefly sorry on issues of Dharma; the madhyama-s, on loss of wealth and other possessions (Artha), and perhaps, only adhama-s are supposed to sorrow excessively over the loss of those whom they love (Kāma). This however does not rule out Karuṇa on the loss of the beloved in an uttamaprakṛti. It appears that only the third variety is Śoka and Karuṇa proper, and that the first two varieties of Śoka, in Dharma and Artha, seem to be only Vyabhicārin-s. Three kinds of Bhayānaka are given: Vyājāt (feigned), Aparādhāt (at having made a mistake) and Vitrāsitaka, born of being timid by nature. The varieties of Bībhatsa—Kṣobhaṇa and Udvegin, or Kṣobhaṇa, Udvegin and Śuddha—have already been spoken of while considering the possibility of a kind of Jugupsā being the Sthāyin of the Śānta. Adbhuta is divya and ānandaja, wonder born of heavenly miracles and that produced by the joy one has when things are achieved. Raudra is also mentioned as having three varieties, manifesting through feeling, physical acts and dress (XII. 48-53).

¹ Bhānūdatta pursues this idea of a Rasa being in two forms Svaniṣṭha and Paraniṣṭha with reference to the other Rasa-s too, Vīra, Karuṇa, Adbhuta, Bhayānaka and Bībhatsa.

Such classifications of Rāsa-s do not have any scientific basis or method in them.

Of the varieties of Rāsa-s, those of Vīra have attracted the greatest notice, because an early school of opponents of the Śānta explained away Śānta as provided for by one of the varieties of the Vīra mentioned by Bharata. Bharata mentions three kinds of heroism: munificence, Dāna-vīra as in Karna; following the right at all costs, Dharma-vīra, as in Yudhiṣṭhira; and martial heroism, Yuddha-vīra:

दानवीरं धर्मवीरं युद्धवीरं तथैव च ।

रसं वीरमपि प्राह ब्रह्मा त्रिविधमेव हि ॥ NS, VI. 99.¹

Here again, the first two Vīra-s do not seem to be Rāsa-s; they can only be Bhāva-s. If they are developed as main themes, they will become aṅga-s of Śānta; or, they will form the guṇa-s of the Nāyaka, as audārya and dhārmikatva.

A Dayā-vīra was then proposed and this Dayā-vīra, as already shown, sought to throw out Śānta for some time. Hemādri includes Dayā-vīra in Dāna-vīra or Karuṇa Rāsa (Bhāgavatamuktāphalaṭikā, p. 298). More interesting is the fact that in this commentary, Dāna-vīra is classified into two kinds, giving away what one already has and declining, in a high-minded manner, any gifts or boons given to one; and similarly, Dharma-vīra is classified into sakāma and niskāma, 'interested' and 'disinterested' (pp. 297-8)

Cf. Bharata's description of Utsāha:

तस्य (उत्साहस्य) स्वैर्य-धैर्य-त्याग-वैशारद्यादिभिर्नुभावैरभिनयः प्रकृत्यः । ibid., VII, p. 354.

As pointed out by Abhinavagupta in the Locana, Dayā-vīra as a fourth variety was not mentioned by Bharata. See above, p. 84.

Jagannātha Paṇḍita gives first the traditional varieties of Vīra as four and not three, Yuddha, Dharma, Dāna and Dayā, and then points out other varieties of Vīra (RG, pp. 37, 41). The Mahābhārata gives a long list of Vīra-s. All this has been set forth already in the section on Śānta Rasa.

Bhānudatta who gives in his Rasatarāṅgiṇī the three varieties of Vīra as Yuddha, Dāna and Dayā,¹ takes pains to prove that Dayā-vīra cannot be included in Karuṇa Rasa; there is a confusion here between Karuṇā and Karuṇa (ch. II).

The Amyogadvāra-sūtra cited previously breaks the usual order in enumerating the Rasa-s and instead of opening with Śṛṅgāra, opens with Vīra. The gloss says here that Vīra is mentioned first, because it is the noblest and foremost of Rasa-s, and the Vīra meant here is that associated with Dāna and Tapas. Towards the end of this section, the text and the commentary divide the Rasa-s into two classes, those vitiated by what are called sūtra-doṣa-s such as falsehood and injury to others, and those which do not involve these sins. Here Yuddha-vīra is considered as vitiated by the sin or flaw of injury to another, paropaghāta. Similarly Adbhuta involves exaggeration which is a species of falsehood. But such Vīra as Tapo-vīra and Dāna-vīra is, like the Praśānta Rasa, free from such sūtra-doṣa-s:

अत्र तु त्यागतपोगुणो वीररसे वर्तते । त्यागतपसी च 'त्यागो गुणो गुणशतादधिको मतो मे', 'परं लोकातिगं धाम तपः श्रुतमिति द्वयम्' इत्यादिवचनात् समस्तगुणप्रधान(ने) इत्यनया विवक्षया वीररसस्य आदावुभयन्यासः ।

p. 135.

¹ Viśveśvara, in Rasacandrikā (Chowkhamba ed., p. 64), accepts four Vīra-s, including Dayā. On p. 82, he records a strange view that Karuṇa, a new Vyabhicārin, is the Sthāyin of Dayā-vīra.

तथा कश्चिद्रसः उपघातलक्षणेन सूत्रदोषेण निर्वर्त्यते, यथा—

प्रशान्तादिरसानां क्वचिदनृतादिदोषान्तरेणापि निष्पत्तेरिति । p. 140.

The *Viratarāṅgiṇī*¹ of Citradhara, which is the only work written exclusively on a Rasa other than Śṛṅgāra, accepts four Vīra-s, Yuddha-, Dāna-, Dayā- and Dharma-, and refutes other Vīra-s proposed by Jagannātha.

Towards the end of chapter 6, Bharata says that Śṛṅgāra is of three forms, caused by speech (vāk), dress (nepathya), and physical action (kriyā), and Hāsyā and Raudra also have these three forms.² But why should he restrict these three forms to Śṛṅgāra, Hāsyā and Raudra only? These three, speech, dress and action, form the three Abhinaya-s, Vācika, Āhārya and Āṅgika. The Sāttvika comes under the last. All Rasa-s are roused by these three Abhinaya-s. So Mātr̥gupta says:

रसास्तु त्रिविधा वाचिक-नेपथ्य-स्वभावजाः ।

रसानुरूपैरालापैः श्लोकैर्वाक्यैः पदैस्तथा ।

नानालंकारसंयुक्तैः वाचिको रस इष्यते ॥

रसः स्वाभाविको ज्ञेयः स च नाट्ये प्रशस्यते ॥¹

Quoted by Rāghavabhaṭṭa in his comm. on Śākuntala,
Kale's ed., 1925, p. 5.

In another connection, i.e. while describing the Sāmavakāra type of drama, Bharata speaks of three other kinds of Śṛṅgāra:—Dharma Śṛṅgāra, Artha Śṛṅgāra and Kāma Śṛṅgāra:

त्रिविधाकृतिश्चङ्गारः ज्ञेयो धर्मार्थकामकृतः ।

NS, Kasi ed., XX. 76-9; see also Nāṭyadarpaṇa, p. 125.

Bhoja postulates a Śṛṅgāra for each Puruṣārtha and relates the resulting four Śṛṅgāra-s with the four types of heroes, Dhīrodātta, Dhīroddhata, Dhīralalita and Dhīraśānta. Of this, I have spoken in the chapter on Rasa in my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa.²

¹ From this, it is a gradual and natural extension to any of the important aspects of a play being called a Rasa, as it happens in popular usage. In Assamese Añkiya Nat tradition, seven Rasa-s are mentioned: Gāyaṇ-Bāyan, Sūtra-nāṭya, Śloka, Song, Brajāvalī, Mask, and the name of Kṛṣṇa. See The Origin and Development of Assamese Drama, Harichandra Bhattacharya, Gauhati, 1964, pp. 14-15.

ARE ALL RASA-S PLEASURABLE OR ARE THERE SOME WHICH ARE PAINFUL?

THIS is a very important question into which it is not possible to go completely in this book. It relates to the very conception of Rasa which is, strictly speaking, outside the scope of this book. But, as shown above, some writers have tried to distinguish or add to the number of Rasa-s or refute a particular Rasa which has been proposed, on the basis of this question. Duḥkha itself has been proposed as a Rasa! Hence the question may be briefly dealt with here. While dealing with Haripāla's new and separate Rasa of Vipralambha, it was pointed out that the Rasakalikā of Rudrabhaṭṭa also considered Vipralambha as standing in the way of accepting Rati as a purely pleasurable state and that as a matter of fact, Rasa was both, some Rasa-s being pleasurable and some painful:

करुणामयानामप्युपादेयत्वं सामाजिकानाम्, रसस्य सुखदुःखात्मकतया
तदुभयलक्षणत्वेन उपपद्यते । अत एव तदुभयजनकत्वम् ।

Rasakalikā, Mad. MS.,¹ pp. 51-2.

This question takes us straight into the greater one: Why do we see and how do we enjoy a tragedy? What is the relish in Karuṇa? This problem, which is still to be solved in Western literary criticism, cannot be taken up for discussion here. True, Bhoja also says:

रसा हि सुखदुःखावस्थारूपाः ।

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 369

but he evidently means here the laukika-bhāva-s to which the term Rasa is applied by extension. The Nāṭyadarpaṇa also says in v. 109 (p. 158) sukhaduḥkhātmaḥ rasaḥ and proceeds to prove elaborately in the Vṛtti that some Rasa-s are certainly painful and that our seeing them and enjoying them is really due to the excellence of the art of either the dramatist or of the art of the actors (p. 159). See also, same work, under the drama-type Ḍima (II. 21):

इह च करुण-रौद्र-भयानक-बीभत्साश्चत्वारो रसा दुःखात्मानः ।

शृङ्गार-हास्य-वीराद्भुत-शान्ताः पञ्च सुखात्मकाः ।

The majority of the writers do not accept at all this view which misses the distinction between laukika-bhāva and the Rasa. All the Rasa-s are considered, uniformly and to an equal extent, pleasurable. But it is noteworthy that a writer like Madhusūdana Sarasvatī should hold the view that among Rasa-s, there is a difference of bliss. He first adopts the Sāṃkhya scheme of three guṇa-s: sattva, rajas and tamas. Only sattva can make a Sthāyin and Rasa. In Krodha, which is rājasa and Śoka, which is tāmasa, only a shred of sattva exists, only so much as to make them Sthāyin-s and give them the blissfulness of Rasa, but this blissfulness or enjoyability is naturally meagre in Krodha and Śoka. Therefore all Rasa-s cannot be relished in the same measure. He says in his Bhagavadbhaktirasāyana:

—द्रवीभावस्य सत्त्वधर्मत्वात्, तं विना च स्थायिभावसंभवात्,
सत्त्वगुणस्य च सुखरूपत्वात्, सर्वेषां भावानां सुखमयत्वेऽपि रजस्तमोऽश-
मिश्रणात् तारतम्यमवगन्तव्यम् । अतो न सर्वेषु रसेषु तुल्यसुखानुभवः । p. 22.

क्रोधशोकभयादीनां साक्षात् सुखविरोधिनाम् ।

रसत्वमभ्युपगतं तथानुभवमात्रतः ॥

II. 79.

After saying this on the basis of the Sāṃkhya, Madhusūdana Sarasvatī discusses the question from the Vedāntic standpoint also. All bliss is of the form of Brahmanānanda, for bliss is the form of the Brahman. This however does not militate against mundane things also being blissful, for it is said in the Upaniṣad:

एतस्यैवानन्दस्य अन्यानि भूतानि मात्रामुपजीवन्ति¹ ।

Though literary enjoyment is superior to mundane enjoyment, it is still not on a par with brahmāsvāda (I. 10-14).
Compared to brahmāsvāda, kāvya-rasāsvāda is laukika. A similar view is propounded by Śāradātanaya also. (See Bhāvaprakāśa, GOS ed., Introd., pp. 39-40; pp. 52-3.) But among literary Rasa-s also, the Śānta and Bhakti are on a par with brahmāsvāda, for it is the Paramātman and Bhagavān themselves
that are the Sthāyin and Ālambana.²

¹ Brhadāranyakopaniṣad, IV. 3. 32.

² Cf. Nāṇḍilla Gopa's commentary on the Prabodhacandrodaya
(NSP ed., p. 5), where he says that in a philosophical play like that of Kṛṣṇamiśra, whose ultimate aim is to make one realize Brahman, we have in the earlier Saṃdhi-s the bliss of Rasa and in the final Saṃdhi the bliss of Brahman itself, i.e. first the bliss which is brahmāsvāda-sodara and then that which is brahmāsvāda itself.

अस्मिन्नाटके मुखप्रतिमुख(खादि?)संधिषु रामायणादिष्विव . . . रसास्वाद-
समुद्भूतो विगलितवेद्यान्तर आनन्द उदेति । निर्वहणसंधौ विगलितवेद्यान्तरः साक्षाद्
ब्रह्मानन्द एव ।

The Advaitic approach is seen in full in chapter 3, where Madhusūdāna Sarasvatī discards his previous Sāṃkhya conclusion that Rasa varies in degree in its bliss and says expressly that though, in the world, the Bhāva-s are of the forms of sukha, duḥkha and moha, their counterparts in the Kāvya and in the hearts of the spectator, are all of the form of bliss only.

बोध्यनिष्ठा यथास्वं ते सुखदुःखादिहेतवः ।

बोद्धृनिष्ठास्तु सर्वेऽपि सुखमात्रैकहेतवः ॥

III. 5.

Sattva begins to spread and dominate as the sole vr̥tti of the antaḥkāraṇa and Rasa is then manifested:

समूहालम्बनात्मैका जायते सात्त्विकी मतिः ।

सानन्तरक्षणेऽवश्यं व्यनक्ति सुखमुत्तमम् ॥

III. 12-13.

IX

NEW VYABHICĀRIN-S AND SĀTTVIKA-S

WE have seen how freely later writers debated the question of adding newer Rasa-s to those that Bharata gave. But did not writers feel also that there was no finality about Bharata's list of Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s and their number, thirty-three and eight?

Bharatā gave the Bhāva-s in three sets as Sthāyin-s, Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s. We have already examined and found that all the eight Sthāyin-s become Vyabhicārin-s also. Therefore these eight, the Sthāyin-s, must be added to the thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s. Rati, the first Sthāyin, has for long figured as a Vyabhicārin in discussions on Preyas, Bhakti and Vātsalya, and Jagannātha expressly adds it as the thirty-fourth Vyabhicārin:

गुरुदेवनृपपुत्रादिविषया रतिश्चेति चतुस्त्रिंशत् ।

RG, p. 76.

But when this addition is made, we have to reduce the thirty-three by removing a few which are redundant. Thus when Śoka becomes a Vyabhicārin, there is no need for Viṣāda; Bhaya in its Vyabhicārin grade eliminates Trāsa; Sāgarānandin actually gives Trāsa as the Sthāyin.¹ Krodha removes Amarṣa. This gives us eight and thirty Vyabhicārin-s.

¹ Nāṭakalakṣaṇaratnakośa, Myles Dillon, London, 1937, line 243. In Murāri's Anargharāghava, II. 64, Trāsa is the word used for the Sthāyin, though it may be due to metrical exigency.

Further reduction is possible. Among the thirty, we have two Bhāva-s, Glāni and Śrama, one of which will suffice. Not only do they seem akin at first sight but prove to be identical also when their descriptions are examined. Another case of repetition is Nidrā and Supta; the second is very delicately distinguished from the first. Bharata describes the latter as nidrābhībhava and nidrāsamuttha. If two are thus removed, we have eight and twenty-eight. Some writers did see the redundancy at least in the case of Nidrā and Supta and, instead of Supta, gave a new Vyabhicārin called Śauca, as for instance, those whom Sāgaranandin, author of the Nāṭakalakṣaṇaratnakośa (pp. 83-7) followed.

Why did Bharata classify the Bhāva-s into Vyabhicārin-s and Sāttvika-s? Among Bhāva-s, there are only two classes: Sthāyin-s and Vyabhicārin-s. The Anubhāva-s, the twenty Alamkāra-s of damsels, Bhāva, Hāva, etc.,¹ the eight Sāttvika-s, Ālāpa, etc. given as modes of Vācikābhīnaya, the ten

¹ Rāhula added to this set Maugdhyā, Mada, Bhāvikatva and Paritāpana, according to Abhinavagupta. See JOR, vol. 6, pp. 208-10, my article on 'Writers Quoted in the Abhinavabhāratī'. See also Hemacandra, KAH, p. 316, where Abhinavagupta's sentence referring to Rāhula's additions is reproduced. See also Padmaśrī's Nāgarasarasva following Rāhula's school, VII. 3-4, where Vikṣepa, Mada, Maugdhyā and Tāpana are given in addition. (Tanusukharam Sarma's ed., Bombay, 1921, p. 29.) While defining Vikṣepa, Padmaśrī quotes a writer named Kapila. Among writers of the orthodox schools, Kavikarṇapūra gives Maugdhyā and Tāpana. See his Alamkāra-kaustubha, Varendra Research Society, p. 198. Bhoja added Vihṛta, Kṛṣṭita and Keli which Śiṅgabhūpāla criticized. Viśvanātha accepts Rāhula's and Bhoja's additions and himself adds three more, Kutūhala, Hasita and Cakita. (JOR, vol. 6, pp. 209-10)

*kāma-avasthā-s*¹—all these are comprehended in the term Vyabhicārin. Says Mahima Bhaṭṭa:

ये चैते स्थायिव्यभिचारिसात्त्विकभेदादेकोनपञ्चाशद्भावा उक्तास्ते सर्वे
व्यभिचारिण एव । Vyaktiviveka, TSS ed., p. 13.

Bhoja calls the Sāttvika-s, Bāhya-vyabhicārin-s:

तत्र आभ्यन्तरा व्यभिचारिषु चिन्तौत्सुक्यावेगवितर्कादयः, बाह्याः
स्वेदरोमाञ्चाश्रुवैवर्ण्यादयः । Śr. Pra., ch. 11.

But out of these numberless subsidiary mental states and their physical manifestations, there are a few which are major ones, compared to others; not only are they major, but they are more definitely mental states than others which are physical manifestations. It may be asked if the major among these accessory mental states are only those given by Bharata and if there are not others. It has been pointed out that this list of Bharata can be reduced on one side; and as a matter of fact, it has been added to also on the other side. Bhoja, in his Śṛṅgāraprakāśa, omits Apasmāra and Maraṇa and gives in their place, Īrṣyā (which Śiṅgabhūpāla refutes) and Śama which is needed for the Śānta Rasa (ch. 11). In his SKĀ, Bhoja counts among his thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s Sneha which Śiṅgabhūpāla refutes and, instead of adding Śama as in his Śr. Pra., takes Dhṛti itself, one of the old Vyabhicārin-s given by Bharata, as the Sthāyin of Śānta. Hemacandra points out how additional Vyabhicārin-s like Dambha, Udvega, Kṣut and Tṛṣṇā, which some may propose, could be included in some of the Bhāva-s already accepted:

संख्यावचनं नियमार्थं, तेनान्येषामत्रैवान्तर्भावः । तद्यथा—दम्भस्याव-
हित्ये, उद्वेगस्य निर्वेदे, क्षुत्तृष्णादेर्ग्लानौ । एवमन्यदप्यूहम् ।

KAH, p. 86.

Śiṅgabhūpāla raises the same point, mentions some more Vyabhicārin-s,—Udvega, Sneha, Dambha, Īrṣyā—but dismisses these as included in one or the other of the thirty-three,
with reasons which look strained. Bhānudatta proposes Chala:

अत्र प्रतिभाति छलमधिको व्यभिचारिभाव इति । (ch. 5.)

and shows its occurrence in Śṛṅgāra, Raudra and Hāsyā. But it could be included in Bharata's Avahittha. (See its description, MS, I, GOS, p. 373.) Rūpa Gosvāmin, in his scheme of Madhura Rasa, accepts at first the traditional thirty-three Vyabhicārin-s and adds afterwards thirteen more Vyabhi-cārin-s generally, as also a few more specially under some individual Rasa-s (See S. K. De, IHQ, vol. 8, 1932, p. 663).
Dr. De adds that the thirteen additional Vyabhicārin-s are brought by Rūpa under one or the other of the old thirty-three. Jagannātha in his *RG*¹ and Viśveśvara in his Rasa-
candrikā,² mention as possible additional Vyabhicārin-s
Mātsarya, Udvega, Dambha, Īrṣyā, Viveka, Nirṇaya,
Klaibya, Kṣamā, Kutuka, Utkanṭhā, Vinaya, Saṁśaya, Dhārṣṭya and Chala; and show that these could be brought under one or the other of the thirty-three of Bharata. Later, in the course of definition and illustration of the Vyabhicārin-s, Viśveśvara says that in the place of Mṛti, some propose Karuṇa
as a Vyabhicārin, as it would also serve as a Sthāyin for Dayāvīra, and refutes the view:

² KSS 53, pp. 69-70.

केचित्त्वत्र करुणं पठन्ति । तदयुक्तम् . . . दयावीरे स्थायित्वाच्च ।

Rasacandrikā, p. 82.

Bharata himself discusses the question of the separate naming and enumeration of the eight Sāttvika-s. He says: as a matter of fact all Bhāva-s enacted have to be 'entered into'; Sattva is 'entering into'; but this 'entering into the state' is all the more necessary in the case of the eight Sāttvika-s. For, tears have actually to be shed (see NS, I, GOS, pp. 379-81). Bhoja says that in truth all Bhāva-s are Sāttvika-s, because sattva means 'mind':

सात्त्विका अपि सर्वे एव, मनःप्रभवत्वात् । अनुपहतं हि मनः
सत्त्वमित्युच्यते । Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 354.

Śiṅgabhūpāla also says:

सर्वेऽपि सत्त्वमूलत्वाद् भावा यद्यपि सात्त्विकाः ।
तथाप्यमीषां सत्त्वैकमूलत्वात् सात्त्विकप्रथा ॥

Rasārṇavasudhākara, I. 310.

The only writer, now known, to propose a ninth Sāttvika, is Bhānudatta. He proposes Jṛmbhā in his Rasataranīṅī:

जृम्भा च नवमः सात्त्विको भाव इति प्रतिभाति । p. 66.¹

Bhānudatta would not base himself on the meaning 'entering into' and 'becoming one with' (tanmayibhavana), for the word sattva, and justify the separate enumeration of the Sāttvika-s. For, sattva so understood would apply to the Vyabhicārin-s also. So he interprets sattva as the 'body'—

¹ Rūpa, in his Uj्ज्वालānīlamanī (KM 95, pp. 262-4) constitutes a special class of six physical effects, calling them 'Udbhāśvara' and in this class, he includes Jṛmbhā.

jīva-sārira. Tears, perspiration, etc. are physical states and as such are distinct from the Vyabhicārin-s which are mental states. The former are bāhya,¹ the latter āntara (Rasatarāṅgiṇī, pp. 57-8 and 70-1).² To accord with this, Bhānudatta defines a Bhāva not as a citta-vṛtti, but as a rasānukūla-vikāra, which is of two kinds, ābhyaantara (Sthāyin and Vyabhicārin) and bāhya (Sāttvika, etc.). But to exclude too palpably physical acts, he gives them a different name Ceṣṭā which, he says, is different from Vikāra. The difference between the two is that while a Vikāra like a tear cannot be made to

¹ Bharata uses sattva as meaning also the opposite of mind, namely the physical body, and calls Bhāva, Hāva, etc. by the name 'Sāttvikābhinaya'. See NS, Kasi ed., ch. XXIV. 1-7, 40.

देहात्मकं भवेत् सत्त्वं सत्त्वाद्भावः समुत्थितः ।

सत्त्वजोऽभिनयः पूर्वं मया प्रोक्तो द्विजोत्तमः ।

Abhinavagupta also says बाह्याश्च बाष्पप्रभृतयः Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, ch. 7, p. 343. But in his commentary on the section on Sāttvikābhinaya and Bharata's verse देहात्मकं भवेत् सत्त्वम्, etc. (XXIV. 1-7), Abhinavagupta reconciles the two meanings of 'mind' and 'body':

इह चित्तवृत्तिरेव संवेदनभूमौ संक्रान्ता देहमपि व्याप्नोति । सेव च सत्त्वमित्युच्यते ।
... तस्य च ये गुणा देहपर्यन्तानां प्राप्ताः, etc., GOS, III, p. 152.

For a resumé of some other interpretations of Sattva, see Kumārasvāmin on the Pratāparudriya (Balamanorama ed., p. 160): Sattva as prāṇamaya (from sīdaty asmin iti); as Bala (strength) whereby these eight make us realize forcefully the presence of the Rasa; usage through yogarūḍhi and convention.

RASA-SYNTHESIS

KARUṆA

THE artistic mind has always shown a partiality for pathos. It is said that the sweetest songs are often songs of sorrow. The first Kāvya in Sanskrit rose out of the sense of pity. Raseṣu karuṇo rasaḥ is a well-known anonymous saying. Ānandavardhana says that the quality of sweetness which is the melting of the heart is found in the highest degree in Karuṇa:

माधुर्यमाद्रतां याति यतस्तत्राधिकं मनः । Dhva. Ā., II. 9.

But to point out the beauty and appeal of a Rasa is not the making of any synthesis. By Rasa-synthesis is meant a reducing of all Rasa-s to the nature of one, a formulation of one as prakṛti and the rest as its vikṛti-s.

No Ālaṃkārika ever attempted a Karuṇa-synthesis, but Bhavabhūti, in his drama, Uttararāmacarita, suggested such a synthesis in Karuṇa. Ānandavardhana explains that the Rāmāyaṇa is an epic of Karuṇa:

रामायणे हि करुणो रसः स्वयमादिकविना सूत्रितः ‘शोकः श्लोक-
त्वमागतः’ इत्येवंवादिना । निर्व्यूढश्च स एव सीतात्यन्तवियोगपर्यन्तमेव
स्वप्नबन्धमुपरचयता । Dhva. Ā., IV, p. 237.

Bhavabhūti gave the same opinion when he said:

भगवान् भूतार्थवादी प्राचेतसः . . . पावनं वचनामृतं करुणाद्भुतरसं
च किंचिदुपनिबद्धम् Uttararāmacarita, act VII.

Writing a masterpiece dominated by Karuṇa, Bhavabhūti, in a self-conscious mood, says through Śleṣa:

अहो संविधानकम्—

एको रसः करुण एव निमित्तभेदाद्
भिन्नः पृथक् पृथगिव श्रयते विवर्तान् ।
आवर्तबुद्बुदतरङ्गमयान् विकारान्
अम्भो यथा सलिलमेव हि तत् समस्तम् ॥

ibid., III. 47.

‘O! what a great play I have written!’ he seems to exclaim to himself. By context, the passage refers to Tamasā observing the pathos that existed in everybody, though in different forms:

एक एव सन्नपि निमित्तभेदात् सखित्वपतित्वपत्नीत्वाद्युपाधिभेदाद्
भिन्नः विलक्षण इव पृथक् पृथग् विवर्तान् श्रयते । वासन्तीसीतारामप्रभृतिषु
परस्परविलक्षणावस्थाविशेषान् भजति ।

Virarāghava's comm., NSP ed., 1915, p. 99.

A general import bearing on our present subject of Rasa-synthesis can also be seen in this verse. Bhavabhūti seems to say that there is only one Rasa, Karuṇa, and that it assumes different forms called Śṛṅgāra, etc. even as the same water assumes the forms of whirl, bubble, etc. Karuṇa is the prakṛti; the other Rasa-s are its vikṛti-s. Virarāghava, a commentator, also saw such a meaning in this verse which shows that the interpretation is authenticated by tradition:

एक इति । रस्यते स्वाद्यत इति रसः काव्यानुशीलनाभ्यासवश-
विशदीभूतवर्णनीयतन्मयीभवनयोग्यसामाजिकमनोमुकुरभाव्यमानतया निर्भरानन्द-
संविद्रूपः । करुण इष्टजनवियोगजन्यदुःखातिशयः । एक एव सन्नपि
निमित्तभेदात् व्यञ्जकविभावादिविच्छित्तिविशेषाद् भिन्नः विलक्षणः । पृथक्
पृथग् विवर्तान् परस्परविलक्षणशृङ्गाराद्यात्मना परिणामान् । ‘व्यत्यस्तपरिणामः
स्याद्विवर्तः’ इति कपिलः । श्रयते भजते . . . इदमत्र
कवेर्मतम्—यद्यपि शृङ्गार एक एव रस इति शृङ्गारप्रकाशकारादि-
मतम्, तथापि प्राचुर्याद् रागिविरागिसाधारण्यात् करुण एक एव रसः ।
अन्ये तु तद्विकृतय इति ।

Vīrarāghava’s comm., p. 99.

To the Karuṇa-synthesis suggested by Bhavabhūti, this commentator added two arguments: one, that Karuṇa is present to the largest extent in life; and the other, that it is found not only in men with mundane attachments but in the Yogin-s also. These, however, do not make for the prakṛti-vikṛti-bhāva in Bhavabhūti’s verse, and that alone forms the meaning of ‘synthesis’. In English, the word ‘sympathy’ meaning ‘response to another’s feeling of sorrow’, has come to be used in an enlarged sense to mean all forms of aesthetic response and attunement of heart, citta-saṃvāda; and here is an argument in favour of a Karuṇa-synthesis. For it seems, the model and the supreme example of a complete attunement of heart, which poetry and drama effect, is certainly the attunement of hearts in Karuṇa.

ŚĀNTA

A regular attempt at synthesis in the field of Rasa-s by a theorist is however to be seen earliest only in the Abhi. Bhā. of Abhinavagupta. He sponsored the Śānta-synthesis by considering the Śānta as the one fundamental Rasa of which the other Rasa-s are modifications. He called Śānta the greatest Rasa, firstly because of its relation to the last and the greatest Puruṣārtha, Mokṣa. Next, poetic delight called Rasa is always of a non-worldly (alaukika) character, shorn as it is of all mundane associations, a limitless, unbounded and ineffable bliss, and hence is of the form of Śānta:

तत्र सर्वरसानां शान्तप्राय एवास्वादः, विषयेभ्यो विपरिवृत्त्या— । Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 340.

Further, the Sthāyin of Śānta, the Ātman, is the very substratum of all mental activities; it is the one basic citta illumined by this Ātman that takes the form of the vr̥tti-s of Śṛṅgāra, etc. Thus it is Sthāyi-tama; it is the Sthāyin of the Sthāyin-s, the prakṛti of which Rati, Hāsa and the rest are vikṛti-s. Says Abhinavagupta:

अत्र सर्वप्रकृतित्वाभिधानाय पूर्वमभिधानम् । ibid., p. 340.

And according to some MSS. known to Abhinavagupta, the Śānta Rasa section is found at the very beginning, even before the Śṛṅgāra section:

तथा च चिरंतनपुस्तकेषु 'स्थायिभावान् रसत्वमुपनेष्यामः' इत्यनन्तरम् 'शान्तो नाम शमस्थायिभावान्तरकः' इत्यादि लक्षणं पठ्यते । ibid., p. 340.

The Śānta text found in Bharata, according to some, definitely states this Śānta-synthesis in two verses:

भावा विकारा रत्याद्याः शान्तस्तु प्रकृतिर्मतः ।

विकारः प्रकृतेर्जातः पुनस्तत्रैव लीयते ॥

स्वं स्वं निमित्तमासाद्य शान्ताद्भावः प्रवर्तते ।

पुनर्निमित्तापाये च शान्त एवोपलीयते ॥

NS, GOS, I, pp. 335-6.

This has already been shown above in the Śānta Rasa section.

AHAMKĀRA-ŚṚṅGĀRA

When Abhinavagupta was synthesizing the Rasa-s in Śānta, a similar synthetic spirit was working in Bhoja who merged every Rasa and Bhāva in a new Śṛṅgāra he formulated. He said that at the root of all Bhāva-s lay the germ of Ahaṁkāra, otherwise called Śṛṅgāra and Abhimāna. It is a guṇa of the Ātman and is the result of past good acts. By Ahaṁkāra is meant a self-consciousness or the sense of 'I' which marks off the cultured from the uncultured. It is that by which not only for himself but for others and other objects also does man have any love. In this sense it is called Ātma-rati. It is this 'ego' or 'self-love' that is the one Rasa. Its manifestations are Rati, Hāsa, etc. Thus this basic Śṛṅgāra is different from the first derivative of that name, the Śṛṅgāra developed from Rati. So this Śṛṅgāra-synthesis is not a synthesis of the first of the eight old Rasa-s of Bharata and others. This theory finds a brief statement in the fifth chapter of Bhoja's SKĀ and an elaborate exposition in his Śr. Pra. I have set this forth at great length in my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa and here I give only a brief account. The SKĀ says:

रसोऽभिमानोऽहंकारः शृङ्गार इति गीयते ।

योऽर्थस्तस्यान्वयात् काव्यं कमनीयत्वमभ्युते ॥

विशिष्टादृष्टजन्मायं जन्मिनामन्तरात्मसु ।

आत्मसम्यग्गुणोद्भूतेरेको हेतुः प्रकाशते ॥

KM ed., ch. V. 1-2, p. 474.

(See also vr̥tti on p. 613 where Bhoja quotes Daṇḍin and draws out his own theory from Daṇḍin's verse.) The Śr. Pra. says:

आत्मस्थितं गुणविशेषमहंकृतस्य शृङ्गारमाहुरिह जीवितमात्मयोनेः ।
तस्यात्मशक्तिरसनीयतया रसत्वं युक्तस्य येन रसिकोऽयमिति प्रवादः ॥

अप्रातिकूलिकतया मनसो मुदादेः यः संविदोऽनुभवहेतुरिहाभिमानः ।
ज्ञेयो रसः स रसनीयतया आत्मरक्तेः . . .

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. I, pp. 1-3.

While Abhinavagupta in his Śānta-synthesis took his stand on that ultimate rippleless state of the Ātman, Bhoja, adopting the Sāṃkhya and Nyāya schools, took his stand on the Ātman with its first shoot of Ahaṃkāra. To Bhoja, even Śānta would appear only within the world of Ahaṃkāra; for to him, any Bhāva or Rasa can be experienced only through Ahaṃkāra. Śama as much as Rati is the product of Ahaṃkāra:

. . . तच्च आत्मनोऽहंकारगुणविशेषं ब्रूमः । स शृङ्गारः सोऽभिमानः
स रसः । तत एते रत्यादयो जायन्ते । तैश्चायं प्रकर्षप्राप्तैः सप्तार्चिरर्चिश्चयैरिव
प्रकाशमानः शृङ्गारिणामेव स्वदत इति ।

Śr. Pra., Mad. MS., vol. II, p. 356.

What is called Rasa is an experience of bliss unconditioned by any name. So long as there is the knowledge of the state being Rati or Hāsa or anything else, the spectator is only in the state of Bhāvanā and Bhāva; beyond this is the state of Rasa. Says Bhoja:

आभावनोदयमनन्यधिया जनेन

यो भाव्यते मनसि भावनया स भावः ।

यो भावनापथमतीत्य विवर्तमानः

साहंक्रुतौ हृदि परं स्वदते रसोऽसौ ॥ Śr. Pra., loc. cit.

Thus Śrīṅgāra, Hāsyā and Vīra are but Bhāva-states in reality. The truth of Rasa is that it is only one and has no more name than Rasa.

PREMAN

Side by side with or rather within this Ahaṁkāra-Śrīṅgāra synthesis, Bhoja formulates a synthesis in Preman also. Preman to him is a fundamental love lying at the root of Rati, Sneha, Bhakti, why, at the root of all Bhāva-s in much the same manner as Ahaṁkāra itself. If a person laughs, it is because he loves to laugh; if he fights, he loves to do so. Thus all activities go to fulfil a certain love which is innate in man and which explains all his activities; it is this love which makes all his activities a self-fulfilment. Bhoja has three stages of his Rasa: the Pūrvā Koṭi, the Madhyamā Avasthā and the Uttarā Koṭi. In the first, it is the one Ahaṁkāra; in the second, the one Ahaṁkāra has become the forty-nine Bhāva-s, each growing to its relative climax through its Vibhāva-s, Anubhāva-s, etc.; in the third, all these several Bhāva-s become aspects of Preman, or rather ripen into Preman, from which stage again, experience passes into the primary stage of the one Rasa of Ahaṁkāra:

प्रेयः प्रियतराख्यानमित्यनेन समस्तभावमूर्धाभिषिक्ताया रतेः परप्रकर्षा-
धिगमाद् भावनाधि(ति?)गमे भावरूपतामुल्लङ्घ्य प्रेमरूपेण परिणतायाः
उपादानात् भावान्तराणामपि परप्रकर्षाधिगमे रसरूपेण परिणतिरिति
ज्ञापयन्नहंकारस्य उत्तरां कोटिमुपलक्षयति । सर्वेषामपि हि रत्यादिप्रकर्षाणां

रतिप्रियो रणप्रियः परिहासप्रियः अवर्षप्रिय इति प्रेम्ण्येव पर्यवसानं
भवति । SKĀ, p. 613.

In the Śy. Pra. he adds:

रसं त्विह प्रेमाणमेवामनन्ति ।

Mad. MS., vol. II, ch. 11, pp. 352-3.

This Preman-synthesis finds an advocate in Kavikarṇa-pūra, the author of the Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, where he says:

प्रेमरसे सर्वे रसा अन्तर्भवन्तीत्यत्र महीयानेव प्रपञ्चः । ग्रन्थगौरव-
भयाद् दिङ्मात्रमुक्तम् । . . . तथा च—

‘ उन्मज्जन्ति निमज्जन्ति प्रेम्ण्यखण्डरसत्वतः ।

सर्वे रसाश्च भावाश्च तरङ्गा इव वारिधौ ॥ ’

Varendra ed., pp. 147-8.

RATI-ŚRĠGĀRA

The Agnipurāṇa took Bhoja's Ahaṃkāra, but instead of saying that Rati and all other Bhāva-s emanated from it, it said that Rati was the first-born of Abhimāna which was itself a product of Ahaṃkāra and this Rati modified itself into Hāsa, etc. It further went behind Ahaṃkāra and said that Ahaṃkāra is the first manifestation of Rasa or Camat-kāra which is the manifestation of the ānanda, the innate nature of the Supreme Being called Para Brahman:

अक्षरं परमं ब्रह्म सनातनमजं विभु ।

वेदान्तेषु वदन्त्येकं चैतन्यं ज्योतिरीश्वरम् ॥

आनन्दः सहजस्तस्य व्यज्यते स कदाचन ।
 व्यक्तिः सा तस्य चैतन्यचमत्काररसाह्वया ॥
 आद्यस्तस्य विकारो यः सोऽहंकार इति स्मृतः ।
 ततोऽभिमानस्तत्रेदं समाप्तं भुवनत्रयम् ॥
 अभिमानाद्रतिः सा च परिपोषमुपेयुषी ।
 व्यभिचार्यादिसामान्यात् शृङ्गार इति गीयते ॥
 तद्भेदाः काममितरे हास्याद्या अप्यनेकशः ।
 स्वस्वस्थायिविशेषोऽथ (षोडश) परिघो(षो)षस्वलक्षणाः ॥

Agnipurāṇa, ch. 339, vv. 1-5.

An almost similar Rati-synthesis, which makes all the nine Rasa-s manifestations of Rati is seen in the Svālmayogapradīpa, quoted by Kumārasvāmin in his commentary on the Pratāparudriya:

या स्थायिभावरतिरेव निमित्तभेदाच्छृङ्गारमुख्यनवनाट्यरसीभवन्ती ।
 सामाजिकान् सहृदयान् नटनायकादीनानन्दयेत् सहजपूर्णरसोऽस्मि सोऽहम् ॥

Balamanorama ed., p. 212.

ADBHUTA

Wonder is an invariable element in all enjoyment, mundane or artistic. In art and literature, the element of surprise, extraordinariness, wonder, is present everywhere. The very theme has to be striking; for, when we see an extraordinary situation, do we not describe it as being dramatic? Wonder helps love. Hāsya is only reversed wonder. The part Adbhuta has in Vīra is too patent; Bharata describes Adbhuta as born of Vīra. The hold of Adbhuta on the minds of the audience is fully realized by Bharata who says that the dramatist must so work out his story, so weave it, hide some and reveal some, that the audience may get at each step a surprise and a thrill. One of the ends which the means to developing the plot called the Samdhyāṅga-s serve is the presentation of the story in a wondrous manner, āścaryavad abhikhyānam (NS, Kasi ed., XXI. 54). There is again the need to complicate intricately the problems of the story and give out a series of revelations in the end, thus carrying away the heart in the end with thrill after thrill. This can be realized, for instance, when the closing scene of the Mṛcchakatika or the Mālavikāgnimitra is read. The story has to be, says Bharata, in the form of a cow's tail, bushy at the end, with a crowd of surprises. There must be Adbhuta in the end:

कार्यं गोपुच्छाग्रं कर्तव्यं काव्यबन्धमासाद्य ।

ये चोदात्ता भावास्ते सर्वे पृष्ठतः कार्याः ॥

सर्वेषां काव्यानां नानारसभावयुक्तियुक्तानाम् ।

निर्वहणे कर्तव्यो नित्यं हि रसोऽद्भुतस्तज्ज्ञैः ॥ NS, XX. 46-7.

Similarly, on the side of verbal expression, the Vācya-vācaka, or the Vācikābhinaya in drama, Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin made a synthesis in Adbhuta when they praised Atiśayokti as the one great figure of which the rest are but several forms:

इत्येवमादिरुदिता गुणातिशययोगतः ।

सर्वैवातिशयोक्तिस्तु तर्कयेतां यथागमम् ॥

सैषा सर्वैव वक्रोक्तिरनयार्थो विभाव्यते ।

यत्नोऽस्यां कविना कार्यः कोऽलंकारोऽनया विना ॥

Kāvya-lamkāra of Bhāmaha, II. 84-5.

असावतिशयोक्तिः स्याद् अलंकारोत्तमा यथा ।

अलंकारान्तराणामप्येकमाहुः परायणम् ।

वागीशमहितामुक्तिमिमामतिशयाह्वयाम् ॥ KĀ, II. 214-20.

This point has been explained at some length by Ānanda-vardhana and Abhinavagupta in the Dhva. Ā. and the Locana, III, pp. 206-9. The striking quality of poetic expression is Atiśaya and Adbhuta:

लोकोत्तीर्णेन रूपेण अवस्थानम् . . .
लोकोत्तरेण चैवातिशयः । तेन अतिशयोक्तिः सर्वालंकारसामान्यम् ।

Locana, p. 208.¹

This Adbhuta or element of surprise characterizes the climax-condition of all the Rasa-s. Adbhuta thus permeates a composition, its Alaṃkāra, Vastu and Rasa.

The regular theory of a synthesis of Rasa-s in Adbhuta was however made by an ancestor of the author of the Sāhitya-darpaṇa. He was known as Nārāyaṇa. In chapter 3 of his Sāhityadarpaṇa, Viśvanātha speaks of this Adbhuta-synthesis in his Vṛtti on verse three, in the name of his ancestor, Nārāyaṇa, and quotes a verse and a half to that effect from the writing of one Dharmadatta. This Dharmadatta is cited as reviewing Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra-theory in the Rasasudhānidhi of Soṇṭhi Māra Bhaṭṭāraka, available in a manuscript in the Madras Govt. Oriental MSS. Library (MT 3210). This

अत्युक्ति-भ्रमोक्ति-चित्रोक्ति-विरोधाभासप्रभृतयोऽद्भुता एव ।

Under Citrokti mentioned here, he brings all expressions turning on Lakṣaṇā: लक्षणात्मकमखिलं चित्रोक्तिरेव ।

Dharmadatta evidently wrote an Alaṃkāra treatise in which he stated the theory of Adbhuta-synthesis first propounded by Nārāyaṇa. The text of this synthesis in the Sāhityadarpaṇa runs as follows:

चमत्कारश्चित्तविस्ताररूपः विस्मयापरपर्यायः । तत्प्राणत्वं च अस्म-
त्पितामहसहृदयगोष्ठीगारिष्ठकविपण्डितमुख्यश्रीमन्नारायणपादैरुक्तम् । तदाह
धर्मदत्तः स्वग्रन्थे—

‘रसे सारश्चमत्कारः सर्वत्राप्यनुभूयते ।

तच्चमत्कारसारत्वे सर्वत्राप्यद्भुतो रसः ॥

तस्मादद्भुतमेवाह कृती नारायणो रसम् ।’ इति । ch. III.

It is accepted that Camatkāra is rasāsvāda. This Camatkāra is a fillip to the mind which is in essence a wonder. The lokottaratva of all rasāsvāda, accepted on all hands, again points to Adbhuta.

Kavikarṇapūra subscribes to this idea and incorporating it in his description of rasāsvāda says:

तथा हि नटेनानुक्रियमाणानुकार्यचरितदर्शनश्रवणजनितचमत्काराति-
शयेन विगलितवेद्यान्तरतया तदेकस्फूर्तिसनाथेन अद्भुतमिदं रामसीतयो रति-
कलाकौशलम्, अद्भुतमिदं रामरावणयोर्युद्धम्, अद्भुतमिदं प्रेतरङ्गादिविचेष्टितम्
इत्यादिना सर्वेष्वेव रसेषु—

रसे सारश्चमत्कारो यं विना न रसो रसः ।

तच्चमत्कारसारत्वे सर्वत्रैवाद्भुतो रसः ॥

इत्यादिदिशा चमत्कारपूर्वकमद्भुतत्वातिशयस्फूर्तो . . . ।

Alaṃkāra-kaustubha, p. 137.

Bhānūdatta too accepts that in Śṛṅgāra and other cases there is an element of Adbhuta as aṅga; where it is aṅgin, the Rasa becomes Adbhuta proper:

शृङ्गारादौ चमत्कारदर्शनाद्यत्र मनोविकृ(स्तु?)तिरङ्गतया भासते तत्र
शृङ्गारादय एव रसाः । प्राधान्येन यत्र भासते तत्राद्भुत एव रसः ।

RT, ch. 1.

Prabhākara, author of the *Rasapradīpa*¹ refutes this Adbhuta-synthesis:

—इति नारायणेन अद्भुत एव रस इत्यभिहितम् । धर्मदत्ता- दिभिश्च तदेवानुसृतम् । तत्र साधु । वैलक्षण्यस्य अनुभवसिद्धत्वात् । प्रकृति-
भेदाच्च । नापि व्यभिचारिषु स्थायिन इव रत्यादिषु विस्मयानुगमः । शोकादिषु
तथाननुगमात् ।

Prabhākara points out that the relish in each Rasa is distinct (vilakṣaṇa) and proceeds from a distinct Sthāyin. Adbhuta cannot also be said to be the continuing factor, like a Sthāyin in and through all its Vyabhicārin-s, in all Rasa-s or their Sthāyin-s; clearly, Adbhuta does not exist in Śoka.

He says further that to have a Rasa, its Vibhāva-s, etc. must have been presented; no poet includes in his presentation the Vibhāva-s, etc. of Adbhuta when presenting other Rasa-s. If, however, it is held that the Camatkāra relished in all Rasa-s is Adbhuta and it is the latter that we call Rati, etc. because of the Vibhāva-s of Rati, etc. that are presented, we might call these cases of Adbhuta, and not Rati, because of the continuing Vismaya; if Vismaya is not present, then its relish is ruled out. If it is contended that all the Rasa-s produce additionally a separate Adbhuta, let them; but it cannot be called Rasa; it has been given the name Camatkāra; nothing is gained or lost by calling this Camatkāra, Adbhuta Rasa:

... लौकिके रसे नियमतः तद्विभावादेः अनुपनिपातात्, काव्यादौ च तथानुपनिबन्धात् ।

अथ प्रतीयते तावत् सर्वत्र चमत्कारः स चाद्भुत एव; तस्यैव रत्यादिविभावानुरोधेन व्यपदेशान्तरमिति । तत्र तर्हि विसयानुरोधेन अद्भुतव्यपदेश इत्यपि सुवचत्वात् । अन्यथा तद्विरहिणामपि तदास्वादप्रसङ्गात् ।

अथ पृथगेवायमद्भुतः सर्वैरेव रसभेदाभिमतैर्जन्येत, जन्यतां स तु न रसः । किंतु तद्धेतुः स्थायी अलौकिकचमत्कारोत्य(र इत्य)भियुक्तव्यवहारात् । तस्य तथा परिभाषणे तु नास्माकमपचयो न युष्माकमुपचय इति संक्षेपः । विस्तरस्तु मदुच्चीतालंकाररहस्येऽध्येयः । p. 40; see also p. 10.

He adds in the end that he has refuted this theory of 'Adbhuta in all Rasa-s' in his earlier Alamkāra work, the Alamkārahasya, also, which is not available to us now.

On the practical side, Śaktibhadra's Āścaryacūḍāmaṇi illustrates the dominating Rasa of Adbhuta, and this has been explained in detail by Professor Mahamahopadhyaya S. Kuppuswami Sastriar in his Introduction (pp. 12-15) to the Bala-manorama edition of this play. The now lost *Kṛtyārāvaṇa*¹ also seems to be a play which specialized in Adbhuta. Towards the end of the 17th century, young Mahādeva wrote his Adbhutadarpaṇa, where Rāma is made to say:

यत् सत्यममितः स्तब्धैः इन्द्रियैरिन्द्रजालवत् ।

अद्भुतैकरसावृत्तिः अन्तर्मील्यतीव माम् ॥ KM 55, IV. 8.

RASA ONLY ONE

It may be granted that an element of wonder, the Bhāva of Vismaya as a Saṃcārin, enters many Sthāyin-s and Rasa-s, but it is absent at least in Śoka and Karuṇa as Prabhākara effectively points out. Though rasāsvāda is citta-saṃvāda and is called Camatkāra, the citta-saṃvāda is not, in all cases, of the form of an 'enlargement', visṭāra. There is Vikṣobha as in Bībhatsa, and there is Druti as in Śṛṅgāra and Karuṇa. This Druti of Śṛṅgāra and Karuṇa is totally absent in Raudra, Bībhatsa, Bhayānaka and Adbhuta, and in this way the Karuṇa-synthesis is defective. Abhinavagupta's Śānta and Bhoja's Ahaṃkāra-Śṛṅgāra, going to the very substratum of the emotions, may be conceded some validity; so also the synthesis in Preman, Vira meaning Preman for Utsāha, and so on.

But though it might be difficult to prove and accept that all the Rasa-s are but forms of some one of them, it has been recognized by all writers that Rasa as such, the ineffable bliss, is one. Rasa is Rasa. It has no other name. It is one. It is like the Brahman or the Sphoṭa. The names Śṛṅgāra, Vira, etc. and the consequent plurality and difference are ultimately unreal; or they are at best like parts or aspects of a whole. Hence it is that Bharata also, says Abhinavagupta, uses the singular number when speaking of Rasa:

न हि रसाद् ऋते कश्चिदर्थः प्रवर्तते ।

NS, GOS, I, pp. 273-4.

—तत एव निर्विघ्नस्वसंवेदनात्मकविश्रान्तिलक्षणेन रसनापरपर्यायेण व्यापारेण गृह्यमाणत्वाद् रसशब्देनाभिधीयते । तेन रस एव नाद्वयम्, यस्य व्युत्पत्तिः फलमित्युच्यते । तथा च 'रसादृते' (६-३३)

इत्यत्र एकवचनोपपत्तिः । ततश्च मुख्यभूतात् महारसात् स्फोटदृशीव असत्यानि वा, अन्विताभिधानदृशीव उभयात्मकानि सत्यानि वा, अभिहितान्वयदृशीव तत्समुदायिरूपाणि वा, रसान्तराणि भागाभिनिवेशदृष्टानि रूप्यन्ते (?) ।

Abhi. Bhā., GOS, I, p. 269.

Again, commenting on the sūtra of Bharata, na hi rasād rte, etc. Abhinavagupta says that though names are given to it differently according to its evoking conditions, Rasa is fundamentally one, and hence it is that Bharata refers to it in the singular number:

पूर्वेन बहुवचनमत्र चैकवचनं प्रयुञ्जानस्यायमाशयः । एक एव तावत् परमार्थतो रसः सूत्रस्थानत्वेन रूपके प्रतिभाति । तस्यैव पुनर्भागदृष्टा विभागः ।

ibid., p. 273.

Abhinavagupta says that therefore Rasa and Nāṭya mean the same thing.¹ In experience also we find that our relish is one undefined state of the form of a repose of the mind, Viśrānti. Bhaṭṭa Narasiṃha, a later commentator on Bhoja's SKĀ, in his exposition of Bhoja's Rasa theory, points out that Rasa as relish, svāda, is one:

अष्टावेव स्थायिन इति कुतः ? तावतामेव स्वादात्मकत्वादिति चेत्, क्रिमेतेष्वनुस्यूत एकः स्वादात्मा ? तर्ह्यनक्षरमिदमुक्तम्—एतेषां कूटस्थ एक एव स्वादात्मा ; एते च तद्विशेषा इति—

‘अत्रे (अतः) सर्वेषां कूटस्था(स्थ) एक एव स्वादात्मा ।’

Mad. MS., MT, 2499, p. 150.

¹ Cf. his Locana, p. 149: प्रीत्यात्मा च रसः, तदेव नाट्यम्, etc. Cf. also Abhinavagupta's borrower Śārngadeva: नाट्यशब्दो रसे मुख्यः ।

SR, VII, 17.

Kavikarṇapūra states the point more elaborately and clearly. He considers a certain blissful state of the mind, which is a quality (guṇa) of the mind established in the sattva-guṇa and completely devoid of any touch of either rajas or tamas, as the one eternal Sthāyin and the one eternal Rasa. This Sthāyin called Ānanda or āsvādāṅkurakanda, 'the root of the sprout of relish', is separately and diversely named according to the different causal conditions, the Vibhāva-s. The difference between this writer and Abhinavagupta and others is that he expressly postulates a Sthāyin also for this one Rasa which they do not in so many words, for, according to them, the question of the Sthāyin does not arise in this state of relish, the two being identical. In fact, even according to Kavikarṇapūra, the Rasa is Āsvāda and the Sthāyin also is the same, the only difference being that in the latter, it is still in an undeveloped dormant condition, āṅkura and kanda:

p. 36. Śānta Rasa Kāvya-s:

Before the Rājatarāṅgiṇī of Kalhaṇa is to be mentioned the Antarātmacarita which Bhoja cites in his Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa as a Kāvya inculcating the fourth Puruṣārtha of Mokṣa. See my Bhoja's Śṛṅgāra Prakāśa (1963), p. 810.

p. 42, fn. 1. The Navagrahacaritanāṭaka, the astrological allegorical play in three acts by Ghanaśyāma has been published by the Sarasvati Mahal Library, Tanjore, 1963.

p. 45. To the forty philosophical and religious allegorical plays mentioned here, the Dharmoddharaṇa by Durgeśvara, son of Dharmeśvara Moḍha, recently published in GOS (no. 151, 1966) may be added. Probably extending to five acts, this play presents the Dvāpara age as the hero contending against the Kali, the anti-hero; Dharma, Dāna and other virtues are on the side of the former, and several vices on the side of the latter.
